BULGARIANS ATTACK SERVIANS AT ZLETOVO

Midnight Attack Unprovoked, Stubborn Resistence Continues Battle Many Hours

(By Associated Press.)

BELGRADE, Servia, June 25.—A strong force of Bulgarian troops attacked the Servian positions at Zletovo and Ratkovatz, in Macedonia, at 1 o'clock this morning.

The attack, according to official information, was unprovoked. Fighting was still in progress at a late hour.

Later reports from the battle scene said the Bulgarian artillery had gone into action and a fierce fight was in progress in which both sides had suffered considerable losses.

The Bulgarian attack on the Servians has created a dangerous state of excitement here.

The newspapers publish special editions declaring in large type, "war has begun."

Dispute May Be Given To Russian Arbitration

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 25.—The prospect that the Balkan dispute will be submitted to Russian arbitration and that the premiers of the four Balkan states will meet at St. Petersburg is much brighter today. The peaceful turn of events is attributed to pressure from Russia and the other powers.

A Sofia dispatch to the Times says:

"In compliance with the Russian request made to both Bulgaria and Servia, the Bulgarian government has prepared a memorandum of its case against Servia, which will be telegraphed to St. Petersburg Wednesday. Should Servia refuse to prepare a similar memorandum, it is understood that the Bulgarian minister will withdraw from Belgrade."

A Belgrade dispatch to the Times says the Servian government has agreed to send a representative to St. Petersburg without making any reservation.

Pigeon "Homes" From Brazil 4,200 Miles to Pennsylvania Master

(By Associated Press.)

JEANNETTE, Pa., June 25.—The record flight of a homing pigeon from Rio Janeiro, Brazil, is reported by Stephen Krupa, a local fancier. Last April he shipped "Sunny Jim" and two other racing pigeons to a Rio Janeiro fancier, who liberated them on May 8. "Sunny Jim" put in an appearance here yesterday, after forty-eight days' flight. Krupa declares that a pigeon never before "homed" from a point below the equator. The air line distance from Rio Janeiro to this city is about 4,200 miles, nearly half of the distance being over water.

TWO HUNDRED VICTIMS OF PTOMAINE POISONING

(By Associated Press.)

RICHMOND, Ind., June 25.—Nearly 200 cases of ptomaine poisoning, the result of eating food served at Earlham college at noon today to former students attending the "homecoming" celebration here, were reported by local physicians tonight. An investigation was started. Nine persons are reported to be in a serious condition. All, it is believed, will recover.

Fire at Omega

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MOULTRIE, Ga., June 25.—The store of J. W. Hardy at Omega, Ga., was damaged by fire Monday night to the extent of about $3,000. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

POLICE SEEK WOMAN WHO WISHES TO DROWN SELF

Mysterious Telephone Call Warns Officers of Intended Suicide by Drowning

Officers of the city and county police forces are looking for a young girl who is said to have left her home on Wednesday morning with the intention of drowning herself in the Chattahoochee river.

The police were informed of this occurrence through a mysterious telephone call which the desk sergeant received at headquarters about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A woman's voice on the other end of the wire informed the sergeant that a young girl left her home Wednesday morning, declaring that she would throw herself into the Chattahoochee.

The woman on the telephone refused to give her name or the name of the girl who, she said, was staying with her until she left with suicidal intent. A description was furnished, however, which said the girl wore a gray skirt, white waist and tan hat. The sergeant's informant declared that she would not give her name for fear the newspapers would get hold of it.

Officers were despatched to the river to watch for the girl.

Judge Joins Revenue Officers in Hunt for Makers of Moonshine

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ANNISTON, Ala., June 25.—Judge G. B. Randolph United States revenue commissioner, has just returned from a trip with the deputy revenue officers who have been scouring this county for alleged illicit distillers and retail liquor dealers, this being the first time in Judge Randolph's history that he has taken an active part in the apprehension of offenders.

In a hearing Monday afternoon before Judge Randolph, John H. Maxwell, who was arrested Saturday on a retailing charge, was admitted to bail in the sum of $100, and Walter Slinson was put under bond of $300 in two cases.

Several stills were destroyed in Calhoun county last week in the raid participated in by Judge Randolph. The officers are still at work in this county and arrests are expected to follow their activities.

PAINTER'S FAMILY OPENS FIGHT FOR HIS VISCERA

(By Associated Press.)

BALTIMORE, June 25.—A demurrer to the recently action for possession of the viscehe of Edward O. Painter, the fertilizer manufacturer of Jacksonville, Fla., who recently was drowned in St. John's river, was offered in circuit court here by the attorney for Painter's heirs today. Before argument on the demurrer was begun Coroner Abbott, of Jacksonville, testified he had been authorized to have a post mortem examination and an inquest conducted. Counsel for the Painter interests contended that members of the family were entitled to possession of the physical remains of Painter under rullings of courts in different states of matters of somewhat similar importance. He quoted court rullings of Kentucky whereby remains of a dead man were turned over to his widow, because she was considered the person most closely affected and the person who had been prior rights above anybody else.

The demurrer may have the effect of holding up the receivership proceedings for many days. They were brought by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company of Baltimore, which issued an accident policy to Painter for $20,000.

ATLANTA BANKERS GIVE WILSON HIS FINEST ASSURANCE

Splendid Effect of Atlanta Clearing House Association's Resolutions Reflected in Press of Nation

MR. WILSON ASKS TO BE GIVEN ORIGINAL COPY

Glad News Carried President by James R. Gray—Dudley Hughes Assures Wilson of Support on Currency Bill

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—So gratified was he to learn that the Atlanta Clearing House association has fallen in with his program for currency legislation at this session of congress, that President Wilson today asked to keep the original telegram containing a copy of the resolutions passed by the clearing house on yesterday. He stated that the resolutions were "one of the most comforting assurances he has received" and added that he needed and appreciated just such support as the Atlanta bankers are giving him in an effort to relieve the situation.

James R. Gray, who came to Washington to hear the president's currency message, called at the White House this morning to pay his respects to Mr. Wilson. Mr. Gray had a telegram from Atlanta, informing him of the action of the Clearing House association, containing a verbatim copy of the resolutions.

President Wilson read the telegram with evident interest and pleasure. He evidently regarded the action of the Clearing House as significant, and asked if the Atlanta bankers had seen a copy of the currency bill. He was informed that they had not.

Just before the Atlantians greeted the president, Congressman Dudley Hughes, of the Twelfth district, had an interview with him. Mr. Hughes assured the president of the determination to support currency legislation at this session of congress.

"Until I heard the president's currency message I was against the consideration of the question at this session of congress," said Mr. Hughes as he left the White House.

"But, the message removed whatever doubt I had about the necessity for legislation at this session and it is my purpose to join hands with the administration in giving the country needed relief. I believe the message had a wonderful effect in congress, and I look to see a bill passed before the snow flies next fall."

George E. Miller, a well known Washington newspaper man, sent the following story to the Detroit News today as reflecting the situation with refernce to currency legislation:

"Supporters or the administration are facing what they regard as a new threat against the currency bill today. They have found a brief interview planted in New England papers by Senator Gallinger in which the New Hampshire road flatly says the currency bill as now drawn can never pass.

CAN'T TALK BILL DOWN.

"Suspicion that the reactionary Republicans would oppose the measure has been in the mind of the president and his followers for some time, but it has been supposed that the opposition would be merely perfunctory and not of a desperate character. But if the Gallinger interview is a general reflex of reactionary determination in the senate it is quite possible for the bill to be defeated by filibustering, by doing what the Gallinger intimates is their intention, could talk any bill to death.

"Opposition to the bill also has come from bankers in many parts of the country. The administration believes this to have been dictated from New York and not to have been the result of independent study of the bill by bankers. To the president it is inevitable that the financial monopoly enjoyed by New York should cause the thing known as the money trust to oppose this bill. He says the prime pur-

EXPLOSION'S DEATH TOLL ESTIMATED AT SIXTY

Grain Elevator in Buffalo Explodes, Strewing Dead and Maimed in Every Direction

(By Associated Press.)

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 25.—Official checking of the list of employes of the Husted Milling company, whose elevator was blown up by a dust explosion yesterday, left the number of definitely known victims twenty-eight men are still unaccounted for and are believed to be in the ruins.

The police started today to make a house to house canvass and a tour of the hospitals where victims were taken. They were provided with lists of the employes who reported for work yesterday. The canvass, completed at noon, showed that there are forty-four men in hospitals, half of whom are not expected to recover; twenty-two were found safe or only slightly injured in their homes; four employes dead, not counting John Conroy, the "nickel plate" engineer, who was blown from his cab and died later at the hospital; twenty-eight missing.

Clifford Husted, superintendent of the milling company, said of the missing:

"We have been unable to get any trace of these men. They were in the mill at the time of th explosion and we fear that they are buried in the ruins."

Taking the police record as a basis as to the number of missing and the statements of the hospital physicians that half of the injured have no chance of recovery, with a known dead of eleven, the probable ultimate death toll approaches sixty.

FINANCE CHAIRMAN WOULD IGNORE MAYOR IN CREMATORY FIGHT

Grows Impatient With Delay and Favors Immediate Signing of Contract—Will Fight to Bitter End, He Says

Councilman W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the finance committee of council, after a conference with Mayor Woodward, Wednesday morning, said he also, like Attorney Samuel N. Evins, had come to the conclusion that the mayor is "stalling" on the crematory, and that he now favors going ahead and making a contract with the Destructor company without negotiating with the mayor any further.

"The Destructor company submitted a proposal to council and council accepted it by a resolution, which is one method of making a contract," said Councilman Humphrey.

"The mayor objected to that, and said he wanted council to pass up a regular form of contract, to be executed by him. He told me that if such a contract was passed up, he would sign it.

"On my recommendation the Destructor company's attorneys, together with the city attorney, went to work and drew up a contract, and it was submitted to the mayor.

MAYOR FOUR-FLUSHING.

"Instead of signing it, as he said he would, he wants to start all over again in a different way. I am tired of fooling with him. He has stalled us and four-flushed us until we are wasting time to negotiate with him any further.

"I am in favor of council going ahead now and accepting the Destructor company's proposal, just as we started out to do. Then, if the mayor vetoes the resolution accepting the proposal, which I suppose he will, I am in favor of passing it over his veto. Then if we have to mandamus him to make him sign the checks in payment of money to the company, which we probably will, I am in favor of doing it."

WHAT MAYOR SAYS.

Mayor Woodward was not in a very pleasant frame of mind Wednesday, on account of the interview given out Tuesday by Attorney Samuel N. Evins, attorney for the Destructor company, in which Mr. Evins charged the mayor with being still opposed to the crematory and with "stalling" the company in an attempt to prevent the completion of the plant.

"I don't care to say anything more about the crematory," the mayor said. "I'm tired of the whole thing. It makes no difference to me what Mr. Evins says. The contract has got to be made according to my wishes, or else I will not sign a check to pay the company a dollar. If they want to go to the supreme court again, all right, it suits me."

ATTORNEY GOREE'S MOVEMENTS.

Though declining to say what his plans are, Attorney C. P. Goree, who conducted the injunction proceedings which resulted in the supreme court's decision holding the original crematory contract to be illegal, is apparently undertaking to stop work on the plant by having the Destructor company cited for contempt.

Attorney Goree took interrogatories Tuesday from Evins & Spence, the Destructor company's attorneys, from W. E. Dowd, Jr., the company's sales engineer, and from W. D. Ellis, Jr., the assistant city attorney.

According to these, Attorney Goree undertook to make them admit that the plant is being continued under the specifications contained in the original contract. This they would not admit, and in reply stated that the plant, as a matter of fact, is being continued under a special resolution of council which makes reference to specifications

NAMING OF COMMITTEES IS NEXT IN ORDER NOW

General Assembly's Interest Turns to Organization, After Electing Leaders

With the election of a speaker and speaker pro tem of the house, and a presiding officer pro tem of the senate, out of the way, the principal legislative interest now centers in the chairmanship of the big and important committees of both bodies.

Neither Speaker W. H. Burwell nor President J. Randolph Anderson is ready to make any committee announcements. In fact, the former says it may be at least a week before he will be in position to give out any information on committee assignments, and President Anderson states that a day or two will elapse before he will have any announcements to make.

Notwithstanding the attitude of the two presiding officers, The Journal today is able to forecast the chairmen of some of the most important committees in both houses.

In the house of representatives L. R. Akin of Glynn, will head the ways and means committee; Crawford Wheatley of Sumter, the committee on appropriations, and R. B. Blackburn, of Fulton, will be chairman of the general judiciary committee or vice chairman of the rules committee. The speaker is ex-officio chairman of the rules committee.

Over in the senate Senator W. W. Stark, of the Thirty-third district, will head the appropriations committee; Senator W. D. McNeil, of the Twenty-second district, the general judiciary committee; Senator O. H. Elkins, of the Fifteenth district, the special judiciary committee, and Senator John T. Allen, of the Twentieth district, either the committee on finance or the committee on constitutional amendments. Judge Allen, who retired from the race for president of the senate just before the first ballot was taken, probably will be allowed his preference of the two committees named, either one of which is highly important.

Pistol's Not a Pistol When Cylinder's Gone, Says a Roman Justice

ROME, Ga., June 25.—When is a pistol not a pistol? was the interesting question that was answered by Justice of Peace Berry Broach yesterday, when S. W. Day was placed on trial in his court charged with carrying a weapon without a license.

Day was advertising a show at a local playhouse, and had been riding over the city dressed as a cowboy, with a big pistol in his belt, when this was discovered by an eagle-eyed officer. He was taken in tow, but at his hearing showed that the pistol he was carrying was only a cylinder. He advanced the plea that a pistol was not a pistol unless it had all the parts intact, and the justice agreed with him and discharged him.

Kitchen and Dining Room of Institute at Sweetwater Are Swept by Fire

(By Associated Press.)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 25.—Fire at the Tennessee military institute at Sweetwater, Tenn., early this morning did damage estimated at $8,000 to $10,00. The blaze was confined to the kitchen and dining room section of the institute. The origin of the fire is not known.

U. S. WAR SECRETARY PLEDGES PROTECTION TO BORDER CITIZENS

After Appealing to President Wilson, Congressman Smith, of Texas, Is Assured of Protection for El Paso

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Representative Smith, of Texas, appealed to President Wilson today to see that Americans in El Paso would not suffer in the threatened battle at Juarez between the Mexican federals and the Constitutionalistas, who are steadily advancing upon the city. The president referred Mr. Smith to Secretary Garrison, who told him that two full regiments of cavalry could be assembled on the Texas line within twelve hours.

Already at Fort Bliss, just across the Rio Grande from Juarez, are five troops of the Second cavalry in addition to the machine gun platoon of that regiment. The remainder of the Second cavalry is doing patrol duty between El Paso and Sierra Blanca, while the Thirteenth cavalry is guarding the border between El Paso and Yang's ranch, New Mexico.

Brigadier General Tasker T. Bliss has full authority to concentrate his forces wherever necessary for protection of American lives.

U. S. Holds Up Train Of Mexican Munitions

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—A carload of war munitions, on its way from New York to the camp of Venustiano Carranza, in northern Mexico, is being held in New Orleans pending decision by the United States department of justice whether to allow it to proceed across the Mexican border, it was learned today.

The consignment, which includes 124 rapid fire guns, several hundred cases of ammunition, and a quantity of side arms, is said to be part of a large contribution of war munitions made by relatives of the late President Madero to the constitutionalist cause.

The car containing the arms and ammunition arrived in New Orleans yesterday, and is being guarded by agents of the department of justice.

General Ojeda Is Forced To Retreat by Rebel Fire

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, June 25.—War department officials today conceded the truth of the report that General Pedro Ojeda, who has been leading the federal forces against the insurgents in Sonora, had been forced to retreat to the seaport at Guaymas. Recently it was reported that General Ojeda had been successful in driving the rebels back to their base of supplies at Ortiz.

Federals Above Guaymas Eat Snakes for Food

(By Associated Press.)

NOGALES, Ariz., June 25.—Federal soldiers above Guaymas are reduced to eating snakes, so completely has the food supply been cut off by the Sonora insurgents state troops, say advices reaching here today. Smallpox epidemics in the constitutionalists camps partially equalizes the situation.

Despite the demoralization caused by famine and disease on either side, fighting was reported to have continued late today. The insurgents attacked Ojeda's column from both the front and rear. Many were reported killed, while the wounded lie unattended on the field.

State officials insist that the federals steadily are losing ground in the

RANDOLPH ANDERSON HEADS STATE SENATE; ALLEN WITHDREW

Senator Allen's Withdrawal at Opening of Session Left Senator Anderson Without Opposition

BURWELL NAMED SPEAKER IN THE LOWER HOUSE

Senator E. L. Smith Is President Pro Tem of Senate and Rep. E. H. McMichael Speaker Pro Tem of House

Eager to tackle numerous state-wide questions sooner or later to test their abilities, some 200 members of the general assembly of Georgia convened at the statehouse at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and worked like beavers for three hours in the torrid heat perfecting their organization.

Thursday the legislators will meet separately at 10 o'clock and later at 11 o'clock will go into joint session in the house chamber to canvass the results of the recent election and declare John M. Slaton formally elected governor of Georgia. The inauguration of Governor Slaton will take place in the house chamber at noon on Saturday.

In both the senate and house the work of organization was accomplished with only two contests, that of speaker pro tem of the house and president pro tem of the senate. Save the sharp fight between Representatives E. H. McMichael, of Marion, and Dr. A. S. J. Stovall, of Elbert, the actions of the opening session resembled most of all a love feast.

Representative McMichael nosed out his opponent by a vote of 93 to 87 after one of the closest races in the history of an election of a house speaker pro tem. Senator E. L. Smith, of the Ninth district, defeated Senator W. J. Bush, of the Eighth, for president pro tem of the senate by a vote of 38 to 6.

The officers elected were:

In the senate, Senator J. Randolph Anderson, president. Senator E. L. Smith, president pro tem, Charles Northern, secretary and Flynn Hargett messenger.

In the house Representative W. H. Burwell, speaker, Representative McMichael, speaker pro tem, John Holfeulet, clerk and Dan Pauk messenger.

MR. ANDERSON'S ELECTION.

As soon as the senate convened at 10 o'clock, Senator Spinks, of the Thirty-eighth district, arose and withdrew the name of Judge John T. Allen as candidate in opposition to Senator Anderson. Senator Spinks declared that Judge Allen's friends had canvassed the situation and that Judge Allen had only nineteen votes pledged, which was not sufficient to elect.

He had, therefore, been authorized by Judge Allen, he said, to withdraw his name, and leave the race to Senator Anderson.

Senator W. W. Stark, of the Thirty-third district, then placed Senator Anderson's name in nomination. The roll was called, and Senator Anderson was unanimously elected, Senator Allen casting his vote for the man whom he had opposed up until that moment.

In his speech of acceptance President Anderson touched briefly on the problem of state tax revision.

Mr. Anderson's speech had not been prepared beforehand and did not last over ten minutes. After he had thanked the members of the senate for their election, he immediately proceeded to speak of the tax revision question.

He pointed out that although the legislature for the past four years had been criticised for extravagance in appropriations, yet these appropriations were necessary in order that the state institutions should not starve to death. This, he said, brought up the fact that the state's revenue must be increased or some provision made in order that the institutions should not go begging.

As a result, he said, in seeking a remedy, he was convinced that the state's system of taxation was antiquated and worn out, and that some remedy must be made at once. He said that he

HAPPY TURNERS GREET AMERICA'S "FATHER JAHN"

Bundes Turnfest of North American Gymnastic Union Opens at Denver

(By Associated Press.)

DENVER, Col., June 25.—While the thirty-first bundes turnfest, or Olympiad, of the North American Gymnastic union, which is holding forth in this city, was well launched yesterday with the arrival of the national officers and other national figures in German circles, it was not completed until this morning, when George Brosius, of Milwaukee, eighty years old, the oldest active instructor in the turneréns of America, and hailed as "Father Jahn of America" by turners, arrived.

Surrounded by members of the turning societies of Milwaukee, who accompanied him, Mr. Brosius received felicitations of the local committee and a crowd that gathered at Union station to greet this distinguished visitor and his escort of trained athletes.

Mr. Brosius marched at the head of the Milwaukee delegation.

In the early part of the nineteenth century the first turner society was founded in Germany by Frederich Ludwig Jahn, whose name has since been handed down among devotees of healthgiving exercise through the medium of German turning societies, both in the Fatherland and in America, as "Father Jahn." George Brosius, in early life in his native land, became a disciple of the philosophy of Father Jahn that a healthy body produced a healthy mind, and when he emigrated to this country at once set about spreading the doctrine and organizing societies in America to put the theory into practical use. Mr. Brosius is the author of most of the modern gymnastic exercises in use at the present time in all the turnvereins in America, and to him is assigned the duty of formulating the athletic events that make up the program of the Olympiads of the North American Gymnastic union.

At this bundes turnfest the honor diploma for fifty years' continuous membership in turning societies will be given to three "old reliables," and tomorrow a reunion of the pioneers will be held, at which these three will be the honored guests.

All three are now residents of Denver and have their membership in the East Denver turnvereins, but their original memberships were with eastern turnvereins. They are Christian Schaefer, who joined a society in Chicago in 1852; Conrad Walbrach and John C. Mayer, both of whom originally affiliated with turnvereins chartered at Leavenworth, Kan.

GUARDS FOIL PLANS TO ESCAPE PRISON

(By Associated Press.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 25.—An attempted jail delivery was made at the city barracks last night by George Firman and Eugene Degler, two United States marines from Port Royal, who were incarcerated in the police barracks on a charge of desertion.

Breaking an iron lever from a tank in tar cell toilet, the men succeeded in tearing out the mortar between the bricks under the cell window, after a futile attempt to escape from the toilet by the same means.

They succeeded in removing two bricks before being discovered by the station house officers. The deserters were returned to Port Royal today in the custody of the officer who arrested them several days ago upon identification cards. Rewards of $50 each were offered for the arrest of the men.

Joseph C. Saunders Shot

CARRABELLE, Fla., June 25.—Joseph C. Saunders was shot and instantly killed last night by J. C. Hagan, an engineer. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of murder. Feeling ran so high that to prevent a lynching, the sheriff rushed Hagan in a fast launch he chartered to Appalachicola for safekeeping. Saunders was a leading citizen, an officer of the militia, member of the town council and high in secret orders.

New Hotel in Valdosta

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 25.—This city is to have a modern new hotel to cater to the middle class trade. Both of the hotels here now are highclass hostelries, and Valdosta has not had a hotel of medium price for two or three years. A contract is to be let this week for a modern building of sixty rooms, with four stores on the front floor. The hotel is to be built on the corner of Hill avenue and Toombs street, opposite the First Christian church.

NO VACATION IN SIGHT FOR CONGRESSMEN DURING SUMMER

Small Salaries Do Not Limit Work of Great Men—Underwood and Hoke Smith Could Earn Four Times as Much at Other Work

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—The members of congress have about resigned themselves, gladly and reluctantly, to the realization that they must spend practically all of their time in Washington from now on. It seems to be coming more and more the fixed policy for legislative sessions to be well-nigh perpetual.

Senators and representatives are awakening to the fact that the people don't care a rap whether it is excessively hot in summer and extremely cold in winter in Washington. The physical discomfort of their representatives in congress doesn't worry the people who send them here. Indeed, some members are beginning to suspect that the people rather like the idea of having congress on the job continuously, and delight in the knowledge that climatic conditions in Washington are far from pleasant.

There are millions of people in America who believe that the congressional salary of $7,500 a year, with perquisites, more than compensates the average representative or senator, not only for physical discomforts, but also for all the service they render the government.

UNDERWOOD'S COMPENSATION.

It is true probably that the average member of congress is fairly well paid, services and ability considered. There are, however, numerous instances that might be cited to prove that some senators and representatives are underpaid for their work. The United States congress as a whole is a body of able men, many of whom are capable of earning much more than $7,500 a year. It is undoubtedly true that there are men in both the senate and the house who never earned $7,500 a year before coming to congress, and who will never earn that much after they leave congress, so that the compensation, based on a general average, may be fair.

But does any one suppose for an instant that Representative Oscar W. Underwood, the Alabama Democratic leader in the house, chairman of the ways and means committee and author of the tariff bill, is well paid for the services he performs for the country? Certainly not. If Mr. Underwood had devoted the time and study to the law that he has to public affairs and if he worked half as hard at the practice of that profession as he works in congress, his annual income would be much nearer to $50,000 than $7,500.

Coming nearer home, the case of Senator Hoke Smith illuminates the point quite as clearly and more interestingly. Before the senator entered politics in Georgia, it is understood that his annual income from the practice of law was around $20,000 or $35,000. Sometimes it exceeded the latter figure.

With his election to the senate, Mr. Smith retired from the practice of law entirely. He gave up an average income of $35,000 a year to accept a salary of $7,500 a year. He did this voluntarily, of course, because he had an ambition to serve in the United States senate.

HOKE SMITH'S SALARY.

The case of Senator Smith was singled out because the writer believes that he is familiar with the work the senator is doing in Washington, and no knew something of the demands upon his time before he came to Washington.

As a lawyer, earning $35,000 a year, Mr. Smith didn't devote one-half the time to his work that he has devoted to the public service since he came to Washington. The same amount of energy applied by the senator to the practice of his profession would, I believe, bring him an income much in excess of $50,000 a year. The estimate is a fair one, when it is considered that with half the work he earned $35,000 a year.

When Mr. Smith was practicing law in Atlanta, he at least had his nights for himself and family. Also, he had some time for travel, and it was possible for him to turn away from his profession to help the public school system of Atlanta and Georgia, and to take a lively interest in the local affairs of Atlanta. Moreover, it was possible for a newspaper reporter to reach him occasionally, if not for an interview—he rarely gave them—for the facts concerning litigation in which he was involved as counsel.

Senator Smith hasn't had an hour he could call his own, save when he has slept, since he came to Washington. He has worked night and day—from 9 o'clock in the morning until midnight or 1 o'clock the following morning. He has been on the run constantly. No member of the finance committee has devoted more study to the provisions of the tariff bill than he, no member is more familiar with its provisions, their details and general effect.

He has earned certainly the salary he receives from the government.

CONGRESSIONAL SESSIONS.

Since March 15, 1909, when President Taft called congress in extra session to revise the tariff, which resulted in the passage of the fateful Payne-Aldrich bill, congress has been in Washington more than two-thirds of the time. Taft's first extra session continued for 144 days, and his second extra session — the reciprocity session—lasted for 141 days, from March 4 to August 22, 1911.

The present extra session, with currency injected by President Wilson, in addition to the tariff, promises to run far into the fall. It will certainly have a longer life than did either of Taft's special sessions.

It is the belief of many persons that the session will continue through October, and may continue until the regular "long session" begins in December.

With the tariff and the currency questions out of the way, it might appear that congress would have little to keep it in Washington. But that is not the case. There are other great public questions demanding consideration, and they must be handled. Then, too, the tariff question never dies, and it may bob up at most any old time.

ANNISTON WANTS ALA. GOOD ROADS MEETING

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ANNISTON, Ala., June 25.—Apropos of the renewed interest in the question of good roads in this county, a movement is new under way to have the next meeting of the Alabama Good Roads association held in this city, the selection of a place of meeting for this year now being in the hands of the executive committee.

It is considered peculiarly appropriate that the meeting should come back to Anniston, as the Alabama Good Roads association was organized in this city seventeen years ago through the efforts of Dr. T. W. Ayers, then editor of The Daily Hot Blast.

FIVE ARE INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

RALEIGH, N. C., June 25.—Reports from Goldsboro, N. FRENCH DEPUTY RISES TO SPEAK; FALLS DEAD

Edouard Aynard Dies of Heart Failure in Chamber of Deputies in Paris

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 25.—A dramatic scene was caused in the chamber of deputies today by the sudden death of Edouard Aynard, a progressive Republican representing Lyons. While making his way toward the platform, where he was to deliver an important speech, he fainted and died shortly afterward.

Doctors attributed his death to heart failure, due to overwork. He had sat up most of last night preparing his speech.

M. Aynard was born on January 1, 1837. He was a regent of the Bank of France and a recognized authority on economic questions. He was deputy speaker of the chamber of deputies for several years.

SCALP COVERED WITH MILK CRUST

Across Top of Head and Behind Ears, Head Mass of Sores, Lost All of Hair, Itching Terrible, Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, In 3 Weeks Place Healed.

Bowling Green, Va.—"My baby when one month old broke out on her scalp as I thought with heat. In a day or so the pimples had spread from one to the other until her scalp was covered across the top of her head and behind the ears with what we called milk crust. Her head was a mass of sores. Every day it got worse. She lost all of her hair wherever there was a scab. The itching was terrible as she couldn't get much sleep sometimes. Her face was covered with blood. It seemed as if nothing I could do would give her relief as she cried for hours at the time.

"So great was her agony when she was three months old I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using them twice she slept better and her scalp began to heal. In three weeks' time the terrible crust had come off leaving the place healed. I continued to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment daily and when she was six months old her hair had grown out and there was no sign of a return of milk-crust. Now she has a lovely suit of hair." (Signed) Mrs. Chas. A. Seal, Aug. 2, 1912.

No other emollients do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, itching, scaly scalps, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and chapeless nails. Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

MAKES FORTUNE ON 25 CENT INVESTMENT

Almost every family has some member who suffers with indigestion and it will interest them to know that a young English singer who had spent a fortune seeking the best doctors in Europe, bought a vegetable which was recommended by a celebrated French doctor as having wonderful digestive properties, for 25 cents and made up a sauce with it and discovered that he had accidently prepared a most delicious sauce which added zest and flavor to food, and at the same time acted as a wonderful digestive. Cooks at the best European hotels pronounce it unexcelled. Unlike all other sauces, Wan-Waw (an obsolete South American Indian word for vegetable) A 25 cent bottle from your grocer will convince you how much more you will enjoy your food by adding Wan-Waw Sauce and how easily you can digest anything and everything.

WOOD PULP IMPORTERS WILL GAIN $3,000,000

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The United States will give up $3,000,000 to importers of wood pulp and paper as a result of the treasury department's decision today not to appeal to the supreme court from the decision of the customs court that all countries having "favored nation" treaties with the United States are entitled to free wood pulp and paper, because that privilege was granted to Canada. The importations were made from France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and other European countries.

Many Years' Test of Eckman's Alterative.

For several years a large number of voluntarily written testimonials from persons who recovered from Lung Trouble have been received by the makers of Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for the treatment of Throat and Lung Troubles. Surely plenty of time to demonstrate its lasting value. You can write to any of them for confirmation. Here is one:

5323 Girard Ave., Phila., Pa.

"Gentlemen: In the winter of 1903 I had an attack of Grippe, followed by Pneumonia and later by Consumption. In the winter of 1904 I had cough, night sweats, fever and raised quantities of awful-looking stuff and later I had many hemorrhages; at one time three in three successive days. Milk and eggs became so distasteful I could keep nothing down. Three physicians treated me, I was ordered to the mountains, but did not go. Eckman's Alterative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity I had the first quiet night's sleep for weeks. My improvement was marked from the first. I gained strength and weight and appetite. I never had another hemorrhage and my cough gradually lessened until entirely gone. I am perfectly well."

(Affidavit) JENNIE F. LONGHRAN.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most effiacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by Jacobs' Pharmacy and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.—(Advt.)

INHERITANCE TAX BILL OFFERED IN GA. HOUSE

Measure Similar to That in Illinois Law, Proposed by Senator Miller

An inheritance tax bill, copied from the inheritance law now in operation in Illinois, was introduced in the state senate Wednesday by B. S. Miller, of the Twenty-fourth district.

The bill provides a tax of from 1 per cent to 6 per cent on estates valued from $10,000 to more than $100,000.

Senator Miller believes his bill, if made a law, will solve the perplexing question of the state's income.

The schedule, set forth in the bill, provides the following taxes as adjusted to the amounts of inheritances:

One per cent tax on estates valued from $10,000 to $50,000.

Two per cent tax on estates valued from $50,000 to $100,000.

Three per cent tax onestates valued from $100,000 to $250,000.

Four per cent tax on estates valued from $250,000 to $500,000.

Five per cent tax on estates valued from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Six per cent tax on estates valued at more than $1,000,000.

The bill makes the ordinaries in the various counties of the state the collecting officers under the direction of the comptroller general. By its provisions executors and administrators of estates are required to file inventory of property with the ordinary of counties in which the wills are probated.

The caption of the bill sets forth as taxable property under its provisions "all personal and real property passing by the laws of inheritance or succession, by will, or by deed, grant or gift, intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of grantor or donor."

SUBSCRIPTION FOR YANCEYS FROM UTAH

From far off Utah comes another subscription for the family of Court Deputy Dave Yancey, whose tragic death over a week ago has left his family in straightened circumstances. P. B. Hopkins, a former neighbor of the Yanceys, writes from Ogden, Utah, that he is grieved beyond measure by the death of his friend, and pays a high tribute to his courage as a man and his faithfulness as an officer of the law.

A generous donation has been received from the officials and employes of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company. It amounts to $46.

That the people all over Georgia have been touched deeply by the appeal for the Yancey family is proved by the number of subscriptions sent in from many parts of the state. The latest of $12.50 is sent by the citizens of Henderson's Crossing, who write that they desire to express to the public and the Yancey family their regret over his death and their sympathy for his family.

Here are the names of the Henderson Crossing people who subscribed:

SUMMER SCHOOL EXAM FIXED BY STATE BOARD

An extra examination for the benefit of the teachers who attend the University summer school at Athens will be held early in August. The examination was arranged by the state board of education at its regular quarterly meeting Monday morning.

The meeting was a brief one, little besides routine business being transacted. All the members of the board were present. They are: Governor Brown, ex-officio chairman; Dr. T. J. Woofter, of Athens; Dr. G. R. Glenn, of Dahlonega; A. H. Moon, of Baxley; Walter S. Steed, of Butler, and Superintendent of Schools M. L. Brittain, who is an ex-officio member.

THEATERS

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
GRAND—"Quo Vadis," in pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

This week's Forsyth attraction is regarded as one of the best combinations of the season. In Keith vaudeville there are many inviting features, and it does appear that for this week the Forsyth management has more than its share of the sort of entertainers that are best liked.

Gertrude Vanderbilt, with the real assistance of George Moore, registers a hit. Miss Vanderbilt is pretty, and is a dancer in a class by herself. George Moore is a comedian of unusual talent and his eccentric dancing is good enough to top any vaudeville program.

Ideal, the champion lady swimmer of the world, gives an exhibition of diving and swimming that has never before been seen on a local stage. Miss Ideal's act is of real interest, and the entire audience is attracted by her exhibition.

There are other acts that are splendid and make a bill that is more than pleasing.

"Quo Vadis," in its second week at the Grand, continues to draw big attendances to the delightful theater. These pictures have been viewed by thousands of people who declare them to be the most wonderful and interesting photo-sensations that have been seen. So much has been said about the exhibition that there is nothing more than can be suggested, except that if you see these great pictures, you never will regret it.

Of the several tabloids that have visited the Bijou so far, the general verdict among patrons of the popular theater is that "The Merry Whirl," this week's attraction, is the equal, if not the best, of them all.

The three comedians, Lew Miller, Harry Loder and Sol Carter are as good fun-makers as one would care to see. Their work is clean, original and pleasing, and as the success of musical comedy depends upon the comedians, this attraction is well supplied in this regard.

Miss Marjory Lake, the star of the attraction is the possessor of a wonderful baritone voice, and her various songs between the acts are receiving generous applause at each performance.

The chorus, too, is made up of good looking girls who are splendid singers and dancers, and the several specialties that are introduced at opportune moments give a touch of vaudeville that is decidedly pleasing.

The two acts of "The Merry Whirl" are full of diversity, good comedy, and it is not surprising that this attraction should be voted by patrons of the Bijou as the best of the season so far. Daily matinees are given at 3 o'clock, and two night performances at 7:30 and 9. On Monday and Saturday two matinees are given at 2:30 and 4.

BARKER GOES UP; IS V. P. OF NEW RAILROAD

Announcement is made of the appointment of B. S. Barker, commercial agent of the Southern railway with headquarters in Atlanta, to the office of vice president and general manager of the Gainesville and Northwestern railroad at Gainesville. He has tendered his resignation to the Southern, effective July 1, and at that time will assume his new duties.

Mr. Barker has been in the service of the Southern railway for nearly twenty-five years, and for the past nine years has been located in Atlanta. He has gained a wide circle of friends here who, while regretting to see him go, are congratulating him on his advancement in th erailroad world.

The Gainesville and Northwestern is a new road, having been completed but about three months ago. From Gainesville it extends through Hall and White counties, bringing up at the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains, with its terminus at North Helen, Ga.

Mrs. Otter Not Arrested

Mrs. Rudolph Otter, of 15 Houston street, wishes to correct an account of a story which appeared in Sunday's Journal about a fight which was said to have taken place at the residence between Otter and one Charles Olsen. The story said that the two men and Mrs. Otter were all taken to the police station, whereas, as Mrs. Otter points out, only the men were taken to the station. She was summoned merely as a witness at the trial.

Three Bold Officers Make Three Robbers Of Roosts Bite Dust

Three policemen went looking for chicken thieves Tuesday night, found them—three of them—and killed 'em. The officers were Sergeant Luck and Bicycle Patrolmen Wood and Andrews.

They were called to the vicinity by residents who have missed numerous hens from their coops recently. After a few hours' vigil in the shadows the officers were rewarded by seeing a vague form sneak into one of the chicken houses. They surrounded the place. One of them, pistol in hand, looked in.

The thief was caught red handed—or rather red mouthed, because he didn't have any hands. The burglar was a dog.

The marauder was slain without trial. Two other unscrupulous canines were dealt with in the same summary manner before the night was over.

MRS. E. L. BAKER DIED ON WEDNESDAY MORNING

Mrs. Emma Louise Baker, widow of the late Mr. P. H. Baker, died suddenly of heart failure early Wednesday morning at her residence, 280 Moreland avenue.

Mrs. Baker was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Strange, of Talbot county, Georgia, and before the removal of the family to this city some fifteen years ago resided in Troy, Ala.

Mrs. Baker leaves three sons and four daughters Mr. P. D. and Gordon Baker, of Atlanta; Mrs. Charles Baker, of Birmingham; Mrs. C. H. Richards, of New York; Mrs. C. L. Ruse, Mrs. C. H. Strong and Miss E. M. Baker, of this city.

Mrs. Baker was a member of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church, having been identified with this church since its organization.

The funeral service will be held at the residence, the time and place of interment to be announced later.

ALLEGED ESCAPE FROM STOCKADE PROVES ALIBI

Will Greer, negro, accused of escaping from the Atlanta stockade last August, proved his innocence in recorder's court Wednesday morning by showing that it was impossible for him to have committed the offense because he was locked up in a jail at Donaldsonville at the time of the alleged break. Although several guards at the stockade identified him as the white Greer who took surreptitious departure from the stockade, his alibi held with the court and he was dismissed.

TABERNACLE EVANGELIST ENDS WORK WEDNESDAY

Dr. W. B. Riley, of Minneapolis, pastor of the First Baptist church of that city for the past seventeen years, concludes Wednesday night a nine days' meeting in the Broughton Tabernacle of Atlanta. In spite of the hot weather the attendance has increased steadily.

At the conclusion of the service Wednesday evening the evangelist will administer the ordinance of baptism to a large number.

RANDOLPH ANDERSON HEADS SENATE; ALLEN WITHDREW

thought that this could be done by a series of bills instead of one general tax revision bill. Judging from the president's remarks it was evident that he was not in favor of cutting appropriations, but of changing the tax system so as to increase the revenue.

SMITH IS ELECTED.

Senator E. L. Smith, of the Ninth district, was elected president pro tem. of the senate over Senator W. J. Brush, of the Eighth district, by the vote of 37 to 4. The other senate officers were elected without opposition. They were Flynn Hargett, messenger, and Charles Northen, secretary.

SENATE BILLS.

Bills introduced in the senate:

By Senator Miller—A bill to provide an inheritance tax.

By Senator Tarver—to create the county of Tate.

By Senator Tarver—To require railroad to establish joint railroad stations.

By Senators Pope, Hixon Tarver—To put in force a bill to constitutional amendment to exempt far mproducts from taxation.

By Senator DuBose—To provide water for senate.

By Senator Smith—A bill to allow and empower superior court judges to grant charters during vacation.

By Senator Tarver—A bill to permit executors to recover damages in case of homicide.

Elections in House Passed Off Quietly

The 1913 session of the house of representatives was called to order by Clerk John T. Boifeuillet, of Macon, promptly at 10 o'clock. All of the members were in their seats and there was an absence of any disorder that comes generally at the opening of a large gathering.

Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist church, opened the assembly with prayer.

The swearing in of the legislators was impressively performed by Chief Justice William H. Fish, of the state supreme court. The representatives were called in groups of six or eight and the oath of office administered as their hands touched the Bible.

T. R. Akin, of Glenn, made the speech nominating for speaker of the house William H. Burwell, of Hancock. He spoke of his business and executive ability and declared he was a man most eminently fitted for the honor that was to be conferred upon him without opposition.

His nomination was seconded by Mr. Harris, of Washington; Mr. Slade, of Muscogee; Mr. Adams, of Hall; Mr. Myrick, of Chatham; Mr. Wimberly, of Mitchell; Mr. McMichael, of Marion; Mr. Oliver, of Richmond and others. He received 170 votes.

Amid thunderous applause the speaker was escorted to the chair by a committee composed of Mr. Fullbright, Mr. Shepard and Mr. Hardeman. As the committee left the hall in search of Mr. Burwell, Mr. Boifeuillet remarked that they would no doubt find him after a short search and break the news of his election to the speakership.

MR. BURWELL'S SPEECH.

Mr. Burwell in his speech accepting the speakership characterized the problem of securing an increase of state revenue as the most important thing to which will come before the house.

Mr. Burwell said in part:

"It is needless for me to say that I deeply appreciate the honor you confer in electing me as your presiding officer, and in accepting the trust, let me assure you that I will, at all times be my steadfast purpose to discharge the duties of the office with the utmost fairness to each and absolute justice to all.

"There are, with me, no scars to heal or enemies to punish and I sincerely trust that you can and will reciprocate the feelings of sincere personal regard and friendship that I entertain for every member of this house.

"Many questions of grave import will come before you for consideration during this pending session and, while it is not within the province of the speaker to dictate the policy of the house, or to direct the course of your deliberations, yet I trust that you will permit me for passing reference to the one matter that, among the issues that will arise for your consideration, is pre-eminently, to my mind, the most important. For the past several years, since the limitation of five mills was wisely placed upon the taxing power of the general assembly, appropriations have been from time to time, increased beyond the revenues of the state, until today we find a deficit in our state treasury, which the honor and integrity of the state demands that we should correct. To do this, and to do it wisely, will require our best thought and highest patriotism.

"Let me assure you that in no sense, am I a pessimist and I fully realize and appreciate that Georgia is rich and prosperous in the possession of boundless natural resources, more varied perhaps than any of her sister states, and that her basic credit is well founded and established beyond the thought of criticism; yet it is a manifest fact to all of us who are in close touch with our constituency, that the crop conditions of the past two years have placed unusual burdens upon our people and there is no business or interest in Georgia, whether farmer, merchant, banker, manufacturer, laborer, or man of the professions who has not felt its serious consequences. Therefore to lay additional burdens upon our people at this time will be disastrous and unwise and, I sincerely trust that, in providing for this deficit in the treasury, you will find other means than that of increase in the various taxes of the state.

"We will be called upon to correct the present evils in our taxing system, a system which is now so antiquated, in many instances so inadequate and so unjust, and to correct these evils in such manner as will equalize the burdens of taxation and adjust the present inequities and inequalities of our law, offers to us the highest opportunity for the exercise of wise statesmanship and real service to the state."

BOIFEUILLET RE-ELECTED.

John T. Boifeuillet, of Macon, clerk of the house for many years, was re-elected to the position without opposition. In the course of his nominating speech Minter Wimberly, of Bibb, called Colonel Boifeuillet the "handsomest man in Georgia," and the house thundered its applause. The members applauded again as the clerk was escorted by a committee to his desk.

Representatives Cheney, Holzclaw, Aiken, Picquet and Fowler were named as the five members of the house who, with three members of the senate, asked Governor Brown if he had a message to deliver to the assembly.

Representatives Whitley, Hardeman, Blackburn, Whelwender and Fulbright were named on a committee to confer with Governor-elect Slaton on the details of the inaugural ceremonies.

It has been agreed by the house and the senate that they will meet at 11 o'clock Thursday morning in a joint session to present officially the results of the last election of state officers.

M'MICHAEL ELECTED.

Shortly before noon the vote for speaker pro tem. of the house was taken by the body, and E. H. McMichael, of Buena Vista, Marion county, was elected over his only opponent, Dr. S. J. Stovall, of Elbert, by a vote of 98 to 85.

A hot race for speaker pro tem. had been quietly in progress for some weeks, and the interest in it was made keener by the withdrawal Tuesday of all contestants except the gentlemen named.

Another election was that of D. T. Paulk, of Ben Hill, as messenger of the house. Mr. Paulk is a veteran in the service, having held the position during a number of assemblies. He was named without opposition.

W. T. Morris, the veteran door-keeper, was also reelected and the speaker appointed Mrs. Rosa Talbot Reid as postmistress of the house.

Rev. J. H. Hill an Atlanta minister, was elected chaplain of the house.

NO FAVORS TO MINISTERS.

A motion was made just before the members of the house started to draw for seats, to allow the ministers, who are members of he body, to choose their own seats, without having to take chances with the other members. The motion was lost by a vote of 160 to 12. C. R. McCrory, of Schley county, after the seats had been drawn, made a motion to dispense with the reading of Governor Brown's message.

Although the motion was lost, the clerk had read only the opening paragraph of the message, which was printed in pamphlet form and distributed among the members, when the clock in the hall pointed to 1.

Immediately the clerk was interrupted with a motion to adjourn until 10 o'clock Thursday morning, and this motion was quickly carried.

HOUSE BILLS.

House bills introduced:

By Mr. Cole, of Bartow, a bill to provide for an inheritance tax.

Mr. Messrs. Wimberly, Fowler and Miller of Bibb, a bill to provide for holding a special election for United States senator.

By Mr. Edmondson of Brooks, a resolution calling a constitutional convention in Georgia.

By Mr. Seaton of Bryan, a bill to establish the new county of Candler with Meeter as county seat.

By Mr. Spence of Carroll, and Mr. Wohlwender of Muscogee, a bill to regulate the sale of stocks and bonds and debentures.

By Mr. Lipscomb of Clarke, a bill to create a state board of tax equalization.

By Mr. Gowar of Crisp, a resolution for a joint committee for tax revision.

By Mr. Blackburn of Fulton, a bill to create a highway commission.

By Mr. McCurry of Hart, a bill to prevent the sale of alcohol by druggists.

By Mr. Parker of Liberty, a bill to create the new county of Evans.

By Mr. Wohlwender of Muscogee—A bill to amend the laws regulating the prison commission.

By Mr. Slade of Muscogee—A bill providing for an inheritance tax, also a bill to repeal the present law for the governor to call out troops in case of riot, etc.

By Mr. Davidson of Putnam—A bill to abolish the office of county treasurer.

By Mr. McCrory of Schley and others—A bill to create a text book commission.

By Mr. Wheatley of Sumter—A bill to create the office of lieutenant governor.

By Mr. Meador of Oconee—A bill to require shoe manufacturers using substitutes for leather to stamp them so.

By Mr. Tottle of Tattnall—A bill creating the new county of Hampton.

—By Mr. Ellis, of Tift—A bill to establish an experimental station in south Georgia.

—By Mr. Harris of Washington—A bill to allow ordinaries fees for paying pensions.

By Mr. Clark of Dougherty—A bill to allow county commissioners to provide for the support of the hospital in Albany.

Tax Revision Provided For in This Bill

Designed to deal with the question of tax revision exactly as the insurance question was dealt with in 1911-1912, a resolution was introduced in the state house of representatives on Wednesday providing for a joint intersession committee of three from the senate and five from the house, to undertake the work of tax reform. The resolution was sponsored by Representative O. T. Gowen, of Crisp county, who headed the intersession committee which drafted the insurance bill passed and approved in 1912.

It is Representative Gower's idea that the tax question can best be dealt with by members of the legislature. But realizing the question of tax revision is the biggest thing before the assemblymen at present, he believes that a committee of eight can meet from time to time between th 1913 and 1914 sessions can get at the matter in the most intelligent manner.

His resolution providing for this committee was read for the first time in the house today.

MORE HOT WEATHER AND RAIN, IS THE FORECAST

With normal temperatures reported all over the United States Wednesday morning, official predictions at the local office of the weather bureau were for another fairly hot day.

Tuesday's highest temperature was 92 degrees, a mark which Mr. von Herrmann calls "normal." Another "normal" day then was his forecast for Wednesday, with a maximum temperature of either 90 or 91 degrees. Rain is probable, he said, before Thursday afternoon.

SUNDAY FANS MUST PUT CHECK ON ARDOR

Enthusiasm over the Cracker's climb in the percentage column is noble. But the anxiety of fans over the outcome of Sunday games can't be satisfied in Atlanta.

So declared City Recorder Nash R. Broyles Tuesday afternoon when he found R. H. (Caller) King guilty of keeping open his baseball return parlors at 9 Viaduct Way on Sunday in violation of city laws. No penalty was imposed by the court when the offender promised to keep his doors locked on the Sabbath in the future.

In making his decision Judge Broyles said that baseball parlors have no more right to remain open than moving picture theatres or any dozen other restricted amusements.

SALOONLESS NATION BY 1920, SAYS MRS. ARMOR

By 1920 the United States will be a saloonless nation, according to Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, who made an enthusiastic speech Tuesday night at the First Methodist church.

"The very fact that state-wide prohibition does not prohibit will bring national prohibition," said Mrs. Armor. She went on to comment on Colonel Roosevelt and William Jennings Bryan for their attitude in regard to temperance, the most spectacular of the ranks of the liquor forces in the face of the opposition which she said is being shown them.

CHARTER REFORM TICKET FOR COUNCIL IS URGED

Mayor Woodward Will Ask People to Make the Issue in the Fall Primary

Council having refused the people's expressed wish to vote on a new charter for the city of Atlanta, Mayor Woodward is in favor of the people putting out candidates in every ward this fall who will run on a platform pledging them to charter reform.

Inasmuch as the present council has proved that it will not allow the people to have a new charter, no matter how much they want it, the mayor believes the people should get rid of the present council and put new men in their places.

The fall primary will not offer quite the opportunity, but it will offer an opportunity for the people to elect fourteen new members out of the thirty, as the terms of ten councilmen and four aldermen expire on January 1, 1914, and their successors will be nominated in the fall primary.

They are as follows:

Councilmen—A. H. Baskin, First ward; D. Beckwith, Second ward; Orville H. Hall, Third ward; Albert D. Thomson, Fourth ward; J. J. Greer, Fifth ward; Jesse M. Wood, Sixth ward; Roy M. Abernathy, Seventh ward; Clarence Haverty, Eighth ward; Charles Whiteford Smith, Ninth ward; Claude C. Mason, Tenth ward.

Aldermen—James E. Warren, Third ward; James R. Everett, Fourth ward; F. J. Spratling, Seventh ward; A. H. Van Dyke, Eighth ward.

Of the above, the following have announced their intention not to offer for re-election: Abernathy, Haverty, Mason, Spratling and Van Dyke. Greer and Everett are not candidates for re-election because they have served the full continuous time allowed by the city charter.

Already the talk of candidates for council is going the rounds in city hall, though none whose names have been mentioned up-to-date are regarded as charter reform candidates, in the sense that Mayor Woodward speaks of.

Among those who are said to be contemplating the race for council are the following:

First ward—Guy A. Meyers, to succeed Councilman Baskin.

Second ward—C. H. Kelley and Harvey Hatcher, to succeed to the unexpired term of Alderman John E. McClelland, should he carry out his announced intention of resigning; and W. Y. Parker, to succeed Councilman Knight.

Fourth ward—R. E. George, to succeed Councilman Thomson. Instead of running for re-election as councilman, the latter may be a candidate for alderman to succeed J. E. Everett.

Fifth ward—Jesse B. Lee, Russell Shirley and Dr. G. Y. Pierce are mentioned as candidates to succeed Councilman Greer.

Seventh ward—Jesse W. Armistead, Dr. J. C. White and Marcellus M. Anderson have been mentioned as candidates to succeed Alderman Spratling, and Dan Walraven as a candidate to succeed Councilman Abernathy.

Eighth ward—W. S. Hancock, formerly councilman and then an alderman from the Seventh ward, will be a candidate to succeed Alderman Van Dyke. Ex-Mayor Courtland S. Winn has been mentioned as a candidate to succeed Councilman Haverty. Mr. Hancock and Mr. Winn now live in the Eighth ward.

Ninth ward—J. F. Wall has been mentioned as a candidate to succeed Councilman Smith.

Mayor Woodward will probably give out a statement to the public in the next few days outlining his ideas with reference to the charter reform ticket for the fall primary. It was his intention to give the statement to the newspapers for publication last Sunday, but was prevented on account of other pressing duties.

NEIGHBORHOOD CLUBS TO BEAUTIFY DECATUR

Fund Has Started for Building for Woman's Club and U. D. C.

At a joint meeting of the Civic Beauty committees of the Decatur Board of Trade and the Decatur Woman's club, in the court house at Decatur Tuesday afternoon, it was decided to organize a neighborhood club in every section of Atlanta's sister city for the purpose of unifying and carrying out the complete beautification of Decatur.

The decision was not the end of the good work, for several clubs were started on the spot. Mrs. Thomas H. Fulton started the Oak street club; Mrs. A. L. Brooks and Mrs. J. G. Addy, College avenue; Mrs. Jennie Findley, North Candler; Mrs. F. H. Hollister and Mrs. H. W. Cantrell, Jefferson Place; Mrs. R. M. Lightfoot and Mrs. George Watts, Adams street.

It is planned to have these clubs meet and discuss everything that effects the appearance of Decatur, to plan and carry out systems of beautification and in every way promote better care of the lawns and streets and sidewalks of the town. Later they will take up the matter of securing parks and playgrounds.

In connection with the desire for parks, the question of a building to be used as a home for the Woman's club and the Daughters of the Confederacy, was discussed and it developed that a fund for the purchase of a lot has been started by the daughters. This matter will be taken up at length at the next meeting, which will be on Wednesday afternoon, July 2.

ATLANTIAN ADDRESSES ALIENISTS IN CHICAGO

Dr. J. Cheston King Declares Downtown Chicago Is the Noisiest Spot on Earth

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 25—The incessant noise of the downtown district of Chicago has a distinct effect on Chicagoans, and they do not know what relaxation means, Dr. J. Cheston King, of Atlanta, Ga., last night told the conference of alienists and neurologists who are considering ways and means of decreasing degeneracy and dementia.

"The downtown portion of the city within the radius of the elevated loop is guilty of more noise and longer continued noise than any similar area in the world," declared Dr. King.

The discussion of this subject by the alienists was welcomed by the council health committee, which now is studying means of suppressing needless noises.

Dr. Theodore Diller, of Pittsburg, Pa., one of the alienists in conference here with the Chicago Medical society, in an address last night, declared himself opposed to woman suffrage and to the teaching of sex hygiene in public schools.

"This is a fearfully dangerous subject, and I am opposed to rushing it into our schools without the most careful consideration," he said. "We should not act hastily on this problem. For the same reasons I am opposed to woman suffrage."

Resolutions providing for the congregation of persons mentally unfit, and their restraint, were prepared in committee and were to be submitted to the conference today.

Medical societies and state governments have sent delegates to the conference, which has interested itself chiefly in problems of eugenics with reference to the extirpation of insanity.

In resolutions adopted last night by the conference, governors are invited to appoint delegates to a congress of medical specialists to be held next summer. An international gathering for the discussion of means of halting the increase in degeneracy and dementia is planned for 1915.

GEORGE M. SUTTON GIVEN FAREWELL DINNER

Friends of Popular Postoffice Inspector Wish Him Luck in New Post

Atlanta friends of George M. Sutton, inspector in charge of the southeastern division of the postoffice department, tendered him a dinner at the Capital City club Tuesday night in token of his departure to Kansas City, whither he has been transferred.

Mr. Sutton has been in Atlanta for six years, and during that time has made hosts of friends. He was identified with the city's leading social organizations, and while those who esteemed him and liked him here wish him the best of luck in his new position, they can but regret his absence from Atlanta.

Among those who were gathered to wish Mr. Sutton farewell were Thomas P. Peeples, Charles R. Winship, Hugh L. McKee, Robert C. Clark, Colonel M. O. Markham, and R. F. Sheddon. The party spent an enjoyable evening, slightly saddened by the knowledge of Mr. Sutton's approaching departure.

HUBBY TOOK JOY RIDES, SAYS DIVORCE SEEKER

Declaring that her husband told her he preferred midnight joy riders to the comforts of home, Mrs. Annie Groves, Jacksonville, has filed suit in the Fulton county superior court against O. C. Groves.

The petition states that while the couple were living in Jacksonville, it was the habit of Mr. Groves to absent himself from home frequently at night and to take out girls in automobiles. According to the petition, Mr. Groves told his wife that he much preferred the company of the joy-riding feminines to her own.

The petition claims that this is sufficient ground for divorce. At the time the couple separated in May, 1912, the petition says, Mrs. Groves was left with an infant which she was unable to support properly.

CONGRESSMAN BRANTLEY GIVEN WELCOME HOME

Will Move His Law Offices to Washington to Handle Railroad Assignment

Congressman William G. Brantley, who has been appointed to represent the railroads of the United States before the interstate commerce commission, arrived from Washington Tuesday night and was tendered a cordial informal reception to friends who had gathered in the lobby of his hotel.

Among the first duties that face the congressman will be those of advisory counsel for the railroads of the southeast. He will represent them in the matter of physical valuation of their property, which investigation the government is making at the present time before the interstate commerce commission.

Two other representatives will be associated with Mr. Brantley in the work. One will represent the eastern states and the other the western country.

In consequence of this appointment and to facilitate the added work, the Atlanta law firm of Brantley, Jones & Brantley will open offices in the national capitol, where the congressman will be in charge there, though his time will be divided between Atlanta and Washington.

HOT CHASE DOWN DECATUR STREET ENDS IN CAPTURE

Half a hundred men and boys raced down Decatur street Wednesday morning shouting, "Stop thief!" None knew why they were running, but all ran with speed.

The chase began when a white man standing near Five Points made a grab at a nearby negro, missed him, and set off after him as the black galloped off down Decatur street. A few blocks from Five Points the white man caught him.

The negro was turned over to Officer Taylor, who took him to police station. He will be sent to Columbus, Ga., Wednesday afternoon, where he is wanted on various charges. The man who recognized him and started the chase was Officer Helms, of the Columbus police force. The negro's name was Willie Jones.

MAN'S HAT BRIM IS SMASHED BY A BRICK

A brick falling from the third story of Eugene V. Haynes' Whitehall street store, which is being remodeled, missed George W. McDaniel's head by a bare inch and smashed the brim of his hat into pieces Tuesday afternoon. Mr. McDaniel lives at 22 East Ashland avenue and is an employe of the Southern Ice company. His shoulder was slightly bruised.

The Constructive Tasks Of An Able Legislature.

The General Assembly that convenes today will begin its important work under auspice: unusually cheering. Its members come fresh from the people, imbued with that spirit of progress and performance that is astir throughout the great body of our citizenship. They come in a spirit of concord and in a season of prosperity, seeking to promote the common interests of those they represent, determined to hold fast all the good their predecessors have wrought and to press forward to still worthier achivement.

The tasks of this Legislature are essentially constructive. They are tasks that call for painstaking, businesslike thought. Such, for instance, is the problem of devising adequate plans for the future of the Western and Atlantic railroad. A little more than six years hence the present lease on this property, which is Georgia's richest material possession, will expire. The questions to be determined are so numerous and far-reaching that they must be given prompt attention, if the State's interests are duly to be conserved. The present Legislature should shoulder this urgent duty without delay.

Another matter of serious and immediate concern is that of the State's fiscal system. Means must be found not only for increasing the revenues but also for administering them more satisfactorily. There is a problem that vitally involves our educational affairs. The State's common school teachers, particularly those of rural districts, should not be required to wait for their salaries long months after their work has been done; nor should our higher institutions, such as the University, the Tech, the Normal and Industrial College and others be stinted in the bare necessities of existence.

Georgia is entering a new era of material development which demands the State's assistance. There are certain great enterprises which must be carried forward, if our natural resources are to yield up their treasure. Swamp and overflow lands must be reclaimed. Water power sites must be surveyed in order that these vast stores of latent energy may be turned to industrial account. The agencies for agricultural development, such as farm demonstration work, educational extension and kindred movements undertaken by the State College of Agriculture, must be sustained and perfected. And all such enterprises, be it noted, are essential to the people's common business and social welfare. But until a more ample and elastic system of finance is secured, these important interests will continue to suffer. For, the Legislature cannot go on appropriating money which will not be available when it is demanded. If the General Assembly makes even a fair beginning in its present session toward solving this problem, it will render magnificent service.

In addition to these two paramount issues, that of the Western and Atlantic railroad and fiscal reform, there are divers other worthy causes that require attention. Particularly notable are the need of a compusory school attendance law, a thoroughgoing inquiry into the question of text books (the present five-year contract expires next autumn), and the need of certain well-considered changes in the State education law, to the end that the administration of county school systems may be rendered more efficient. Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of creating a State highway commission, of strengthening the State health laws so that medical inspection may be provided for rural districts and of establishing a State-wide system of vital statistics. The value of improving the present penal system in certain particulars is obvious; it is to be hoped that the plan to appoint a commission to study that question will be carried into effect.

These are some of the salient subjects that call for Legislative attention; and, as we have said, they are all constructive tasks, in the performance of which every member can join with his colleagues in a spirit of harmony and co-operation. We voice the sentiment of the Atlanta people when we say that the gentlemen of the General Assembly are cordially welcome in their capital city and that we wish them each and everyone a pleasant and useful sojourn.

Welcome to the solons, sometimes merely referred to as statesmen.

Timely and Patriotic Action By the Bankers of Atlanta.

The timely and cogent resolutions of the Atlanta Clearing House Association on the now vital issue of banking and currency laws will have a wholesome, quickening effect on the thought of the entire South and, indirectly at least, on that of all nation. Composed of seven of the largest and most highly reputed banks in this section of the country, the Clearing House Association is truly described as "representing the agricultural, manufacturing and commercial interest of Atlanta and the prosperous Southeast." Its members and officers are distinguished for their steady judgment, their business insight, their loyalty to the highest and soundest standards of the great cause in which they are leaders. When, therefore, a group of such men and such institutions place the stamp of their approval on an undertaking, it naturally engages the confidence not only of those within their immediate circle of influence but of the thinking public as well.

It is thus a very significant fact that the Atlanta Clearing House Association, at a meeting held Tuesday forenoon, adopted resolutions heartily indorsing the spirit and purpose of President Wilson's address to Congress on the subject of remedial currency legislation. This action, taken as it was almost immediately after the President's address had become public, is especially opportune and, we believe, will prove especially valuable to the cause in which the Democratic administration and all foresighted business men are now so earnestly concerned.

Not only does the Atlanta Clearing House Association indorse the President's purpose, but it also voices a conviction that a satisfactory bill for the revision of banking and currency laws should be passed at this session of Congress; and, most important of all, it declares:

"We believe that the combined wisdom of the President, the House and the Senate, after learning from the banking, commercial, agricultural and manufacturing interests of the country, can and will evolve a currency bill that will be satisfactory to the banks and beneficial to the nation."

It is a high tribute to the truly national spirit of Atlanta's representative banking interests that they should have placed themselves so heartily and so promptly behind the important cause on which the administration's energy is now centered. This is an act of workmanly patriotism that cannot fail to have far-reaching influence and to redound to the welfare of the South and the common country.

The back to the farm movement is shown practically in the desertion of section hands out west for the wheat fields.

Georgia's Industrial Resources.

The first annual report of Georgia's commissioner of commerce and labor is not only an interesting compendium of the State's industrial resources but also a striking instance of the valuable service this new department can render. Heretofore we have realized but vaguely the sweep and impetus of the State's material development. That there was a remarkable expansion of our manufacturing interests, no one could doubt and that this rapid growth was giving rise to new problems as well as new opportunities was equally manifest. But where were no definite, official records to which we could point the outside world as evidence of our progress nor to which we could turn, in the making of needed legislation.

Simply as a medium for gathering statistics, the usefulness of the department of commerce and labor cannot well be overgauged; for these figures show in detail what is being done in every field of industrial activity; they are a guide to the people of our own State and a practical appeal to capital in other sections. The greatest value of such service will appear in years to come when it will be possible to compare one annual report with another and thereby to determine in what direction we are moving and just how fast we are going.

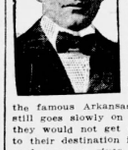
The first report is within itself highly interesting. It shows among other things that there are now one hundred and seven -seven textile mills in Georgia with an invested capital of some thirty-seven and a half million dollars; that the total value of the raw products thus consumed approaches twenty-nine million dollars; that the aggregate of the products turned out is over fifty-three and a half millions; that employment is given to thirty-two thousand, five hundred and ninety-seven persons whose wage-earnings exceed nine million dollars. Besides the textile industry, there are one hundred and seventy cotton oil mills, on hundred and fourteen brick, tile, stone and terra cotta plants, two hundred and fifty fertilizer factories, one hundred and eighty-seven foundry and machine shops, ninety-one marble and granite quarries, one hundred and seventy-one bottling and brewing plants, four hundred and fifty printing and publishing establishments, one hundred and five flour and grist mills, one hundred electric light and power plants and divers other enterprises representing almost every field of industrial endeavor.

It is a truly remarkable fact that a State whose agricultural interests are so large and varied as Georgia's are should at the same time present such a volume and diversity of manufactures. The fact is there are few lines of labor and investment which cannot be profitably followed in Georgia. The work of the department of Commerce and Labor, as it is being done by Commissioner Stanley and his able associates, will prove a keen stimulus to these important interests.

The hot days come with such regularity that even the oldest inhabitant doesn't find time to make comparisons.

THE PHILIPPINES

XIII.—Railroads.
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.



When the American soldiers went to the Philippines they saw many quaint and curious things and one of them was the solitary railroad in the islands. The jerk-water, one-horse, 2 by 4 affair ran 109 miles from Manila northward to Dagupan. It belonged to a British concern with British officers and Filipino crews. This line is still in operation. It now belongs to the Speyer syndicate, which also has built several hundred miles of road in the Visayan islands. This original Manila-Dagupan line is still under British management with its bonehead attendants and station agents. The engines are toy affairs and the cars of European style with small compartments. It continues to rival the famous Arkansas railroad of the joke book. It still goes slowly on the theory of the Filipinos that they would not get their money's worth if they got to their destination in say two hours. So the railroad company gives them a four-hour trip for their money. The cars continue to be a total stranger to drinking water, towels and soap, and the trains not infrequently have a very original habit of stopping for an hour or more in the midst of some torrid stretch at the hottest part of the day. The journey of 100 miles from Manila to Dagupan is made in nine hours, if everything goes well.

* * *

The need of more railroads in Luzon and of lines for other important islands which have none was from the first realized to be most urgent. The death of thousands of carabao in the first few years of American occupation further emphasized the fact. It was useless for the poor Filipino farmer to go to work and raise more than just enough for him to live on when there was no means of transporting the surplus to other parts, to say nothing of trying to reach foreign markets. It was evident that railroads would not immediately develop the sparsely inhabited sections of the islands in the same way that they have so often done in the United States because the Filipino prefers to stay at home and gather moss. Nevertheless it was evident that many of the well settled portions of the islands produced but an infinitesimal fraction of their agricultural capacity and thus were merely scraping along from year to year instead of exuding prosperity from every pore. The need was great but the Philippine government had difficulty in inducing American capitalists to make railroad investments in the islands.

* * *

However, the government assisted by Secretary Taft, General Clarence R. Edwards and General Frank McIntyre kept hammering away. On June 12, 1905, proposals for bids for the construction of railroads on eleven routes, aggregating 1,113 miles, in the islands of Luzon, Panay, Negros, Cebu, Leyte and Samar were advertised in Washington and Manila. Bids were opened in Washington on December 20, 1905, ad they were three in number. Two of the bids were unsatisfactory, and new ones were called for. On June 20, 1906, the new bids were opened when it was found that there were but two competitors, Messrs. Speyer & Co., for the line in Luzon, and the Visayan syndicate for the line in Negros, Panay and Cebu. The last named company was composed of Messrs. William Solomon & Co., Cornelius Vanderbilt, J. G. White & Co., of New York, Charles N. Swift, of Detroit, with whom were associated the International Banking corporation, H. R. Wiston and Heidelbach & Co. The bid of the Visayan syndicate, being within the terms of the proposal, was accepted. Six months later the syndicate transferred their contract to a compnay called the Filipino Railroad company organized under the laws of Connecticut. The agreement between the Philippine government and the company included the following points:

* * *

First. An agreement to build 295 miles of railroads in the islands of Panay, Negros and Cebu on the routes specified.

Second. A guaranty by the government of 4 per cent on the first mortgage bonds issued for the construction of the railroads, none of which could be sold below par, the proceeds to be expended for the equipment and construction of the roads; the sums, if any, paid by the government in pursuance of its guaranty, to be considered a lien upon the railroad and its equipment; the guaranty to cease at the end of thirty years.

Third. The concession is perpetual.

Fourth. Taxation is fixed at 1-2 of 1 per cent on the gross earnings for thirty years and 1 1-2 per cent for fifty years. After that period the rate of taxation is to be fixed by the government.

Fifth. All material necessary for the construction and equipment of the railroads to come in free of duty; this was before the beginning of free trade between the United States and the Philippines in August, 1909.

* * *

The proposition put up by the Speyer company for the construction of two lines on the island of Luzon, one for a line from Dagupan to the northern terminal of the then existing Manila-Dagupan railroad, to Laoag, in Ilocos Norte province, a distance of 168 miles, and the second for a line aggregating 390 miles from Manila southeast through the provinces of Batangas and Tayabas, and likewise lines in the southern peninsula through the provinces of Ambos Camarines and Albay, and branch lines from these roads and from the Manila-Dagupan railway, was finally accepted after several months of negotiation upon the terms that the company was:

* * *

First. To build 428 miles of railroads throughout the island of Luzon.

Second. No guaranty on any part of the construction.

Third. The Manila-Dagupan railroad which became the property of the Speyer company and all of its branches, such as there were, withdrew such claims as it had against the municipal, provincial, or insular government or the United States government for alleged damage sustained during the insurrection.

Fourth. The concession is a perpetual one, but the government is at liberty to grant franchises for competing lines any time. Taxation is fixed at the rate of 1-2 of 1 per cent, for thirty years; 1 1-2 per cent for fifty years, and thereafter to be fixed by the government. The company also had the right of free entry for materials. Speyer & Co. then transferred its concession to the Manila Railway company which had been organized under the laws of New Jeresy.

In order that the work might be properly supervised the position of supervising railroad expert was created at a salary of $12,000 a year. F. A. Molitor, a well known railroad man of the United States, was appointed to the post, but he held it only for a year, resigning because of serious differences between him and the Philippine Railroad company over the matter of grades in which the governor general sustained the railroad people. Mr. Molitor returned to the United States in due time and was succeeded by Loomis J. Goodale, who assumed his position March 7, 1907, and is still discharging the duties of the office.

In Luzon, the Manila Railroad company, owner of the Manila-Dagupan line, pushed its work at once. On June 30, 1907, 211 miles of surveys had been completed, 184 miles submitted for approval and approved by the governor general, 80 miles of grading and 23 miles of track laid, and 16 miles of new road opened for operation. The location provided by law for railroads in the provinces of Albay, Ambos Camarines, and southern Luzon was found to be impracticable, as the line from Ligao to Tabaco involved too expensive construction, consequently the company was permitted to eliminate the expensive part of that line and make connection on the main line with Tabaco from Legaspi The rich hemp regions adjoining Tabaco and Ligao were later reached by short branches.

June 20.—Up very by times, as ever on ships, albeit I do always vow to sleep for many hours. To the station in St. Botolphe's Towne for breakfast and marveled how that it should take 20 minutes to boyle eggs that I do ask to have boyled 11-2 minutes and reading in the prints while waiting of the noisome condition of the prison at Ossining, which is a horrendous outrage, and I know that matters at Auburn are but little better. I pray I may never be committed to any prison, yet, Heaven help me, do often feel like doing what might incarcerate me. By Mr. Molier's train to Scituate and saw there many friends and played at tennis all the afternoon and R. Gillmore and I did trounce Harry Haynes and W. Irwin three setts and then I did beat W. Irwin and then Walter Haynes and felt great content to be in a place where every player was not more skilful than I. Yet W. Haynes did say he was not in practice, but W. Irwin made no excuse at all, wherefore I do love to play with him. To dinner, and Florence baked the best strawberry pasty I had tasted this year, and, so, at nine o'clock, to-bed.

21.—Up and to the village and saw Mr. Frye the postmaster and other friends, but distrait over the wet weather. All the morning in discourse on this and that with Mistress Inez and reading B. Tarkington's "Talleyrand Penrod," the noblest tayle of his since "Cherry." Plunged this afternoon into the great ocean, which is yet too cold to my liking, but, otherwise, is little old last year's ocean, as Bunker Bean might say. Saw this day Mistress Edna Merwin, who methought to look better than ever, and Sam, too, who told me his tennis-game hath improved, which I am glad of.

22.—To C. Copeland's and found him to look very well, considering his Age. Played at tennis in the afternoon upon his court, with great skill and success. Thence to the train for home, that I might be at work again on the morrow morn, albeit I had liefer to do no more labour for a month or two. Yet must I do my stint, lest my stipend cease.

When playing lawn tennis great care should be taken not to be overcome by the heat. Take a little rest occasionally by lying in the grass.—From the patent inside of a New Jersey paper.

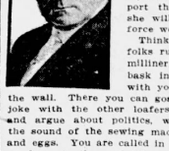
Ho! For the Bay of Shimal

By DR. FRANK CRANE.
(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Come, sisters, let us go to the Bay of Shima, on the Pacific coast of Japan. Why bother about England and the United States, where males are tyrants and women voteless? Over yonder the women do all the work, which consists in diving for pearls, while the men loaf.



The women spend ten hours daily in the water, earning a living. The men sit around and smoke.

I have always wanted to have my wife go into business and support the family. Unfortunately, she will not do it. I must perforce work for a living.

Think of having your women folks run a boarding house or a millinery shop, while you just bask in the sun, out in front, with your chair tilted up against the wall. There you can gossip with your neighbors, joke with the other loafers, note the pretty girls, and argue about politics, while from within comes the sound of the sewing machine or the odor of ham and eggs. You are called in to eat. After dinner you go down to the postoffice and argue some more. Is it not an ideal existence? Can you wonder that we favor women's rights?

And then have you ever noticed the rare devotion a wife pays to a shiftless, no-account, and brutal husband? It is wonderful. No decent, hard-working man can hope for the Newfoundland doglike affection which the drunken loafer receives from his wife.

I knew a little dressmaker once who had as trifling a lout for a husband as you could find in a day's journey. She worked her fingers to the bone for him. She labored twenty-five hours a day for him. She fed him, clothed him, coddled him, and shielded him. Every once in a while he would playfully kick her, or pinch her black and blue. Once he plastered a piece of pumpkin pie which did not suit him all over her face. But that was merely his way. George was so funny. And then, you know, he wasn't very well. He usually had some disease up his sleeve in case he was threatened with a job. And how she loved him!

In primeval days men did no work. They hunted and rested. Their business was killing. The women tilled the fields and ground the corn. Alas, those good old times are no more. We live in a decadent era when men are presumed to labor and women to play bridge. As a consequence we are not loved with that fierce emotion women in early ages bestowed upon us.

Therefore, let us go to the Bay of Shima and set up our hut, lie in the warm sands, and watch the women dive for pearls. When they grow tired of that we can make them go up to the house and get us something to eat.

Then, brethren, we shall be loved.

GETTYSBURG

By Prof. Joseph T. Derry

Some of the Confederate veterans object to going to Gettysburg, because so many regard that battlefield celebration as a kind of glorification of the defeat of the south.

There are some of us, however, who do not take that view, and I am one of them. Gettysburg, so far as the fighting went, was a drawn battle. On the first day victory perched upon the southern banner. We had a little the best of the doubtful fighting on the second day. On the third day Pickett pierced the Federal line, but could not hold the point gained, because the supporting divisions had not been able to go in with him.

The Federal army had been so shaken that it was in no condition to follow up Pickett's repulse by a counter charge.

The Union commanders were perfectly satisfied to let Lee alone and allowed him to retire at leisure. Even when the Confederate army could not cross the Potomac on account of the swollen condition of that river, when Meade came up and found Lee ready and willing to receive him, he did not attack, but fortified his own lines, for fear that Lee might attack him. Then he very politely sat down and waited until the Potomac subsided and allowed Lee's army to cross.

After the return to Virginia of Lee, so little fear of what Meade could do to him that he did not hesitate to send Longstreet with half of his corps to Georgia to help win the great victory of Chickamauga, whose fruits, if promptly reaped, would have completely neutralized Vicksburg and would do all that we had lost in the west. As it was, the Federal government was so alarmed that it called Grant and Sherman from Mississippi and two corps from Meade's army to rescue the army that had been defeated at Chickamauga and was now beleaguered in Chattanooga. Lee then advanced against Meade, who retreated nearly 100 miles.

What? The victors of Gettysburg retreated before the advance of the Confederates, whom they claimed to have decisively defeated at Gettysburg? That is what they did.

The only effort that Meade made for another advance against Richmond until May, 1864, was his Mine Run fiasco.

The Gettysburg campaign kept back the tide of invasion in Virginia longer than any other campaign except that of the first Manassas.

If was glory enough for the north to have rolled back at Gettysburg the high tide of southern victory, which threatened to dictate peace from Philadelphia. But notwithstanding their success on the third day of the battle, they could show no such brilliant exploits as the charge of Gordon's brigade on the first day or the charges of the brigades of Wright, Hays and Hoke and of Edward Johnson's division on the second day, and of what northern writers are fond of calling "Pickett's immortal charge," on the third day.

It was not Gettysburg that turned the tide against us, but Vicksburg and Chattanooga and Atlanta.

There is no battle of the war so appropriate for a peace celebration as that of Gettysburg, where each army won such nearly equal honors.

JOSEPH T. DERRY.

Concerning Trousers

(New York Sun.)

A despatch to the Sun says that the monks at St. Michael's monastery at Mtskop, in the Caucasus, abandoned their tools and left the monastery because their request for a supply of trousers was refused. Their superior, Father Ambrosio, had held that trousers are an unnecessary luxury.

If Dean Swift were alive this story could be properly handled. Suffice it to say that so far as our limited knowledge goes this is the first time in the history of literature that trousers have been described as an unnecessary luxury. Not even George Meredith ever had the temerity to "spring" a phrase equal to that. Had good Father Ambrosio said that while trousers may be a necessary necessity in certain fashionable quarters, still within the confines of the monastery they come to be regarded as an uncomfortable luxury, few would take issue with him. Indeed, we find that Pococke has said of the east: "The youth and people of fashion, when in the country, wear trousers, with shoes and stockings."

Note the qualifying phrase, "when in the country." Thus the evidence of history confirms the opinion of Father Ambrosio, who held merely that trousers were for people of fashion and not necessary for industrious folk intent on their business. Maybe these poor secluded monks once saw some "movies" of the Bronx or Hyde Park, and the sight of the dandies sporting about like goldfish in these metropolitan showcases made a lasting impression upon the forbidden fancies of these lonely men. Who knows? On the whole we think dear Father Ambrosio has carried the tenets of ascetism too far.

What does Chicago think of this ruling on what it loves to call "pants?"

BOTH SIDES ARE READY FOR TRIAL OF FRANK

Few Developments Expected Between Now and July 28, Conley Is Grilled

The statements made by Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and by Reuben R. Arnold and Luther Z. Rosser, the counsel for the defense before the postponement of the trial of Leo M. Frank from June 30, the date set by the solicitor, to July 28, indicate very strongly that neither side expects further developments of importance in the investigation.

Mr. Dorsey told the court that his case was complete and that he was ready for trial. All of the statements by Attorneys Arnold and Rosser indicate that they also have completed the preparation of the defense and are ready for the court fight.

One of the most interesting of the statements made by counsel was that of Mr. Arnold, who said that it would take two weeks to try the case, showing that the defense will have many witnesses, and will come to court prepared to fight every inch in the case.

The action of the defense in demanding through subpoenas duces tecum practically all of the affidavits of importance which have been made the detectives during the Phagan investigation seems to bear out the theory published in The Journal that the defense will consist of the corroboration of Frank's story as told at the inquest by a number of witnesses, and of an effort to establish, largely by the detectives themselves, the thory that the real slayer James Conley is guilty of the crime with which Frank is charged.

It is certain that Conley's story will be attacked through his many varying affidavits, and much evidence to assist Frank will be brought out through the city detectives, who charge him with the crime.

The substance of all of the affidavits demanded by the defense is known. Conley's varying affidavits have long formed one of the sensations of the case. Miss Grace Hix, it will be remembered, identified Mary Phagan's body, while Miss Monteen Stoyer declares that she came to the pencial factory on the date of the tragedy at 12:05 o'clock and found no one in the office, not even Frank, who had testified that he was there at that hour.

W. M. Matthews, whose affidavit is also wanted, is a street car motorman working on the English avenue line. He states that a girl, whom he afterwards learned was Mary Phagan, boarded his car near Bellwood avenue on the date of the tragedy, and that she left it about 12:10 o'clock at Broad and Hunter streets.

The statement of the motorman will be valuable to the defense for the reason that the little newsboy, who swears he rode to the city with Mary Phagan the day she met her death, states that she got off the car at Forsyth street and went over the viaduct, while he went under it to get some papers.

Jim Conley, the negro sweeper, is said to have gone through another grilling at police headquarters. Detectives Starnes and Campbell having shortly before noon Tuesday conferred for a long time with him in a cell at police headquarters.

It is said that Conley has in no way changed the story he told when his last affidavit was signed.

Apparently the detectives are not yet satisfied with the story told by Conley as again Wednesday morning the negro was put on the grill by officers, who visited his cell at headquarters. Chief of Police J. L. Beavers, when questioned as to the reason of the sudden determination of the detectives to resume the examination of the negro, stated that no special significance was to be attached to the action.

"We have not yet been able to break down the negro's story," the official said, "nor have we found witnesses, who can prove that it is incorrect."

It is said that the questioning of the negro has been resumed at the instance of Solicitor Dorsey, who desires that the detectives examine the negro on every point, regardless of how insignificant it may seem.

The officials deny that anything has occurred to change their theory of the case.

A story published under a Washington date line Wednesday stated that Senator Hoke Smith has denied that an effort has been made to interest him in the Frank defense.

Luther Z. Rosser when asked to comment on the report said that he had nothing to say except that the matter had been correctly stated by the senator.

It was learned definitely Wednesday that there will be no effort to thrash out the matter of subpenas duces tecum served to state officers to produce many affidavits made in the Phagan investigation, when court meets Monday.

The matter will not come up until the actual trial of Frank is entered into. While the subpenas ordered the affidavits produced on June 30 the documents read "or any other time that the case of the state against Frank may be tried in the superior court."

contained in the company's proposal now pending in council.

Attorney Goree also undertook to show, if he understood that the Destructor company last fall offered a very large sum of money to the Central Bank and Trust corporation to finance the city's "moral obligation." To this end Attorney Goree had subpoenas duces tecum issued for officials of the corporation, including Asa G. Candler and John S. Owens. Mr. Candler is out of the city. Mr. Owens was not present at the interrogatories. It developed that the Destructor company made no trade of this nature with the corporation.

"I presume," said Attorney Samuel N. Evins Wednesday, "that Mr. Goree plans to get us cited for contempt in continuing work on the plant. If we were continuing under the old contract, there might be some ground for a contempt railing. But we are not. We are continuing under a special resolution of council authorizing us to continue."

SHOT A MAN, BUT HIS VICTIM WON'T PROSECUTE

"Hub" Talley Arrested, Therefore, by Recorder's Order, to Answer for "Shooting"

H. W. (Hub) Tally, who shot and seriously wounded G. W. Blackstock several weeks ago, was arrested on a charge of discharging firearms in the city limits, by city policemen Tuesday evening. He will be tried in recorder's court Wednesday.

Tally was taken into custody at the suggestion of Recorder Nash R. Broyles. The latter thought that a city law as well as a state statute had been broken when Tally fired on his enemy.

It is said that Blackstock does not intend to prosecute his assailant on an "attempt to murder" charge in the higher courts, and that the only punishment to Tally will have to come through the recorder's court.

JOHN S. OWENS WILL RUN FOR 8TH WARD ALDERMAN

Vice President of Central Bank and Trust Corp. Aspires to Succeed Van Dyke

John S. Owens, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust corporation, on Wednesday announced that he will be a candidate for alderman in the eighth ward to succeed Dr. A. H. Van Dyke.

The latter's term expires on January 1, 1914, and his successor will be nominated in the municipal primary in the fall. Candidates for aldermen are voted on by the whole city in the primary, which is different from candidates for council, who are only voted on by their respective wards.

As W. A. Hancock, formerly a councilman and an alderman from the seventh ward, now a resident of the eighth ward, has virtually announced as a candidate to succeed Alderman Van Dyke there will in all probability be a contest between him and Mr. Owens.

In addition to his connection with the Central bank, Mr. Owens has other large business interests. He deals quite extensively in real estate, and is connected with several flourishing companies. He is a successful business man, and his friends predict that he will make a strong race for the position to which he aspires.

ATLANTA BANKERS GIVE WILSON HIS FINEST ASSURANCE

pose of the bill is to take away from New York the control of the credits of the entire country. Therefore New York may be expected to fight.

"To win away from New York the support of the bankers of the rest of the country is the task of the administration, as the president views it. There is no doubt he is disappointed that the bankers make this necessary. He had believed they would welcome emancipation from the domination of Wall street but this does not appear to be the case, except in instances. In certain of the daily papers of New York they are running a heavy campaign against the bill, also. They are printing statements from bankers in different sections of the country denouncing the currency bill and predicting universal contraction of credits throughout the country if the bill becomes a law.

APPEALS TO SELF INTEREST.

"But the friends of the administration have found one method of breaking down this line of attack. This is by an appeal to the self interest of the different cities entertaining an ambition to become one of the regional headquarters provided for in the bill. Prominent citizens supporting the administration are being called to Washington or at least it looks as if they were being called here, since they are here. These people are informed of the probable location of the different regional divisions, and of the cities likely to contest for the distinction of being headquarters. These prominent citizens hasten to wire their bankers and clearing house associations to get behind the bill.

ATLANTA TAKES FIRST STEP.

"The very first to take this step is the clearing house association of Atlanta. Atlanta wants to be the financial capital of the southeastern portion of the United States. The man who came here from Atlanta was James R. Gray, the owner of The Atlanta Journal, an administration newspaper. He wired the Atlanta Clearing House association the situation and the bankers in that clearing house, though widely understood to be fighting the bill, changed form instantly and adopted resolutions placing their support behind the measure.

"It is anticipated that the example of Atlanta will be followed with generous energy as soon as the bankers in the different prospective centers permit the Atlanta idea to percolate through their understanding.

"But in the meantime the reactionaries of the south have to be reckoned with. If they set out to talk the bill to death it may result in the biggest and longest fight ever conducted in the national capital. For it will be a fight between the entrenched money power of the country and an innovation intended to shear money of much of its power by taking away its concentration. It may even result in a rock bottom split of both the old parties, and entirely new alignment. For it will be the fight of all fights between the reactionary and the progressive forces of the United States."

President Wilson Willing To Reinsert Bond Clause

WASHINGTON, June 25.—President Wilson said today he would not object to reinserting in the currency bill the original provision to refund $713,000,000 2 per cent. bonds securing national bank notes into 3 per cent bonds without the circulation privileges. The president said if the currency committee thought it desirable he would agree.

As special committee from the American Bankers' association will confer today with the president, Secretary McAdoo and Chairmen Owen and Glass, of the senate and house currency committees. The bankers want to abolish the bond securing currency. Tonight the president is scheduled to confer at the White House with the Democratic members of the senate currency committee.

Representative Henry, of Texas, who recently made a speech proposing that the money trust inquiry be renewed, had a conference today with the president. Mr. Henry would not discuss his visit but White House officials said he and the president had reached an understanding on the currency question.

A Sale of Brass Wares
In Which Jardinieres, Window Boxes, Fern Dishes, Andirons and Novelties Are Priced at Half and Less

There is always a place in a well regulated household for an artistic piece of brass ware, or, perhaps we should say, for another piece of brass ware.

Now is your time to secure another piece at a price never more than half, and very often less than half.

It is our June disposal, which alone accounts for such prices.

The brass wares are elegant; usually those heavy, hand-wrought pieces that lend distinction and grace wherever they are placed—such, too, as seldom find their way into such a sale. But all merchandise, be it ever so artistic and beautiful, is only merchandise at Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.'s, and so must be disposed of in good season.

This time it is brass wares.

The sale gets under way with the opening of the store at eight o'clock.

GOV. JOSEPH M. BROWN ATTACKS LABOR IN HIS MESSAGE

EXECUTIVE PLEADS FOR A COMPULSORY ARBITRATION LAW

Governor Joseph M. Brown Declares "A Labor Union Holds Itself as Being Higher Than the Law"

MAKES REFERENCE TO GEORGIA RAILROAD STRIKE

Other Recommendations Ask for Amendment to Registration Law and Reduction of Railroad Commission

Nearly one-half of Governor Joseph M. Brown's farewell message to the Georgia legislature, read today in both houses, is devoted to a plea for the enactment of laws providing compulsory arbitration of differences between capital and labor.

Arguing in favor of such legislation, Governor Brown severely criticises labor unions, which he says form the "most widespread and aggressively exacting trust in America," "that the labor union holds itself as being higher than the law," and "that it is impossible for all other classes to concede that the members of labor unions have any preferential privileges suggesting, if not actually applying, the process of anarchy when they—the masses—are required to submit to the process of law."

Governor Brown predicates his recommendation for compulsory arbitration upon the Georgia railroad strike and the lessons afforded by that strike, both of which occurred last fall. He points out that these two corporations were chartered by the state to afford a public service to its people and declares that "so long, therefore, as either of these companies attempts to perform the duty it assumed for the state it undoubtedly obligation to use extreme force, if necessary, to protect it in thus serving the public."

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS.

Other recommendations made by the retiring governor were:

An amendment to the registration law so that a voter may register thirty days before an election instead of six months, as at present.

Creation of the office of commissioner of public highways.

Action looking to the double tracking of the main lines of the leading railroads in the state.

Creation of the office of state auditor.

Appointment of a joint committee to work out plans for a farm credit system that will enable farmers to obtain money at low rates of interest.

A law providing for the levying of an inheritance tax.

That county officers who collect near-beer taxes be given proper compensation and that penalties be provided for failure to make prompt payment.

An increase in the number of state bank examiners.

A law requiring the registration of vital statistics and making it the duty of physicians to report all births and deaths coming under their purview.

That the office of compiler of colonial records be not abolished until such time as a complete history of the state, since the foundation of the colony of Georgia by Oglethorpe, is written.

Provision for a reproduction of the Great Seal of the State.

That the prison commission be empowered and required to inspect jails and that the quarters occupied by female prisoners be inspected by women.

TRIALS AND CHARGES.

That in all trials for capital offenses the judge be required to furnish a written copy of his charge to the foreman of the jury.

That expenses incurred by the governor while in attendance upon the annual governor's conference be paid by the state from the contingent fund.

And in this connection I will call your attention to the fact that a railroad building in Georgia for the past few years has not kept pace with the development of other general properties, as is shown by the following official figures:

Total miles of single track railroads in Georgia in 1905..$ 6424.46
Total miles of single track railroads in Georgia in 1912 ..... 7166.36

Percentage of increase, 11.

Aggregate value of all property in 1905 ..... $577,840,282

Aggregate value of all property in 1912 ..... $42,358,342

Percentage of increase, 45.7.

STATE AUDITOR.

I respectfully call your attention to the great need of an up-to-date system of auditing accounts, and recommend that you establish the office of state auditor with such clerical force as is found needful. I am confident that an auditing department with the authority to supervise all expenditures, would save many times its cost each year.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM.

The farm credit system which has wrought such extraordinary results for good to the dwellers upon the farms in Germany and some other European countries has attracted wide attention within the past twelve months in this country.

I attended a conference of the governors at the White House, which was called by President Taft, in December, 1912, for the purpose of discussing this system. Experts appointed by the United States government and by the governors of some of the states are now investigating this subject in foreign countries. Georgia is represented in this investigation.

That our people may have direct information upon this subject, I recommend that your honorable bodies appoint a joint committee to whom shall be added about three or five other citizens of Georgia to be named by the governor, for the purpose of securing and placing before our people the most available plan of securing for our farmers at the lowest rate of interest such money as they may need for the conduct of their affairs.

When we realize that in Germany a farmer can borrow money at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent, whereas in Georgia the gross rate paid runs from 12 per cent, sometimes to even 20 per cent, the importance of this subject can be readily realized as being paramount.

INHERITANCE TAX.

I desire to here repeat the suggestion I made to your predecessors in 1909, viz.:

Over three-fourths of the states now have laws providing for an inheritance tax. A proposition to impose a national inheritance tax has lately been presented to congress and practically the only argument brought against the measure was to the effect that inheritances were properly subjects for state taxation, and that a national tax was the same now imposed such a tax.

The policy of modern government is opposed to the accumulation of vast estates, so hedged about by legal technicalities and safe-guards as to escape their equitable burden of taxation. In the enlightened view of the leading publicists and consmists of our time, no sound reason exists why inheritances should not be subject to taxation.

NEAR BEER TAX.

The law prviding or the collection of a license tax for the sale of near beer is one that has the payment of the tax has been delayed or evaded by very many dealers.

To prevent excuses for delay in paying this tax in future, I recommend that you place the duty of its collection upon some of the county officers with proper compensation therefor and also provide adequate penalties for failure to make prompt payment.

BANK EXAMINERS

The great increase in the number of state banks has rendered it physically impossible for two examiners to adequately perform the work required by law.

Under the present system two examiners are required to correctly check the accounts of almost 700 banks semi-annually within this state. Hence, through no physical fault of the bank examiners, it is impossible for one who made their deposits in state banks have no assurance that all the banks are in a sound condition. It is therefore, imperatively necessary that the number of bank examiners be sufficiently increased to meet the demands for the proper protection of those who place their money in state banks.

The very large increase in the number of state banks is a corresponding demands an increase in the number of examiners.

VITAL STATISTICS.

Nothing is of more importance to a state than the preservation of good health for its inhabitants. The vital statistics of Georgia are so incomplete as really furnish us with no reliable information. I, therefore, recommend the enactment of laws requiring physicians to report all births and deaths coming under their purview. The birth statistics, of course, should show sex and race, the death statistics should show the disease, or complaint, of which each person died.

If these statistics were kept fully and definitely, we could within a few years ascertain what diseases were most prevalent in the various counties of the state, and in that way could be guilded in taking steps toward alleviating the trouble to some extent. For example, if in one county there was a great proportion of deaths from malarial fever, and in another from pneumonia, or bronchial troubles, the concentrated efforts of the state could be directed toward at least a partial removal of the cause, or the extension of knowledge among the local populations for handling the troubles most prevalent in their localities.

In this connection I call your especial attention to those portions of the report of the commissioner of agriculture which bear upon the shipment of tuberculous cattle into this state and also to the inspections of dairies and butchers' establishments.

No better use could be made of the surplus income of that department, after paying $10,000 each to the district agricultural schools and the expenses of the department, than to provide for extension of inspections suggested by the commissioner of foods of various kinds and the increased expense needed for the laboratory. These matters are of excesative importance in protecting the health and lives of the people.

HISTORICAL RECORDS.

Work on the colonial records and on that portion of the records which include the rosters of Georgia troops during the years 1861-65 is being well done; but I respectfully suggest that Georgia has much history not covered by the two periods indicated.

The state should see that her history from the foundation of the colony of Georgia by Oglethorpe to the present time is officially written. Her people are entitled to know what has been done by Georgians throughout the whole period of the state's history. Georgia is amply able to perpetuate her records in definite form. Hence, I recommend that the office of compiler of colonial records be perpetuated for such length of time as will insure the proper writing of the state's history from the date reached by the present compilation until the date when the work shall have reached the then contemporary period. The expense of future work can be met by the net amount received from the sale of such books when published, also from the acts of the legislature from other state books as you may see fit to include.

That the people of Geirgia may have facilities for acquainting themselves properly with the history of the state, I respectfully recommend that sets of these historic volumes be deposited in the ordinary's office or other proper office in the court house of each county of the state.

I know of no better mode of arousing state pride in the youth and to promote the patriotism of the adult population than to put in reach of all of them the facilities for learning the achievements of Georgians and the power and glory of our state.

GREAT SEAL OF STATE.

It is a matter of public note that the great seal of the state has come to become so worn by use that its impression is now practically indistinguishable. The association and memory as is this great symbol of Georgia's sovereignty, common sense would dictate that a reproduction of it be made, which would enable all of the great documents of this state to be properly stamped. I therefore, recommend that your honorable bodies take steps to effect the above purpose.

PRISON COMMISSION.

I would suggest that the prison commission be given authority and directed to inspect jails. It is more important that persons detained merely for trial be properly cared for than those already convicted of crime be treated well.

Many good women have urged me to advocate the enactment of a law providing for the inspection by women of those quarters occupied by female prisoners. I deem the suggestion a good one and will be pleased to join with the demands of actual propriety and humanity, and as such commend it to you.

In this connection I will state that it has been proposed in some circles to restore the practice of whipping female convicts in order to maintain discipline. I respectfully suggest that such a return to a practice semi-barbarous in its nature would not be in keeping with the enlightened spirit of our people and times.

The point has been raised in the public press and in some other circles that the state ought to allow moderate wages to convicts in the penitentiary, such wages to be paid to the families of these convicts whose protector and provider the state holds in confinement. I scarcely think that we are ready to take such a step; but in the event it be seriously considered, I respectfully suggest that, inasmuch as the convict is immured because of his taking the life of another, or of some damage done to others, if wages be allowed by the state they should be paid mostly, if not entirely, to the family whom the criminal has deprived of its protector and supporter.

CHARGE TO JURIES IN CAPITAL CASES.

Experience has shown that in capital cases trial juries from time to time have requested the presiding judge to charge them on certain points where their memory had failed to retain the instructions in his charge. I respectfully suggest that it be regarded that in all capital cases the presiding judge shall, after reading his charge to the jury, hand a copy of it to the foreman, to be taken into the jury room for consideration in their deliberations.

SUSPENDING SENTENCES BY TRIAL JUDGES.

It is a known fact that a number of the trial judges of this state, after convicting persons, suspend sentence in conformity with the law and then suspend them, such suspension to last during the pleasure of the judge. Although this procedure by these judges has been declared unlawful by the supreme court, yet the practice is persisted in by a few judges and this practice is in itself against public policy, but undoubtedly it should be in conformity with the law if it is to be continued. Hence, I recommend that your honorable bodies enact such legislation upon this subject as your wisdom suggests.

GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE.

As is well known, the governors of the various states have, for the purpose, annually hold a conference for mutual interchange o fthought and with the idea of unifying, as nearly as may be made practicable, the laws which similarly affect in their application the people of all the states. Their suggestions to the legislative bodies are for the general interchange of thought may ultimately work out great good.

It is the practice of most of the states to pay the expenses of their executive officers when in attendance upon these annual conferences, also for printing and otherwise preparing the minutes of their meetings, and other expenses incidental thereto.

The state of Georgia has no provision in law for this expenditure, hence, the payment must come from the governor individually. I respectfully suggest the enactment of a statute authorizing these expenses to be paid from the contingent fund of the state, inasmuch as Georgia scarcely expects her governor to fail to attend these annual conferences.

I also suggest that the governor be authorized to pay this state's quota for printing the minutes of the meeting of the conference in Richmond, Va., during December, 1912.

DISTRICT AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL SCHOOLS.

The district agricultural and mechanical schools having been taken into the university system of the state, I respectfully suggest that no co-operative relationship between the State university, through the State College of Agriculture, and the above district schools be made closer than they have heretofore been. To this end I suggest that the board of trustees of the State College of Agriculture appoint at least one member from its board of trustees to be an ex-officio member of the board of trustees of the district agricultural and mechanical school in his congressional district, whereby each of said district schools will have thereon one trustee of the State College of Agriculture. Such member should be required to attend the annual commencement exercises of the district school to which he is assigned and should have full privilege and authority to act with the board of trustees of the district school at that and all other meetings of the said district school, and should make to the trustees of the State College of Agriculture, after said commencement exercises, a full report of the conditions, progress, etc., of the said district agricultural and mechanical schools.

The board of trustees of the State College of Agriculture should also be clothed with power to exercise such authority over the district schools as will cause them to conform to a general plan.

STATE UNIVERSITY.

The demands of modern civilization are trending toward the greatest development of the human mind. That state which trains the brains of its young manhood and womanhood to the exercise of the highest powers is the state which by natural process takes and holds the leadership over her civic sisters. The state's highest mental faculties of a people have greater weight in the control of world powers than the broadest acres or fattest hogs. Genius makes conquests more abiding than are made by guns, and the strength in the trained brains of a people holds greater security than strength in the most elaborately constructed forts.

And while you are appropriating money and enacting laws for the more efficient and extended cultivation of the soil of our state, hold ever in mind that the cultivation of mind will bring the greatest crops and choicest fruits is the cultivation of the minds of her youth. Hence, I urge you to build up as rapidly as the Georgia resources will admit the State university which our forefathers created and which, with its branch colleges and other high educational institutions, can develop the mental powers of our young people of both sexes from the beginning of the great state abreast of her most ambitious rivals.

Before passing from this subject I cannot refrain from the statement that I champion the University of Georgia as its democracy. From a close observation of its affairs For the past four years, I am prepared to assert with pride that the son of the poorest parents in the state has equal consideration by the faculty with the son of the richest. Merit and application open the gates of opportunity to all alike, and it is especially pleasing to note that the citizens of Athens extend impartial kindness to all the students regardless of rank or wealth. The state, therefore, has a selfish interest, and pardonably so, in every dollar she appropriates to maintain to highest efficiency this, her great brain-trainer.

SCHOOL OF TECHNOLOGY, ETC.

It is impossible to measure the value to the state of the School of Technology. The high standard which its graduates have won during its early days, the technical development of the commonwealth from the mountains to the seaboard. The modern demands for education of this character in the architectural and mechanical development of our people are so imperative that we should not let this great institution of learning lose aught of the high grade of efficiency now characterizing it.

It is undoubtedly true that this school has lost several of its leading instructors by reason of the inadequate compensation received. I therefore, urge you to appropriate the sum of ten thousand dollars as an addition to the annual appropriation made for said school, making same immediately available.

I also recommend the addition of $7,500 each to the annual maintenance funds of the Georgia Normal School and the Georgia Normal and Industrial school.

PAYMENT OF SCHOOL TEACHERS.

In my annual message to your predecessors last year I stated that the condition of the treasury had permitted the payment of but 10 per cent of the amount due for expenses of the common schools. I regret to report that, the appropriations have been increased in a greater proportion than the state's income, it has been impossible to pay any amount as yet of the common school appropriation for this year.

During the past three months we have made inquiry into the question of the payment of teachers, that is, we have sought to learn the truth of conditions as they are.

The result of the investigation proves that the arrears will be largely exaggerated by those who have decried it.

Briefly, we found that approximately one-third of all the teachers in the public schools would be in the end be forced to wait from two to twelve months for their pay, or, in lieu of waiting, had to discount their claims at from 8 to 25 per cent.

A great proportion of those who received prompt payments were paid with funds borrowed by local boards of education, who were required to pay from 6 to 12 per cent for the money.

Concretely, we estimate from the reports received that advances made to boards or teachers during 1912 amounted to approximately $2,000,000, and that these advances cost at least $75,000 in interest or discount.

Thus, it is clear that the waste in money due to delayed remittances from the state is great, but there must be an equal loss in efficiency resulting from the indifference fostered by the faulty and difficult method or financing the schools.

With $1,000,000 more revenue available during the spring and summer months the state would be able to make prompt monthly remittances to the school systems, and thus would practically overcome the difficulties now labored under, and growing worse.

Therefore, I urge upon you the necessity for taking such steps as will enable the executive office to make prompt monthly payments as due on the appropriation to the public schools.

The information gathered as the result of the investigation above referred to is on file in the executive office subject to your wishes.

ECONOMY IN APPROPRIATIONS.

While there has been a gratifying increase in the taxable valuations of the property in the state, such has been the rate for expense to maintain schools and other educational institutions and the civil list receipts more than the present income of the state. I, therefore, urge your honorable bodies to exercise great discernment and care in the matter of appropriating the public money; and that, so far as can be made practicable without militating against the actual needs of the different institutions and branches of the government, you exercise the strictest economy.

LAWLESS ELEMENT IN CERTAIN COUNTIES.

Within the past few months certain lawless persons have posted notices in Forsyth, Dawson, Dade and other counties, warning all negroes to move from those counties under penalty of destruction of their property. A number of such threatened outrages have been perpetrated through the dynamiting of houses, barns and a country store.

I am reliably informed that quite a number of farms in Forsyth county have been rendered valueless as the result of a lack of labor, which has fled before these threats. The state cannot tolerate such a condition as this, and should manifest even a just resentment against lawless individuals to take the shape of wholesale intimidation of labor necessary for the conduct of the various industrial enterprises. There is no reason why farms should lose their productive power and why the white women of the state should be driven to the cook stoves and wash pots simply because certain people blindly strike down all of one class in retaliation for the nefarious deeds of individuals in that class. The application of the law is to the individual who violates it, and all who are law-abiding are entitled to and must have the protection of the law.

I, therefore, recommend the enactment of a statute which will meet the situation above indicated, and punish all who would impose the terrors of lawless rule. The penalty for dynamiting or burning residences should be fixed at $500 for each offense, and wrecking of cars or tracks, not greater than $200 per person, should be authorized for the arrest, with proof sufficient, of any person or persons writing threatening notices or using other measures or intimidating people and driving them from their homes.

RAILROAD COMMISSION.

Unnecessary offices which levy additional taxes upon the people should be abolished. It is against public policy to maintain sinecures. I therefore respectfully recommend to your honorable bodies the reduction of the membership of the railroad commission from five to three members.

When it is considered that only one member of the five is required by law to devote his entire time to the service of the office, and that the larger number of members makes that body cumbersome, as well as needlessly expensive, it is patent that it is to the state's interest to reduce the number of commissioners, and also to dispense with the office of special attorney for the railroad commission.

I will add that the interstate commerce commission has assumed the authority to raise intra-state rates when it seems that these rates indirectly affect interstate rates. The lower courts have upheld that commission in this action. The supreme court of the United States has practically upheld this position in a recent decision, hence it would appear that a blow has been struck the railroad commissions of the states. In such event it would clearly be a waste of the people's money to maintain as many as five members on this commission for the purpose mainly of supervising the occasional buildingn of depots and the collection of statistical information.

Furthermore, it is well known that the number of members of this commission was increased in 1907 for the purpose of installing what were termed "port rates." Yet, although the advocates of "port rates" have been in the majority on the commission from September, 1907, to June, 1909, and from November, 1911, to this date, there has been no effort made by the commission to level proportionate "port rates." Hence, as "port rates" have been proven to be a campaign theory, which it is impracticable to make effective, it is manifestly contrary to the public interest to maintain five members on this board at the expense of the tax payers.

CRIMINAL LAWS.

Inasmuch as our penal laws have undergone little change during the past half century, it might be timely for you to make inquiry looking to amendments necessitated by chanced conditions and modern developments.

I wish to direct your attention to one important change that is needed. In misdemeanor cases where prison penalties with alternative fines are imposed leave should be given for payment of the fine, or the pro rata portion of the fine due, at any time after the completion of the prison or chaingang sentence. In most court jurisdictions it is held that once the fine alternative is rejected, and the time for accepting it elapsed, the fine cannot be paid except by commutation from this office. In no case will they pay the fine pro rata, deducting, as they do in cities, for the period of time served by the prisoner.

This is manifestly unjust, amounting to a special penalty on poverty and misfortune. A great many persons are unable to raise the amount of the alternative fine when it is imposed upon them, but later do raise it, or a sufficient amount, allowing for the time served to meet the intent of the sentence imposed. The only way they can get relief is by coming to the executive office with applications for clemency, which puts them to unnecessary expense and to effect intrastate rates. The lower courts have upheld that commission in this action. The supreme court of the United States has practically upheld this position in a recent decision, hence it would appear that a blow has been struck the railroad commissions of the states. In such event it would clearly be a waste of the people's money to maintain as many as five members on this commission for the purpose mainly of supervising the occasional buildingn of depots and the collection of statistical information.

LABOR UNION MOST EXACTING TRUST IN AMERICA, HE SAYS

Georgia a decree against the copper companies operating in what is known as the Ducktown region in Tennessee. The fumes arising from the operation of the copper mines have been doing great damage to growing crops of citizens living in Fannin and other Georgia counties. This state, being willing to allow owners of the mines to continue the development of their property if our citizens were protected against damage, has allowed the copper companies time for perfecting appliances for taking care of the sulphur fumes. This is reached in the manufacture of enormous amounts of sulphuric acid from the copper fumes.

But as the damage is still being done to some extent, and as the companies, the Tennessee Copper company, has offered to place in the hands of the state a sum approximating $115,000 finally for the purpose of indemnifying those Georgia citizens who are damaged each annual flood to be available until their improved appliances are completed.

I respectfully suggest, therefore, that you authorize the governor to make this agreement with the Tennessee Copper company, and require a similar agreement to be made with the other company or companies to the end that our citizens be protected from damages which are occurring during the growing season to crops each year.

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION NECESSARY.

During the fall of last year there occurred a strike by the employes of the street car company in Augusta, and another strike by certain employes of the Georgia railroad, which, for a number of days, prevented the public from having the benefit of the operation of these common carriers.

By the census of 1910 the city of Augusta had a population of 39,441 people, and the counties served by the Georgia railroad had an aggregate of 252,182 people. These figures give an idea of the widespread wrong which these striking employes committed.

These two corporations were chartered by the state for the purpose of conducting commerce and the carriage of passengers. The primary object of their charters was service to the public. Consequently, when the charters were granted and these roads were built a contract was virtually entered into by the owners of these properties and the state whereby the former bound themselves to perform the duties of common carriers for the public and the latter bound herself to protect them in the peaceable performance of those duties. Not one word was said in those charters giving the owners the right to suspend the operation of the roads to the detriment of public convenience, or allowing the employes the same right. So long, therefore, as either of these companies attempts to operate the road it assumed the state is under obligation to use extreme force, if necessary, to protect it in this sacred privilege.

Furthermore, in the amended railroad commission law, as embodied in Sections 2663 and 2664 of the code of Georgia, the railroad commission is authorized to require all common carriers and other public service companies under its supervision "to establish and maintain such public service and facilities as may be reasonable and just." Also, "to order and require the erection of sufficient and proper passenger service when in its judgment inefficient or insufficient service is being rendered the public of any community."

Again, it has been very aptly said by one writing on the status of the state in relationship to the common carriers:

"The power to fix rates and charges for transportation is an attribute of sovereignty, because in operating a public highway a transportation corporation exercises the power of a sovereign. This power over public highways constructed for public convenience is a matter of public concern which is absolutely essential to government."

Hence, it necessarily follows that any person or combination of persons who obstructs, intimidates or otherwise prevents the operation of the common carriers strikes a blow at the interests or the will in conflict with the mandate of the sovereign.

There is no escape, therefore, from the conclusion that those employes of the street car company in Augusta and of the Georgia railroad put themselves in an attitude of open rebellion to the laws of Georgia. They ignored the cardinal tenet of republican government, viz: "There shall be equal rights to all, special privileges to none," and arrogated to themselves the exercise of special privileges for settling their quarrels with their employers' managements at the expense and serious inconvenience of the public and in a manner which embodied defiance of the law which requires all dwellers in the state having differences which they cannot peaceably adjust to submit them to the state's courts.

Again, their acts in leaving the service of the employing companies and in virtually encouraging the formation of mobs to intimidate and personally assault those citizens whom these companies carriers induced to take the places they had vacated, that the carriers might obey the law which created them, was logically a claim which can be expressed in these words:

"This is your property, but it is my job on it, and my pocketbook is up on, will defend our mutual rights to exclusive ownership of the positions which we hold on your property. We will determine for you whom you shall hire and whom you shall not hire, and the wages you shall pay. While it is true that we have not invested a dollar in this public service utility and do have invested millions in it, yet, we do own certain rights in the franchises which we have acquired by usurpation, and we will hold them, while flying the laws of the state and subjecting the public to serious inconvenience and loss, even against you. On your property chartered to serve the public we are supreme over you, supreme over the public, supreme over the law. The union label carries more weight than does your Great Seal of State."

Considering the status of the public-service corporations as above explained, there is one factor which cannot be ignored. This is embodied in the following words found in the last annual report of the railroad commission of Georgia:

"In 1908, the railroads operating in Georgia employed in round numbers 34,809 persons; in 1912, they employed 39,691.

"The wages paid these 39,691 employes in 1912 exceeded the wages paid the 34,809 employes in 1908, $5,771,104.23 more than in 1908. This, however, was to a larger number of employes. The individual wage scales show that had the number of employes in 1912 been kept the same as in 1908, they are being paid $5,468,725.21 more than in 1908.

"In other words, the 34,809 employes in 1908 received $2,668,725.21 more in 1912 which is an average increase to each railroad employe in Georgia in 1912 over 1908 of more than $105 per annum.

"The commission has taken ten trunk line roads in the state, viz.: the Southern, the Seaboard, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Louisville and Nashville, the Georgia, Southern and Florida, the Georgia railroad, the Atlanta and West Point, the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, the Central of Georgia and the Western and Atlantic, and their wage accounts show that they paid in 1912 to 34,809 more employes an increase of $2,604,794.90 more than in 1908.

"The individual wage scale further shows that by far the largest increase in wages have been paid to employes belonging to labor unions, such as engineers, firemen, conductors, train hands, etc."

In other words, while the average increase to each of the 34,809 employes in 1 12 over 1907 was $105 per annum, the average increase to each member of a labor union was larger by far, in some instances doubtless approximating $500 or more.

Hence, we are brought face to face with the fact that these unions, or combinations of employes, not only of public service corporations but, as is generally known, on practically all other combinations have forced their wages up above those received by workmen in all other departments of life who have not found it necessary to form labor combinations. Tens of thousands of other citizens who are not in these unions, therefore, are confronted with the fact that the employes, by levying a tax upon them to the extent that they are forcing from the employers an inflatable proportion of the wages paid to the general classes in the state.

If the state not only authorizes these unions, or combinations, to exact higher wages than others receive, but also permits them by authority of law or by winking at violations of law to hold up the general public and rob it of the facilities for transportation, then she cannot claim the right to protect any employer or other person employing labor against his employes who might strike and proclaim to him that nobody else should work for him or crop the land if he hired any other employes they would burn his dwelling and barns, and, if needs be, kill him and his new employes to establish their supremacy over him and his property.

And if the state says to owners of railroads, factories, etc., "You responsible for the tax on this property which you have created or bought, but another class will control it," then she is responsible for keeping it in condition for safely serving the public, but I allow them the privilege of wrecking it, or of depriving the public of the use of it, then how can she protect a farmer or any other citizen in the right to control his property?

The same courts established by the constitution and composed of judges elected by the people [illegible] chosen from the people are open to the members of labor unions on the same guarantee of equality as they are to farmers and all other classes of citizens, and the method of settlement of quarrels by labor unions which results in inconvenience or damage to the public should be tolerated.

Again, upon this point, it is generally understood that when a strike is ordered by one of these unions strike against the employing company, the members of the same union required and compelled to assessed to support the strikers until the strike is ended. If this be true the organization in question could assess its members each month or quarter sufficient in the amount and employ counsel to take the cause to controversy into court and secure justice and justice only without damaging any of the interests of the public.

Or, if the strikers are not thus supported by their brother members, they could assess themselves a sum insignificant beside the gross amount of wages lost during the period of the strike and support themselves as indicated in the courts without inflicting damage upon the unoffending public, in either case they would be subjected to judges and juries of their fellow citizens in precisely the same manner as every other one is required and compelled to do; and it is impossible for all other classes to concede that the members of labor unions are entitled to special privileges suggesting, if not actually applying the process of anarchy when they —the masses—are required to submit to the process of law.

The mere fact that the laborers on a public service utility or in a factory have more votes than the owners of those properties have, has no bearing on the legal status of the case. Justice is not measured by the number of votes any more than by the weight of dollars. Each party is under the law. Each is entitled to the protection of its own rights in court. Neither is entitled to interfere with the rights of the other either in court or out of court.

It should be further borne in mind in this connection that it is primarily the poor people who are subjected to inconvenience and damage by the acts of strikers. In Augusta, for example, the rich could use their own conveyances or hire others for the purpose of coming and going and going to their homes, but the poorer classes in some instances were compelled to walk two miles each way to reach their places of employment and to return home; whereas, had these striking employes of the street car company abstained from the unlawful acts they committed in preventing the operation of that public utility, these laborers in the humbler walks of life would have come from and returned to their homes at trifling cost. And the poorer people at the stations on the Georgia railroad were subjected, at many points, to great privations which the rich were able to protect themselves against.

Therefore, in such cases it is the striker, who, in his blind recklessness, puts his feet in the bread tray of the poor man and [illegible] which or deprives him of the right to live—the cardinal right of humanity.

Summing up the status of a strike by employes on a public service corporation, we can not fail to know that there are more than two parties to such strikes. There is a third party, the public, which is subjected to unmerited and, unnecessary inconvenience and loss. And above all, there is a fourth party, viz.: The state, whose constitution the strikers have ignored and whose laws they have trampled under foot. Concerning this fourth, and greatest party, I will add:

The crisis which, a strike on a public service corporation brings upon the masses of the people is not only a menace to their comfort and to the necessities of life, but is also a challenge to the very sovereignty of the state in that it arrogates to itself the power to prevent the railroads from performing the special functions for which the state granted their charters, viz.: Those of being common carriers of persons and property.

There is no power in Georgia greater than the power of the state herself, and that power holds mastery over and gives direction to every other power which she permits within her borders. She is supreme in potential activities, whenever she finds it needful to exert them. She exacts allegiance and will not divide it. She ordains one process for all, and holds any rival process as rebellion. She is no respecter of persons in the enforcement of her laws.

It is needless then to say that the state would not permit the management to shut down the operation of a street car line or a railroad. It is manifest, therefore, that the acts of the employes in preventing such operation is equally indefensible, equally condemnable, and that they should be just as inflexibly held accountable to the laws of the state. No man, no combination of men, is greater than the state and her laws.

I have stressed the views herein advanced because the object lessons given by striking employes of the street car company in Augusta and of the Georgia railroad have been a practical service of notice by the labor unions to the state of Georgia that this law within her borders is greater than her law; that the allegiance of its members is greater than the allegiance they owe to her.

The executive office has not made this issue; the state of Georgia has not made it. The labor union has openly and recklessly thrown down the gauntlet. The state, therefore, cannot shrink from her duty to her constitution and her people.

It is a matter of current note that the power of the labor union to hurt the general public and injure it is greater than enjoyed by its exactions, and that the labor vote of cities and rural portions of this state whose welfare can only be protected by holding the members of the labor union to the same non-interference with the rights of others and the same accountability to the laws that they require of employers themselves. They will certainly claim that the labor union men, individually and collectively, have no better and have no greater rights than they.

I will add that it is no answer at all to say that labor cannot get strike in in any other way than by a strike and boycott. The courts are as open to the labor union man as to the farmer, and [illegible] the labor union man and the latter should be required to settle his differences in the state's way, which in the main is peaceable and legal. The labor union man be left free to damage everybody else while settling his difference by a strike.

He, therefore, who would remain in public life would do well to merit the approval of those myriads of law-abiding people [illegible] beside whose name numbers the labor union's is a trifle.

Finally on this subject, I will observe that the trend of the times in this country day is to the suppression of combinations, generally, styled trusts, organized for the purpose of graft. These trusts are condemned by law because they endeavor to force from business all competition save those in their gould and to exact out of the people unduly high prices for products they handle. Yet, while it is a matter of public note that the labor trust is the most widespread and aggressively exacting in America, politicians pander to it, statesmen stand aside, and the people, Atlantic or Pacific, less in its grasp. Why? Because it votes in blocks of thousands in almost every state in the Union. It is composed of allied organizations which stand as one man against all other elements of society. Of this fact the proof is known that some of the leaders of one of these organizations have been sentenced by a federal court to long imprisonment for crimes of violence against those who did not yield to their exactions, and the members have balled them out and reelected them to high office in the organization. Such a development is appalling to every lover of law. Yet it is the perfect inference which tells more vividly than words that the labor union holds itself as being higher than the law.

The labor unions have but a small minority of the people of Georgia, yet, by combinations which work through strikes and [illegible] they are able to effectively levying a toll upon all the other elements of our citizenship. In other words, they have organized a force to demand of the people buy labor at whatever price they choose to put upon it—and that price is higher than other workmen in the same locality receive and higher by far than the people have ever paid before. And contemporaneously they are exacting a premium for keeping all similar workmen who do not join their orders. To attempt, in many instances, to compete with open contumely, attended sometimes by personal violence. To hire non-union men means for employers to be boycotted and not infrequently to suffer serious damage to their property.

Therefore, as the labor unions have combined against all other classes in their determination to defeat the equality of opportunity assured by the laws of the state, the necessity is forced upon all other classes to stand together in the refusal to concede to the unions the preferential privileges they are endeavoring to exact for themselves alone. And, as the unions have their passwords, the password of all other citizens should be: "The Law."

It is not improper here for me to declare that not all of the members of the labor unions are wilful violators of law. A very large percentage of them love their state and would not knowingly do any one an injustice. Yet they are the victims of a system which is breeding anarchy, which has already put the state's constitution in contempt, which has relentlessly wronged hundreds of thousands of their fellow citizens who have not offended them, which, in plain words, has applied lynch law methods to millions of dollars worth of property. I pass no harsh criticism on them, but every person who reverences the law must condemn the reckless disregard of the rights of the public which has characterized their leaders. And the state must, with unmistakable clearness, notify, condemn and restrain, and must force the doers of them as clearly, to know that she will not suffer such occurrences to be repeated.

It is a cardinal principle of civilization that lawabiding people shall be protected in the enjoyments of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The state does not interfere with her orderly citizens in the possession of these rights, and it is the intent of her constitution that these rights within her borders shall be permitted so to interfere.

I have no more interest in this matter than has every other citizen of Georgia; but, as her chief executive, whose duty to obey her laws by enforcing them is supreme over every [illegible] interest, I have noted the recurring instances of open contempt for her constitution, of inconvenience and damage recklessly inflicted upon multitudes of her citizens by one class, and of brutal assaults upon working men who were engaged in obeying her laws and serving the people by operating the public utilities which she had chartered and whose operation they are pursuing. And I would be unworthy of the confidence with which the electorate has honored me should I fail to lay these facts before you and call upon the state's duty to enact such statutes as will force all classes and all individuals to equal allegiance to the state, and equal obedience to her laws. Upwards of two millions of people in Georgia will look with no patience upon the continuance of a condition which leaves their basic rights in life at the mercy of the star chamber of labor union.

Under the conditions I have portrayed it has been made the duty of the state, therefore, to protect her citizens from such unlawful happenings in the future. Compulsory arbitration should be required by law, and neither the management nor the employes of a public service corporation should under any circumstances be permitted to paralyze or otherwise interfere with the powers of the public for the transportation of persons and property, or for any other service for which the corporation was chartered.

I, therefore, respectfully impress upon you the importance of enacting such laws at your present session to the end that the masses of the people shall not again suffer from the acts of any who, for their own selfish interest, would impede commerce, travel or other public need or convenience. And the same law should govern every factory wherein capital and labor come into conflict.

I also respectfully suggest that you amend section 2664 of the code of Georgia by requiring the railroad commission to promptly advise the governor of the stoppage of performance of the duties for which it was chartered by any public service corporation when combinations of persons unlawfully prevent its operation, thus damaging the interests of the public, and that he thereupon issue a proclamation notifying the trespassers of all penalties in which said public service corporation's working property lies to summon posse and militia to protect said corporation in the performance of its chartered duties; and that, in the event the resistance to the lawful orders prove to be too great for the civil authorities in any county or counties to overcome, the judge of the superior court of such county shall promptly notify the governor, who shall thereupon use the militia, or such portions of it as may be needed, to enforce the state's laws which require the operation of said public service corporation or corporations for the welfare of the people.

I also respectfully suggest that you enact a law authorizing the governor to suspend a sheriff whenever he finds it proven that said sheriff has wilfully failed to do his duty in protecting the people of the county against acts of lawbreakers, and to appoint a sheriff to serve until after a new sheriff is chosen by the people at the next regular election. Such a law prevails in several other states, and that it is needed in Georgia was proven in at least one glaring instance during the period of the strike on the Georgia railroad last year.

I should be furthermore provided that a sheriff thus removed shall not be eligible for election to any office in the county of his residence until after he has been thus removed by the governor.

LAWS REGULATING THE USE OF THE MILITIA.

The constitution of Georgia, article 10, section 1, says:

"A well regulated militia being essential to the peace and security of the state, the general assembly shall have authority to provide by law how the militia of this state shall be organized, officered, trained, armed, and equipped; and of whom it shall consist."

The words "essential to the peace and security of the state," are proof that the makers of this constitution, which we have taken an oath to execute, feared that there would arise in the future crises in which the civil authorities would not be able to maintain peace and protect life and property. The genius, the very soul, of that constitution is democracy, yet its every paragraph proves that it is a self-bridled democracy. Its provisions leave every lawabiding citizen fullest liberty for expending his powers in any legitimate occupation, but places a constant curb on crime, with penalties to be applied to every one who will interfere with the rights of others. And it is a great principle which made it realized that attempts to supplant or dethrone the law by force would prove futile. They must be promptly met by trained force which would maintain protection to the people through the supremacy and majesty of the law.

Hence, they have clothed your honorable bodies with the authority above indicated and plain inference have made the same your duty.

Therefore, if the use of the militia of the state be "militarism," it is clear that the constitution creates "militarism" and ordains that such shall be the instrument of its enforcement when lawless elements in any community, contending only with the civil authorities, put that costitution and the statutes of the state in peril. Your sons or brothers, who, thrusting not themselves into the arena of danger, but called thither by the operation of your statutes, leave their occupations, sometimes losing their present income, and submit to inconvenience, endure privations, and [illegible] sacrifice even life itself to shield you and to uphold the dignity of your laws.

Instead, therefore, of being held as a thing apart, the constitution makes them an integral factor of your government; instead of being an exrescence, they are your arm, which you have not exerted save when your other elements of strength are inadequate or helpless. Every sheriff is called in high honor the patriotic devotion of some of our best citizens who have deemed the use of the military as a menace to the security of our institutions, yet I must say firmly that the man at headquarters, who, the constitution declares, shall be governor of the peace throughout the state, and the man on the scene of danger, are better fitted to judge of the soldiers is needed to protect life and property, as is provided by the constitution and the statutes, by the men living many miles from the zone of peril.

Now, as to the personnel of the militia. I call your attention to the fact that its members are law abiders or lawmakers. They are not the governor's soldiers, organized by his order to display his power; they are your soldiers, by the mandate of your constitution, organized to protect your homes, your lives, your civilization. They are your sons, your brothers, your fathers, your neighbors, your friends, your fellow citizens, who, in response to the call of duty, have left their homes, their occupations, their families, and have gone to the front to protect you and your property.

Now, I am in the line of duty and self-respect when I say: Do not make it the governor's duty to enforce a law and then condemn him for doing it. Any governor, true to his oath, will enforce it regardless of condemnation, and do not, even by inference, command a militiaman, a sheriff or other agent of the state to imperil his life and possibly lose it, to protect your lives and property and uphold the dignity of your constitution, and then fire into his back from the state house whence his orders came. Do not enact laws which you intend shall not be enforced, or which you would allow to be construed with. There is no middle ground between law and anarchy.

The people of Georgia are jealous of their liberties, but they are not going to suffer the state to be wrested and their constitution made contemptible under the false plea of liberty that license which styles itself liberty, which would subordinate the rights of the public to the selfish interests of classes or which would substitute the process of anarchy for the process of law, has no place in any state inhabited by freemen. True liberty sits side by side with the enthroned law.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion, allow me to urge upon you thoughtful care in the enactment of statutes for the public welfare. The laws of Georgia should be deliberately framed and so broad and just as to be graven on the very hearts of the people; they should inspire confidence and willing loyalty which would make it [illegible] possible to say: "I, too, am a Georgian!" And the authority of the state and of her municipalities should be so reverenced that a sheriff's badge and a policeman's club would command as great respect as does the baton of a marshal of France.

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH M. BROWN,
Governor.

Heat Very Trying to Woman's Nerves

They Neglect their Bowels and the Poisons Vitiate the Blood.

Hot weather has a very weakening effect on women. They are too languid to exercise, and as a result have appetite only for foods that seem light and tasty, such as salads and other cold concoctions. But these frequently produce indigestion and with it comes constipation.

It is especially in hot weather that women should keep up the highest standard of health, for it is necessary to have strength to resist the heat. The first essentials are good digestion and regular movement, and then good red blood and steady nerves will follow. The best way to obtain these is not by an over-indulgence in fruits, which are not ripe, or are over-ripe, and hence are dangerous, but in the use of a gentle and pleasant-tasting bowel stimulant like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Use it to-night and your constipation, indigestion and sick headache will vanish by [illegible] morning.

Mrs. Henry Moeller, 2958 Lee Ave., Chicago, uses it herself and gives it to her children, and Mrs. A. C. Caldwell, dressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., before the muzzles of guns, to surrender prisoners in the state's custody, who are then taken out and unlawfully killed. It is for you to say whether you will allow the statutes you enact to be made a mockery or whether all men in all classes shall obey them in the same manner. You have the power to enact laws which will control every situation I have portrayed.

Yet, I am in the line of duty and self-respect when I say: Do not make it the governor's duty to enforce a law and then condemn him for doing it. Any governor, true to his oath, will enforce it regardless of condemnation, and do not, even by inference, command a militiaman, a sheriff or other agent of the state to imperil his life and possibly lose it, to protect your lives and property and uphold the dignity of your constitution, and then fire into his back from the state house whence his orders came. Do not enact laws which you intend shall not be enforced, or which you would allow to be construed with. There is no middle ground between law and anarchy.

The people of Georgia are jealous of their liberties, but they are not going to suffer the state to be wrested and their constitution made contemptible under the false plea of liberty that license which styles itself liberty, which would subordinate the rights of the public to the selfish interests of classes or which would substitute the process of anarchy for the process of law, has no place in any state inhabited by freemen. looking, but now has a pretty complexion, and naturally they are great believers in the value of Syrup Pepsin as a reasonable laxative-tonic. It can be obtained of druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size for the benefit of economical people. It is an ideal laxative for women and children. You will never again use strong and sick headache will vanish by [illegible] morning.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it by postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Market in New York Closed 15 to 21 Pts. Higher Than the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 25.—Cotton opened firm at an advance of 1 to 6 points on steady cables, a better spot demand in Liverpool and a more creditable show of the Balkan conference. Near months were relatively easy on the call but they quickly advanced in sympathy with other positions and there seemed to be very little pressure offered for any sustained period during the early trading. Prices showed a net gain of 11 to 14 points before the end of the first half hour. Wall street was the buying factor in support.

The market continued firm later in the morning, with July leading the advance and selling 20 points net higher than noon. New crop positions showed net gains of about 15 points. Liverpool continued a moderate seller of July, gradually supplying cables on active local demand.

The offer of a prominent broker to sell 10,000 July at 12.25 checked the advance early in the noon hour. Private reports from Memphis stated that the heat and prices later stiffened up again on a bullish crop report from Memphis dealers. The market at 1:30 p. m. was 17 to 21 points higher than the previous close.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 5 to 10 points on good cables and lack of offerings. Bears appeared to be short of cotton and were forced to cover. Another factor was the continued steady weather talk coming from Arkansas and a few other sections of the belt. It was also said that Liverpool was a big buyer of the new crop months on this side of the water. Unfavorable advices from the Liverpool market worked higher and at the end of the first half hour of business all new crop months were 17 points higher and a net advance of 5 to 10 points.

The market gradually worked upward to an advance of 15 points on the most active months. Little short cotton was held on the rise, but toward noon began to sell freely and the early offerings from this source became heavy enough to check the upward trend and bring about a reaction. The forecast was considered unfavorable as it predicted more weather for practically the entire cotton region of Texas. The market at noon was steady. At noon prices were seven points over yesterday's closing.

The following were the closing prices in the exchange today:

Morris, Rothschild & Co.: We continue to be fairly optimistic.

Hayden, Stone & Co.: As the market is greatly influenced by any unfavorable news the need of rain over a large central area will be a factor for the moment.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 25.—Liverpool shows larger spot sales, total 10,000, with good active demand. Futures were as dull. The advance yesterday of 4 to 5@12 was on middling in spot here, and the continued high prices for July show that bullish conditions and confidence for the near future are at work and exercise a controlling influence. The weather map of New York advanced this morning 20 points and carried new crop here to 11.66. Sellers were scarce realizing the bullish advantage at present and fearing the possibility of a low July bureau, owing to the backward season in Atlantic states not being up to expectations.

The Wall street Journal in a review of the general situation says: "The general impression is unfavorable since that, as a result of developments past and pending, the trade situation is not far off."

The map partly cloudy to fair weather scattering showers, mostly light. Range of temperatures unchanged, except somewhat warmer in western Arkansas. Indications are stationary conditions but the map shows an important pressure in the Northwest distributing to which general rains are likely to come so the the next week. Temperatures ended unusual, by a short spell of heat which, from present indications, will be of only moderate intensity and confined principally to the northwestern quarter of the belt. Trade quiet and settled around 11.62 for October and December. The larger receipts at interior towns for the half week, 4,000, against 3,742 last year, sustains the claim that interior holdings are larger than last year, but the high cotton prices and large shipments show that the cotton is either already engaged or sold at very full prices.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: The bull has a hunch that cotton will corner itself in the old time way before the summer is done. The best is convinced that fine weather and a big crop will break up such talk, but shows no reason whatever for an actual cotton corner. With these opposing views as a starting point, the talent will wait to find out the thereof of any ultimate result desired. Hence the complex rambling actions of the general day cotton market. There is to be getting away from the fact that the weather is by nearly perfect cotton growing weather. The government mentioned the need of rain in some sections, but the temperature is the right kind and it is hardly probable the plant is actually suffering for moisture in any considerable area. Consequently those people who say they believe the present day condition the crop to the best ever recorded at this time of year are referred to by their friends, the enemy, as "enthusiasts," but no stronger terms are used. The market will break when other people assert that the plant is smaller than is normally the case and that the season promises some important developments in the near future. If the weekly activity, nobody takes issue with them either. Should it prove that favorable weather should soon bring the plant up to a normal size and that farmers, through government assistance, should now begin to combat the ravages of the insect.

Spot sales show partly closely to fair weather in belt, scattered light showers, with forecast for range of temperatures except somewhat warmer in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Generally fair tonight and Thursday.

Dallas wires: Texas part cloudy to clear, with light local showers; Oklahoma generally clear.

Forecast:—

Louisiana: Probably fair tonight and Thursday; light southerly winds on the coast.

Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas: Generally fair tonight and Thursday.

Mississippi: Probably fair tonight and Thursday, moderate southeast and south winds on the coast.

Kentucky: Probably fair tonight and Thursday.

Tennessee: Probably fair and continued warm weather tonight and Thursday.

Alabama: Probably fair tonight and Thursday.

Georgia and Alabama: Fair tonight and Thursday.

Virginia: Cloudy and warm, probably light showers tonight or Thursday; light to fresh variable winds.

North Carolina: Generally fair tonight and Thursday, light to moderate south and southwest winds.

11 a. m., bids in New York were as follows: August, 12.04; October, 11.62; August, 12.04; October, 11.55.

10 a. m. bids in New Orleans were: January, 11.63; July, 12.48; August, 11.15; October, 11.62.

There was good demand for July. Liverpool was a buyer and the south is thought to be a buyer, selling by commission houses is thought to be sale and the demand good. Ring was thought to be short and the buying here little buying to put market up, map favorable.

Bradstreet's says: Unfavorable general rains in belt, in spell of cool weather, quarter.

Weld & Co., of New York, make condition of crop 83.

STOCK GOSSIP

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter Ocean says: For the present a majority of traders are not looking for much change either way. Unless there is further deterioration to the spring wheat crop, it is the general belief, however, that the buying power will have to increase materially to maintain a higher level. Specialists from down state say that corn has been hurt by the warm weather and that it was unfavorable for cultivation; that farmers are not selling freely and country interior elevator stocks have been cleaned out, both of corn and oats. There are so many damage reports coming in on oats that the bulls are inclined to underestimate the crop and speculators generally are favorable to the buying side for the market.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: Wheat—Rains west of the river may interfere somewhat with harvesting but on present timetable the spring wheat country. We are likely to have a lower opening and do not look for any big decline.

Corn—Weather perfect for growing crop, which has a tendency to curtail new speculative buying.

Oats—Market looks lower with other grains but there is a general feeling regarding the values of oats than prevails in corn, based on the belief that a great deal of damage has been done which cannot be repaired.

Provisions are lower on a setback.

Snow wires from Millbank, S. D.: From Jim river to Minnesota line today, each half Dim valley fully as bad as west. Eight counties are in burnt district, involving 1,100,000 acres. Seeding reported by three counties June 1 was 97. Their average is now lowered to 50 points. There is still some wheat in Brown and Spink counties that good crop now would save for fair yield, being forced in heading at eight inches high. From Clark county east the situation is reversed, there is a fair and crop plants in vigorous. Much of it perfect in appearance. This includes the eight northwest counties with the above a million acres which will average in perfect 95 field condition. No drouth damage here, but ground very dry, clear to bottom of roots, and plant would go to pieces with a couple days of hot windy weather. At least the state will fall much short of last year.

CROP CONDITION REPORT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 25.—J. B. Turner's condition report through Miller and Cotter:

Replies from correspondents of date June 21 give the following results on the condition of cotton compared to the normal using government's basis as of May 25.

State.	1913.	1912.	Last Mo.
North Carolina	79	83	75
South Carolina	73	79	68
Georgia	74	72	69
Alabama	79	76	76

Louisiana	82	74	81
Oklahoma	88	82	87
Texas	85	80	87
United States	81.3	80.4	79.1

Total of June 10 date showed a condition of 81.2. It is evident from these that all the improvement for the month took place during the first two weeks. There was due to the fact that rains in that first period gave seeding a start and the ground stands and that elsewhere the ground was dry and little good cultivation. Nothing appears to have been added to either condition since as the growth of the plant has not been generally rapid no gain in fruiting has been made, as the figures show. At this date last year this bureau's report was 1 per cent over the season's the official report to June 25 as compared with

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET HEAVY IN THE AFTERNOON

Chesapeake and Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Interboro, Copper and Can Led Decline

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 25.—Stocks moved unerratically when trading began today and a majority of the active issues fell back slightly. A number of stocks, however, made fractional gains and the list as a whole presented an appearance of irregularity. There was no sign of the strong buying which characterized the early trading and the previous days of the week. Virginia-Carolina Chemical continues its declines, opening down 1½. Changes otherwise were fractional.

A promising rally in which Union Pacific was elevated a point, was nipped slightly in liquidation of Chesapeake and Ohio, which broke 1¾, to 53¾, making it within ¼ of the year's low. The decline was accompanied by rumors concerning the company's probable dividend policy. When Harriman's advance had been cancelled and other shares followed suit, the market there opened the market improved.

Speculators were undecided as to the immediate trend of the market and trading was hesitating during the morning. Prices remained almost stationary after the slight advance of the first hour and the subsequent recession.

With the rumors concerned from the shorts satisfied, there was nothing further to sustain the market and little offering was encountered in obliterating the early rise. Reassuring news regarding progress of the London settlement and the purchase by buying of the Harriman stocks in the early trading was based on the idea that the Interstate Commerce approve the dissolution plan, including the trustees of the Union Pacific stock not turned over to the Pennsylvania.

Bonds irregular.

Interest inquiry developed for the grain carriers when reports filtered into the street of much needed rains in many parts of the spring and corn belts. Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific reaped the most benefit from the demand, which was exemplified in a gain of 5@20 cents.

Technical conditions seemed to govern the afternoon improvement to a large extent. Lack of confidence in the merits of the short interest caused a rally to the day's best figures. Dealings in the Harriman group were confined to pending news of the outcome of the Washington conference on the dissolution.

The attorney general's announcement that the Harriman plan for the dissolution of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific had been approved failed to stimulate the list, which yesterday rose 2.75 on the closing. Bulls are influenced by some selling of the international stocks. Canadian Pacific sagged 1 point and the Harriman element in other shares was eradicated. Union Pacific closed to 145½ compared with 147 the day's highest.

Closed: Irregular.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, June 25.—Stocks opened firm and higher today but speculative issues soon eased off on realizing and the list in the Netherland bank rate to 5 per cent. Closed dull, but above the lowest.

American securities opened steady and from ½ to 2 points higher. New York selling and realizing caused a reaction in the second hour and the list sagged under the lead of Chesapeake and Ohio until the close, ending when the market hardened again on light support and closed steady.

The general settlement is being arranged at rates a fraction harder, but it is believed it will be completed without trouble.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter Ocean says: For the present a majority of traders are not looking for much change either way. Unless there is further deterioration to the spring wheat crop, it is the general belief, however, that the buying power will have to increase materially to maintain a higher level. Specialists from down state say that corn has been hurt by the warm weather and that it was unfavorable for cultivation; that farmers are not selling freely and country interior elevator stocks have been cleaned out, both of corn and oats. There are so many damage reports coming in on oats that the bulls are inclined to underestimate the crop and speculators generally are favorable to the buying side for the market.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: Wheat—Rains west of the river may interfere somewhat with harvesting but on present timetable the spring wheat country. We are likely to have a lower opening and do not look for any big decline.

Corn—Weather perfect for growing crop, which has a tendency to curtail new speculative buying.

Oats—Market looks lower with other grains but there is a general feeling regarding the values of oats than prevails in corn, based on the belief that a great deal of damage has been done which cannot be repaired.

Provisions are lower on a setback.

Snow wires from Millbank, S. D.: From Jim river to Minnesota line today, each half Dim valley fully as bad as west. Eight counties are in burnt district, involving 1,100,000 acres. Seeding reported by three counties June 1 was 97. Their average is now lowered to 50 points. There is still some wheat in Brown and Spink counties that good crop now would save for fair yield, being forced in heading at eight inches high. From Clark county east the situation is reversed, there is a fair and crop plants in vigorous. Much of it perfect in appearance. This includes the eight northwest counties with the above a million acres which will average in perfect 95 field condition. No drouth damage here, but ground very dry, clear to bottom of roots, and plant would go to pieces with a couple days of hot windy weather. At least the state will fall much short of last year.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 25.—J. B. Turner's condition report through Miller and Cotter:

Replies from correspondents of date June 21 give the following results on the condition of cotton compared to the normal using government's basis as of May 25.

Louisiana	82	74	81
Oklahoma	88	82	87
Texas	85	80	87
United States	81.3	80.4	79.1

Total of June 10 date showed a condition of 81.2. It is evident from these that all the improvement for the month took place during the first two weeks. There was due to the fact that rains in that first period gave seeding a start and the ground stands and that elsewhere the ground was dry and little good cultivation. Nothing appears to have been added to either condition since as the growth of the plant has not been generally rapid no gain in fruiting has been made, as the figures show. At this date last year this bureau's report was 1 per cent over the season's the official report to June 25 as compared with

Fellowship in Advertisements

Merchants and manufacturers have certain articles they wish to sell. In order to sell them they advertise.

"That is their business," you say; "they are doing it to benefit themselves."

True, they are advertising primarily for their own profit. But there is more to present-day advertising than that. It has created a spirit of confidence and friendliness between the seller and the buyer that has become so much a part of our daily lives that we hardly realize it unless we stop to think.

Have you ever made a purchase in the Orient? If so, you remember how you have entered a shop and after poking through confused heaps of articles you have found something that struck your fancy. You asked the price and were told it was worth, perhaps, the equivalent of a dollar. Then ensued haggling, haranguing, threats, imprecations, until finally at the end of half an hour you triumphantly emerged from the shop, the article in your hand and 50 cents gone from your pocket. When you looked again at your purchase your good common sense told you it was worth about 10 cents.

Contrast such an experience with shopping in Atlanta today. You will appreciate as never before the value of The Journal's advertisements, which lead you to firms known for their honest goods, their fixed prices and their fair dealings.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

The belt is a dominant feature of the gown today. It has risen to wide proportions. First it was a narrow string around the waist; then it became a rope, then it disappeared entirely and left the joining of the blouse and skirt to emphasize itself by two rows of stitching and sometimes a piping. For years we have finished our one-piece frocks with this stitching and never thought of putting a waist line to our coats.

Just when the change came about is difficult to tell. It grew slowly, like all revolutions, and women were not well aware of it until the fashion was upon us in all its strength. Now the wearing of a girdle is universal, and a piping and the two rows of stitching are gone the way of other fashions—on a road which always returns.

The girdle of today should really be called a sash, for it is ornate and there is plenty of it. Sometimes it merely goes around the waist once and is fastened with a flat bow or, at most, two or three outstanding loops; but usually it behaves itself in a far more considerate manner and goes around the figure from bust to waist or from waist to hips, crosses at the side and is knotted into two long loops.

It may be of the material of the gown or a contrasting fabric and color. There are those who show no hesitancy in putting a burnt orange oriental sash on a black gown, but fortunately for the public these tastes for violent contrasts are rare. Even when they are seen by fashionable women they are confined to evening gowns.

The Girdle of Striped Silk.

Last February's models were ultra-fashionable gowns of blue serge and black satin made with wide striped sashes that dropped, sypes fashion, from the right hip toward the left knee and tied there with fringed ends. Only a slender woman could wear such an adornment, and even she was wise if with a short coat to partway hide it. However, fashion did not smile even upon this ultra exclusive use of it for long; very soon there were comments against it as a conspicuous fashion, and women who thought they would like to take it up soon made up their minds that it were better to use striped ribbon around the waist if they were going to use it, and not go around the city.

This attitude did not put out of fashion the girdles of striped Roman ribbon or those of Scotch plaid which were ordered for four inches around the waist line directly under the loose blouse that hung partly over them. This fashion still remains, but there's more fondness shown toward the large loose girdle in solid color. These are universal.

They are added to one-piece frocks of linen, satine, shantung and satin which the midsummer is again bringing into fashion as a summer gown. Feel free. The art in these girdles lies in making them appear as though they scarcely touched the figure but were carelessly thrown around the waist and were caught somewhere in the back or at the side in an indifferent manner.

This is not an easy task, especially in these days of such large waist measurements. The inclination is to draw the whole belt smartly into the figure and try to make yourself as unlike a barrel as possible. The slim girl, we say, can toss her sash about her in this careless fashion, but the woman of over 150 pounds looks worse when she tries to do it, yet the truth is that unless she does do it in this way she had better avoid wearing it.

Belts of Metal Cloth.

Among the novelty belts on afternoon gowns and even of the informal evening gowns of taffeta and lace there are six-inch straight belts of metal cloth over plain silk with a stamped figure. These belts make no pretense of giving shape to the figure, they preserve the straight line from beneath the bust to a half inch below the normal waist line. They rarely have any ornament attached. They fasten under a fold of the material at the back of the side.

There are also some new belts made after the same straight fashion of heavy silk which are covered with straight lines of heavy silk floss embroidered in a diamond shape. These are worn with all kinds of one-piece frocks on the street and in the house.

Masonic Grand Lodge To Lay Cornerstone

The ceremonies incident to the placing of the cornerstone of the Home for Old Women on Thursday afternoon will be conducted under the auspices of the grand lodge of Georgia, F. and A. M., under special dispensation from the grand master of Georgia, Hon. Robert L. Colding, of Savannah.

A representative of the grand lodge has been called for the purpose and Mr. Colding not being able to be present, he has delegated the authority to Hon. Thomas H. Jeffries, of Atlanta, who himself is a past grand master of Georgia. The cornerstone will be laid at the home, West End avenue, at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of the 26th.

The ceremony is very beautiful and impressive, and besides the acting grand master, Mr. Jeffries there will be a full complement of grand lodge officers. The laying of cornerstones by the Masons is always under the direct supervision of the grand lodge itself, and is not performed by the local or subordinate lodges, and this fact adds interest and dignity to the ceremony of Thursday afternoon. One or more short addresses will be delivered.

The ladies who have the home in charge will serve punch on the lawn. They extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend on this occasion, which marks the eighth anniversary of the founding of the Home for Old Women.

The following gentlemen compose the board of trustees of the home:

Mr. H. M. Patterson, Mr. Walter P. Andrews, Mr. J. Lee Barnes, Mr. Beaufort Bashlow, Dr. J. W. Hurt, Dr. J. E. Summerfield, Mr. Isaac Scheen, Mr. M. Rich, Mr. Louis Regenstein, Mr. T. Sawtell, Mr. W. E. Wimpy and Mr. E. P. Wood.

THE EVENING STORY | THE OLD LADY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

She was a very old lady indeed. "If I live until the 12th day of November I shall be ninety-two years old," she said, smiling.

She was very tall and thin. Both her hair and her teeth were gone, but a charming cap did one defect and an excellent dentist attended to the other. Her cheeks were rosy and her complexion hollow. The black eyes burned far back in her head. The skin on her face and hands was faded and finely wrinkled. She wore a black silk dress with the cloth made full enough to admit of a small hoop, which gave her a swaying motion when she walked. It perhaps did when ever unsteadiness there might be in her gait. Yet she was still remarkably active and alert, and her mind, she laughingly asserted, was exactly as good as if it had never been used at all.

For all she was so old, and looked it, too, there was something exceedingly attractive and enovable about her. There was a merry tinkle in her laugh. When she sat she held herself perfectly erect. "I never hankered after carrying a hump on my shoulders," she said. She crossed her slender feet and hands as she had been taught to do in her young girlhood, and she was extremely fastidious about the set and hang of her frock and the ribbons that adorned her cap.

She lived in her own house and managed her own money, of which she had considerable. Her only companion was a widowed friend to whom she gave a home. She got along admirably with Ella, who did pretty much as she pleased. "That ought to be my privilege at ninety-one," she declared.

Every four weeks on Thursday afternoon Ella and Eliza held open at home. Anybody who wished could come and look at her and speak to her. At all other times she was accessible or not as she chose. She never failed on an "at home" day. Then she wore a brocade satin with yellow lace draped softly about her throat. Her cap had rosebuds in it, and she wore her cameo brooch and her wedding ring and carried a duchesse point handkerchief that to see was to covet. And she sat in her high backed chair and dispensed hospitality and good cheer.

There was also a superfluity of delicious cake and hot tea and chocolate and olives and ice cream, at which the prettiest girls in the place took turns presiding. There were flowers, too. After they had served their turn at the "at home" they went to sick folks, while the cakes left went to the children of the neighborhood.

It chanced that the finest day in March and the "at home" came together. After a long siege of storms, cold weather the old lady felt the inspiring influence of the day. She hummed gayly while she was being dressed. Still humming, she walked from vase to vase in the parlors admiring the bouquets of spring flowers, and awaited the guests' arrival.

Soon the big, sunny, flower-scented rooms were filled with young and old. There was the shimmer of beautiful silks, subdued laughter, the softened sound of many voices, the tinkle of china, and the fragrance of the best tea.

The old lady was in her best element. She loved company, and when she smiled almost girlishly, she uttered all her choicest bon mots and revelled in the good time she was creating.

Suddenly, in the middle of it all, she saw a hand held out to her. She took it and raised her eyes slowly to the face of the owner. It was a wonderful face, round, dimpled, deliciously tinted, with two warm violet eyes. The old lady gave a start. "Why, where did you come from?" she exclaimed. The girl laughed musically. "Why, aren't you pouring my tea today?" demanded the lady, not waiting for any answer to her first question.

"I didn't know you had any tea to pour until I got here and saw all these people," the girl explained. "Then I wished for a moment I had stayed away. They're all strangers to me."

"Well, I'm not a stranger."

"No, and it seems queer, too, for I never saw you before. But then I've been hearing about you all my life. And I've seen your picture."

The old lady shifted her feet from a huge velvet bassock and kicked it forward. "There, sit down," she said. "I suppose you haven't had any cakes or tea."

The girl shook her head. "I just came."

"Eliot," said the old lady, "please bring miss here some refreshment."

The young man who had escorted his splendidly dressed mother appeared with alacrity. He looked at the girl on the bassock and smiled in gratitude to the old lady for summoning him. Quickly he brought everything he could lay his hands upon. It was all very pretty and very arousing, but suddenly the old lady dropped the curtain upon the scene with a quiet: "You may be at liberty now, my dear boy."

Eliot looked as if liberty were the last thing he coveted just then, but he moved away obediently and began to talk to the girl who was pouring. His eyes, however, constantly returned to the old lady and the strange young girl upon the bassock.

"He's a nice boy," remarked the old lady. "A very nice boy, my dear, and I don't mind his appreciating you after a moment. But first I want to talk to you myself. What brought you here to see me today?"

"I was sent," the girl answered simply—the old lady looked interested—"on an errand"—the old lady smiled—"from your life long enemy. She told me to say that," added the girl. The old lady laughed. "That sounds like her. You see, I know whom you mean. But how did she come to send you?"

"Why, I'm her great-great-niece," replied the girl.

"Dear me," said the old lady. "Is it possible that she could have anything so scrawnily young as you related to her? I outlived my relatives a generation ago, and have only friends now."

"It's nice to have friends," said the girl, nibbling a cake and looking at Eliot.

"But too many friends make you appreciate an enemy, especially such a good old enemy as your great-great-aunt Eliza. We were as young as you when we fell out. I'll tell you what it was over. I hadn't thought about it in years till I saw a bit of white arbutus somebody had sent me. There was a certain place it grew on the hills, and I thought nobody in the world knew it was there save myself and Heth Sandelen.

"Every spring he gathered the first and gave it to me on a certain day. He had done that for four years. Of course I could have got it for myself, but I preferred to receive it from Heth. But one day he failed. That night at a party Eliza came in wearing the arbutus. How I felt! Now you laugh over it!" the girl exclaimed, horrified.

The old lady laughed the more. "It was all silly. There we were—Heth, the false lover, and that little snip of an Eliza, who had stolen him and his arbutus, and I myself with the very devil in my black eyes, they said. I snatched the arbutus from her breast and stamped upon it. And I said some wild, foolish things which I don't recall now. Then I rushed out of the house. I thought my heart was broken.

"Poor dear," murmured the girl, patting one of the old lady's hands.

"Before four years had passed, to get the right purspective, my dear, you want to look back on that sort of thing from a seventy year distance. Well, I vowed to hate Eliza forever, and she vowed to hate me. We did everything in fact but tear each other's eyes out. Between us we both lost Heth. He went west and got killed by the Indians. After a while I got married. Eliza also married. I guess I haven't seen her in forty years, and then she wouldn't speak to me. I don't know that I wanted to speak to her. She's been a good friend. There's a queer thing about having an enemy. You forget your friends after a while, but your enemy you never forget. I've never forgotten Eliza. I'd like to talk over old times with her. She's the last one left from my youth." Her voice changed suddenly from its tone of reminiscence. "You're exactly like what she was that night when she wore Heth's white arbutus."

"She says I am, I'm named after her, too," sighed the girl. "It's all so sad. Your story of the white arbutus makes me want to cry. And to think you both lost him and he was killed!" The violet eyes were tender. "Oh, the pity of it ,to think I have been so beautiful and so innocence and enmity and death! It ended and was done. And nothing came of it—nothing. Nothing ever can come of it now." She mused in deep pity.

Eliot came and took away her cup. After which he lingered as near as he could.

"I haven't told you my errand yet," she said, suddenly arousing herself.

"What is it?" asked the old lady.

"Great-great-aunt Eliza sent me all the way to tell you by word of mouth that she—that she's your friend—your best friend—and wellwishes."

The old lady was silent. She seemed to ponder deeply. Then she laughed amusedly. "You tell Eliza I preferred her as she was. But it's all right. I shan't quarrel with her. She can have her way about it." She crooked a finger and Eliot sprang eagerly forward. "My Eliza Ware," she said slowly, "and Mr. Heth Sandelen Eliot great-great-niece and nephew of my two best friends. And now, Eliza, you may tell that story to Heth if you please. And, Heth, dear, you may give Eliza all the white arbutus you will find in that vase on the satinwood cabinet."

Board of City Missions

The regular meeting of the woman's board of city missions was held at Wesley house Tuesday, June 24, at 10 o'clock, the president, Mrs. R. P. Milam, presiding.

The devotional service was led by Miss Brittingham. The day nursery matron reported an average attendance of sixteen.

Mrs. Joseph Terrell commemorated the birthday of Governor Terrell by donating a wholesome lunch for the day nursery children. An outing in the woods was also tendered the mothers.

In the absence of the district nurse, Miss Brittingham is looking after the district patients. She reported ten treatments and one treated for hookworm.

The Boys' club had their annual encampment at Austell the first week in June, two of the workers accompanying them.

The shower baths provided at Wesley house have been much in demand during these warm days.

The closing exercises of the kindergarten, cooking, sewing and night school, held the first week in June, were very creditable.

The prize of $5 offered by Mrs. George Muse for the best work in the night school was won by Luther Stevens. A second prize of $2.50 was awarded by Mrs. Lee Noel.

Through the domestic science department $31 was contributed, and through the supply department $27.75 was realized.

The treasurer, Mrs. Jenkins, reported an expenditure of $295.56 for the past month.

The board voted to hold its July and August meetings at Wesley Memorial church. Beginning with September, they will again be held at Wesley house.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

A little tale which isn't true,
And eager ears to heed it,
Means trouble starts right there to brew,
With tattle-tales to feed it.

No one knows how true this is better than does old Granny Fox. And no one knows better than she how to make trouble for other people by starting little untrue stories. You see she learned long ago how fast a mean little tale will travel once it has been started, and so when there is some one with whom she is afraid to fight honestly she uses these little untrue tales instead of claws and teeth, and often they hurt a great deal worse than claws or teeth ever could.

Now you would think that by this time all the little meadow and forest people would have found out Granny Fox and that they wouldn't believe her stories. But the truth is, most people are very apt to believe unpleasant things about other people without taking the trouble to find out if they are true and old Granny Fox knows this. Besides, she is smart enough to tell these little trouble making, untrue stories as if she had heard them from some one else. So, of course, some one else gets the blame for starting them, Granny Fox is smart and sly! Yes, oh, Granny Fox is smart and sly.

When Granny heard that Old Man Coyote had come to live on the Green Meadows she knew right away that he belonged to the Wolf family and so was too big and strong for her to fight. But if she couldn't drive him away with her teeth and claws perhaps she could make so much trouble for him that he would go away. She would try anyway and all the time she would be careful to be very polite to him so that he would never guess who started the trouble.

It was one of her plans to make trouble that was taking her over to see Prickly Porky the Porcupine. She found him as usual in the top of a poplar tree filling his stomach with tender young bark. Granny Fox strolled along as if she had just happened to pass that way, and not as if she had come purposely. She pretended to be very much surprised when she looked up and saw Prickly Porky.

"Good morning, Prickly Porky," she said in her pleasantest voice. "How big and fine and strong and brave you are looking this morning!"

"Why, haven't you heard it?" Granny spoke in a tone of great surprise. "Billy Mink told it to me. He says that this stranger, Old Man Coyote, who has come to the Green Meadows and the Green Forest has been boasting that he is afraid of nobody, but everybody is afraid of him. When somebody asked him if you were afraid of him he said that you climbed the highest tree you could find if you but saw his shadow. Of course, I didn't believe it, because I know that you are not afraid of anybody, but other people believe it, and they do say that Old Man Coyote is bragging that he first time he meets you on the ground he is going to have Porcupine for dinner."

Prickly Porky had started down the tree before Granny finished speaking and his usually dull eyes actually looked bright. Teh fact is they were bright with anger.

"What are you going to do?" asked Granny Fox, backing away a little.

"Going to give that boaster a chance to try to get his Porcupine dinner," grunted Prickly Porky.

Granny turned aside to grin. "I don't believe you will find him now," said she "but I heard that he is planning to get you when you do down to the Laughing Brook for a drink this evening."

"Then I'll wait," grunted Prickly Porky.

So Granny Fox bade him good-by and started on with a wicked chuckle, to think how Prickly Porky had believed the story she had made up.

Prickly Porky stopped eating and looked down at her suspiciously, but just the same he felt pleased.

"Huh!" he grunted, then once more he began to eat.

Granny Fox went right on talking "I said when I heard that story this morning that I didn't believe a word of it. I——"

"What story?" Prickly Porky broke in.

Famous Dancer Gives Complexion Secrets

(Aileen Moore in Beauty's Mirror.)

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty—the wondrous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer adhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet, despite the strenuosity of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "delicately scribable." An intimate friend tells me the senorita regularly uses on her face what drug gists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your grocer stocks these ingredients, as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—(Advt.)

Mrs. Armor's Strong Address

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor spoke to an unusually large audience Tuesday evening at the First Methodist church, her temperance lecture, "A Saloonless Nation in 1920, and Why," evoking the warmest praise from her many admirers.

Mrs. Armor predicted the elimination of the whiskey traffic first. Because it is opposed to century science and progress.

Second, because, she says, a growing public sentiment is demanding temperance legislation.

Third, because a common sense understanding of the harm wrought by intoxicants is forcing men and women to approve the temperance movement.

Mrs. Armor said that Georgia does not need new whiskey laws so much as she needs a proper interpretation and administration of the laws.

Mrs. Armor is widely known for eloquence and enthusiasm, and is greatly in demand as a temperance lecturer.

She has been invited to address the next national convention of the anti-saloon league of America which meets in November at Columbus, O. Twenty thousand delegates are expected there, and a big program has been planned.

Blackberry Recipes

One of the most objectionable features of the blackberry—the only objectionable feature to those who like them—is the pithy, numerous seeds. If the berries are big and ripe and luscious, this defect can be overlooked. Who ever objected to the seeds when the berries were eaten fresh from the bushes, with the heat of the sun still on them? But when the berries are cooked they should, whenever it is possible to do so, be freed from the seeds.

One recipe for blackberry jam made without seeds calls for mashed berries added to granulated sugar in the proportion of one pint of pulp to three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Strain the sugar and berries after they are thoroughly mixed and boil the strained mixture. Boil it in a porcelain kettle. Skim it as it boils, and stir it frequently over a slow heat to prevent sticking. Let it cook until it is thick.

Blackberry jelly made thus is not much different from strained blackberry jam. Mix a quart of blackberry juice, free from pulp and seeds, two pints of water and a pint and a half of granlated sugar. Boil the liquid for 15 minutes, add the sugar, which has been heated in the oven, boil it for four or five minutes, skimming several times; pour it into glasses previously heated in water and let it cool. Cover it with brandied paper and paraffin.

Blackberry syrup is made with a pint of juice, a pound of sugar, half an ounce of powdered cinnamon and a quarter of an ounce of mace and two teaspoonfuls of cloves. Boil this 15 minutes and strain it. To each pint add a glassful of French brandy, and bottle.

Blackberries must not all be preserved for winter use, but some must be used in season. The juice, strained and well sweetened and flavored with a little sherry or brandy, makes delicious ice cream. It has a delicate and beautiful mauve color.

* * * * *

An inexpensive dessert which is palatable and good for children is blackberry sponge. To make it fill a bowl with cubes of bread, and pour over them blackberries, cooked until soft with sugar to taste and then pressed through a colander. Pour on all the juice the bread will absorb, and let it cool for three or four hours. Turn it from the mold and serve it with sugar and cream and fresh blackberries.

* * * * *

One rule for blackberry pie calls for a lower crust. Put it in a deep earthen or granite ware pie plate. Reinforce the lower crust with a strip of crust an inch wide, moistened and spread around the edge of the plate. Spread half a cupful of granulated sugar and a rounded tablespoonful of flour over the crust, and then fill it with berries which have been rolled in granulated sugar. Put on an upper crust, pierce it in half a dozen places and bake slowly for thirty minutes.

INITIAL MEETING OF WOMAN'S PRESS AND AUTHORS CLUB

BLOOMINGTON SPRINGS, June 24.—The opening meeting which was also an open meeting of the Tennessee Woman's Press and Author's club was held Monday evening in the reception hall of the Bloomington Springs hotel as music was to be a feature of the picnic in the nearby little log club house on the knoll.

The president, Miss Zella Armstrong, made a delightful little speech of welcome full of the wit and humor which is characteristic of her and introduced each one contributing to the program in a charming way.

Mrs. Elizabeth Frey Page was inimitable, her subject, "The Vending of Verse," being particularly apt. Mrs. Little, chairman of the woman's department of the state fair which will be held in Nashville, and Mrs. Baker, secretary of the same effective board of women, spoke about the fair which will be a fall event.

Another movement of national interest, the First National Conservation exposition, was touched upon by Miss Laura Thornburgh, secretary of the Press and Authors, and one of the clever young journalists of the state, Miss Thornburgh being the society editor of the Knoxville Sentinel.

Mrs. J. A. Epperson presented the club with clippings of poems and short articles by the club members, a book which in itself is not only a tribute to the women but a valuable collection of facts and fancies.

Mrs. Rutledge Smith gave a short and beautiful appreciation of an absent member, Mrs. T. J. Latham, whose generosity made possible the picturesque club house.

THE MUSIC.

And then the music, two violin solos by Martha Buchanan, accompanied by her mother, who showed from whom her gifted young daughter inherited her talent.

A piano solo by Miss Clara Cox and songs by her little sisters, Louise and Mary and a little lullaby by Dollie Smith, furnished the part taken by the children. Miss Odell, of Nashville, sang beautifully a group of songs in a voice as fresh and charming as the words of the June song which was one of those she sang.

An impromptu program is promised as an aftermath of an executive meeting which will be held Tuesday afternoon.

Musser Works Opening Game With Memphis

Harrell Is Given Out as Pitcher by the Turtle Crew—The Weather Reported as Clear and Very Warm

The Atlanta club after an even break in New Orleans opens a three-game series with the Memphis Turtles Wednesday afternoon and nothing less than two wins out of the three will suit the Cracker mogul. It is just a case of having to keep right up in the race to have a chance to win the flag when the real spurting time arrives.

Paul Musser, following a long rest, is doped as the boy to handle the ball from the mound. Joe Dunn will most likely do the catching. For Memphis, it has been announced that Harrell, Bernhardt's newest addition to his staff, will do the flinging with Seabaugh, the ex-Vol catcher, doing the backstopping.

When the Atlanta team last visited Memphis four games were played and the Crackers managed to kick away three of the bunch. In each the Atlanta boys hit the ball hard enough to win two or three games, but decidedly bad fielding prevented any of the hurlers getting a fair chance. It was just the same old unreliable work.

ATLANTA BOYS WHO STAR AT MOTOR RACE GAME

At top on left is Harry Glenn and on right is O. B. Lancaster. At the bottom is Houston Crane. All have started the game of late and are progressing rapidly.

MUST HAVE STRENGTH IN EVERY DEPARTMENT

Baseball clubs in this day of "higher baseball" don't get out in front and win a pennant through luck. Of course this element plays a big part in some big races but it is the club that knows how to bat, field, run bases and gets the hurling that cops the flag. And inside baseball is one factor which must govern all these departments of play.

Whenever you see by the standings that one team or the other is leading the race you can just put it down that the bunch is doing a bit of hard hitting, the fielders are holding up their end of the game, the pitchers are climbing real baseball and the manager has his bunch keyed up on the "inside art." Both outfits don't lead pennant races any more. The game has progressed too far for any team to go far unless it gets consistent work. A good pitching staff and poor batters and fielders won't get you far advanced and good batters and poor pitchers is just as bad. It takes the bunch combined to turn out the real game and until you play the real game you haven't a chance to lead a race in any league.

Here is a bit of observation from the two major leagues:

In the American league the reason for the high standing of the Cleveland, Boston and Philadelphia clubs is easily accounted for. These three clubs are just about the whole show, and all because they get good hurling, bat well and field in jam-up shape. With Washington it is different. Walter Johnson has proven the mainstay of the outfit, and the team keeps in the race mainly through his efforts.

At batting the Cleveland club leads the league with an average of .283, with Philadelphia next in line with .280. At fielding Philadelphia tops the list, with Cleveland second. The average held by the Mackmen is .971, and Joe Birmingham's club fields .966. And the evenness in these two departments tells the tale of the close race, Mack being in front because he has a more sensible ball club, which turns out the "inside game."

The main reason for the hard hitting of the Cleveland club is fully explained when it is hinted that Joe Jackson plays right garden for the club and Larry Lajoie is to be found at second base. These two stars pound out more hits than any duet possessed by Mack and serve to keep the teams ahead in batting. Collins and McInnis are both good hitters, but would not be mentioned in the same breath with the duet held by Birmingham.

Detroit is third in batting, and yet the team ranks way down in the won and lost column. Crawford and Cobb, by their hard hitting, place the team well up in batting, but bum pitching and poorer fielding keep the outfit way down in the race.

Here is the way the American clubs are fielding:

	G.	PO.	A.	E.	Pct.
Philadelphia	54	1458	724	66	.971
Cleveland	57	1589	852	86	.966
Boston	55	1507	857	79	.965
Chicago	58	1542	816	87	.964
Washington	56	1489	766	89	.961
St. Louis	62	1652	838	115	.956
Detroit	60	1601	863	115	.955
New York	53	1467	746	116	.950

Here is the way the teams bat:

	AB.	R.	H.	Pct.
Cleveland	1911	259	541	.283
Philadelphia	1777	293	498	.280
Detroit	1971	229	504	.256
Chicago	1859	205	469	.252
Boston	1838	248	463	.252
Washington	1847	217	459	.249
St. Louis	2004	231	488	.244
New York	1774	178	400	.225

In the National circuit the New York club is leading in team hitting with an average of .269, with Philadelphia, the leading club in the race down at the .247 mark. Now this difference in batting is not so much, but at the same time it shows that New York of late has played far better ball than the Phillies, all of which is accounted for in the decided slump recently taken by the Doolin men and the grand spurt to second place by the Giants.

The Giants in the first 53 games of the season made 488 hits and they counted for 235 runs, while the Philly club made 416 hits and they counted for 204 runs. This is about a toss up between the clubs, but the reason for the higher place occupied by the Philly team is shown in the way the two clubs have fielded and the class of hurling each has been receiving.

The Phillies rank third in club fielding with an average of .962 and the Giant team is down at the .960 mark, having far more errors than the Doolin trio, and in fewer games. The one big reason, however, for the difference in the early season standing of the two clubs is given in the class of hurling each received. Seaton, Alexander, Rixey and Chalmers turned out high-grade hurling right from the start, while Tesreau, Marquard, Benson and Tesreau were late in getting started and the team did not show much class.

Here are the fielding figures of the clubs:

	G.	PO.	A.	E.	PCT.
St. Louis	57	1536	793	83	.966
Pittsburg	56	1528	736	84	.964
Philadelphia	51	1405	674	82	.962
Brooklyn	51	1382	637	83	.960

New York	53	1487	714	91	.960
Chicago	57	1559	761	100	.959
Boston	57	1482	756	100	.958
Chicago	57	1559	761	100	.959

Here is the way the teams are batting:

	AB.	R.	H.	PCT.
New York	1816	235	488	.269
St. Louis	1927	243	509	.264
Brooklyn	1885	205	441	.234

Boston	1771	198	413	.233

Errors Paved Way to Defeat

Gil Price Hurled Jam-Up Game, but Was Not Given Best of Support

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—Tuesday's game went to New Orleans, making the series an even break. The game, although full of miscues and freak plays, was fast and interesting, and it was not until the eighth inning that the score was untied. The final count was 4-1.

In this round Clancy drove one to right, and Rohe errored, Clancy going to the keystone. McDowell scratched one to deep short, Hendrix popped out to Dunn, and Spencer connected with his horsehide, hit one over first and took third, while Agler was looking in the grass for the freaky ball. When Agler discovered the ball he threw to Smith, and Spencer went home on the latter's error, making the third run of the inning.

Evans was unhittable at critical times and deserved to get away with his game.

Timely Taps Copped Game

VALDOSTA, GA., June 25.—In the scrappiest hardest fought most exciting game played on the home grounds during the season Valdosta defeated Brunswick 5 to 2.

In the third on five singles, some of them scratch, and on error Brunswick scored her runs. After that Winges held them tight. In the same inning on a walk and a three-base hit by Van-Landingham Valdosta scored one run and in the eighth on three hits, one a three-bagger by Hurley, two errors and a walk four more came in.

Few Notes On Games

In response to the rumor that Bob Bescher is to be traded for Burns and Hertzog of the Giants, Garry Herrman states that he is off of such a deal.

Without the services of Cobb on the bags Detroit could not win the first game with 12 hits Tuesday. In the ninth they pulled the second game out of the fire by scoring 5 runs, overcoming Cleveland's 4 run lead.

It must have been a sight worth seeing to see Cleveland and Detroit hook up, the former without the services of Jackson, the latter without Cobb.

Base running won another game for the Senators yesterday. Laporte, Moeller, and Milan figuring largely in the bold robbery.

The Giants have passed the 600 mark. Look out Philadelphia.

Mobile garnered 16 hits off Carl Thompson yesterday and the news comes from Birmingham that he has been turned back to the New York Americans. Reube Evans has been purchased by Molesworth to fill his shoes.

Abatin is credited with two doubles and a triple in yesterday's game.

Play in Chicago

NEW YORK, June 25.—Amateur athletic union officials announced today that the national basketball championships would be decided in Chicago. The titular games will be played early next month in connection with the, International Athletic Carnival planned by the Chicago Athletic association. The tournament which will be without weight classification, is open to all registered fives of the United States and Canada.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 25.—The Birmingham baseball team arrived here this morning from Mobile for a series of three games with Montgomery. Foxen or Proach will pitch for the visitors and Mayer will catch. The Montgomery battery will be Bagby and Donohue.

The weather continues ideal for baseball.

MOBILE, Ala., June 25.—Nashville opens a series of three games with Mobile at Monroe park this afternoon and Manager Bill Schwartz will work either Williams or More on the mound with Gibson behind the bat. "Heinie" Berger, scheduled to pitch yesterday but exchanged for Campbell just before play was called, will probably be on the mound for Mobile, with Schmidt behind, according to Manager Finn.

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—Ideal weather conditions were the prospects for the first game of the series between Chattanooga and New Orleans this afternoon. Covaleskie for the visitors and McIntyre for the home team were announced as probable pitchers, with Street and Adams, respectively, receiving.

Ban on Opium

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The Harrison bill to put the prohibitive tax of $200 a pound on the manufacture of opium and to prohibit the importation of the drug except for medicinal purposes, was passed today by the house.

Schaller Goes to Washington

CHICAGO, June 25.—Walter Schaller, utility infielder of the Chicago Americans, was released last night to the Washington club at the waiver price. Schaller was secured by the same process from the Detroit club earlier in the season. Detroit obtained Schaller from Kansas City.

EX-SOUTHERN BALL STARS WORK WELL IN BIG SHOW

Stengel, the ex-Montgomery player with Brooklyn, rapped out two hits off Tesreau, one of which went for a two sacker.

Daubert, the captain and first sacker of the Brookiyns, who is usually a strong hitter, went hitless in the game with New York.

Wheat, this three hundred hitter, who is usually sending them over the fence, made just one hit in four times up and came through with one of the two errors made by Dahlen's men.

Smith, the Atlanta boy with Brooklyn, could not fathom Tesreau's delivery and went hitless, being at the bat three times.

Derrill Pratt, the ex-Alabama star, with the St. Louis Americans, rapped out a double and single in four times up. He also started a double play and made a sacrifice hit.

Johnston, the St. Louis outfielder once with Montgomery, got a three-base drive and single in five times up. He also scored a run.

Ed Sweeney, the ex-Cracker, was shooed from the game after batting one time.

Al Bridwell, the ex-Atlanta player now with the Chicago Cubs, rapped out a single in two times up. He had but three chances in the field, all of which weer accepted.

George Paskert, a former Cracker with the Philadelphia Nationals who was at bat three times but failed to connect safely though he scored a run and had three putouts.

Doc Johnston, an ex-Pelican player now with Cleveland, was up nine times during the double bill with Detroit and scored one run and one hit. He had twenty-four putouts and one assist.

Crackers Off In Every Way

In the past two games with New Orleans the Crackers hit a batting slump which is responsible for their poor showing. In fielding the wet grounds were disadvantageous to both teams.

Atlanta was ahead of New Orleans in stick work but behind in the field. The averages are as follows:

Best Riders Will Mix It In Two Races

Good Program Booked for Meeting at Motordrome on Wednesday Evening—Plenty of Music and Good Race Events

Tonight is race night at the Atlanta motordrome.

Weather permitting, there will be nine races, and possibly a few novice events besides, run off on the Atlanta motordrome, with the fireworks due to begin as usual at 8:15.

The local track has been the victim of considerable precipitation at odd times, but Jack Prince believes he has discovered a way to elude the jinx and has no doubt but that he will be able to get away with the program tonight.

Judging by the program and the way it is split up there should be great riding at the drome tonight. The two main opportunities which will be offered to the riders to break their necks will be in the Mayor Woodward sweepstakes and the motordrome purse. Good money has been hung up in each event and the riders need it. The result can be imagined.

With a view of making the most exciting possible combination of riders the heats have been so arranged that Wilmer Richards, champion thus far of the local track, and Jock McNeil, his closest rival, will meet in two preliminaries. As their heats are almost sure to be the fastest of each race and as the second man in the fastest heat qualifies in the finals it is virtually a certainty that these two men will meet in the finals of the main event as well.

Harry Glenn, the local rider, is another man who will make a rider is an this evening. Harry has been tinkering with his machine and has it ready for high speed work. He has gradually learned the track and he is as good as anybody at the riding game now.

Everything seems to point to a big meet tonight. The program is excellent. The car service from Five Points to the track, will be tip top.

Wednesday's program follows:

WOODWARD SWEEPSTAKES.

First heat, 2 miles—No. 7, George Renel, No. 2, Harry Swartz, No. 6, Fred Luther. Second heat, 3 miles—No. 10, Harry Glenn, No. 9, Henry Lewis, No. 4, George Lockner. Third heat, 2 miles—No. 3, Billy Shields, No. 8, Morty Graves, No. 5, Jock McNeil, No. 5, Wilmer Richards. Fourth heat, final, 5 miles—For winner of each heat and second man in fastest heat.

MOTORDROME PURSE.

First heat, 3 miles—No. 6, Fred Luther, No. 9, Henry Lewis, No. 3, Billy Shields. Second heat, 3 miles—No. 2, Hary Swartz, No. 10, Harry Glenn, No. 1, Morty Graves. Third heat, 5 miles—No. 7, Georges Renel, No. 4, George Lockner, No. 8, Jock McNeil, No. 5, Wilmer Richards. Fourth heat, final, 3 miles—For winner of each heat and second man in fastest heat.

Special match race, to be announced later.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Two stars of the Terre Haute club of the Central league have been bought by the New York American league club for $2,000 each, according to advices received here. The men are Teddy Troy, outfielder, and Charles Pick, third baseman. They are to report at the end of the Central league season.

World's Pennant Raised

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, June 25.—The Boston Red Sox baseball champions of the world and of the American league, paused for a time today in their quest for another title to unfurl the pennant gained by their successes against the New York Giants in the world's series last fall.

The New York Highlanders were here to participate in the ceremonies.

SAY, HANK, BUT THAT WAS AN AWFUL HIGH JUMP THAT COLLEGE GUY MADE YESTERDAY. THINK OF IT 6 FEET 6 ½ INCHES
THAT'S NOTHIN'. I KNEW A GUY ONCE THAT DID 15 FEET IN THE HIGH JUMP—
15 FEET? WHY, SAY, YOU'RE CRAZY! IT'S IMPOSSIBLE
WELL THIS FELLER DID IT WITH EASE
I SAY IT CAN'T BE DONE AND I'LL BET ON IT—
I TELL YOU IT WAS DONE I SAW HIM DO IT
WELL WHO WAS THE GUY THAT DID IT?
WHY YOUR FATHER
OH WELL, ER-R HE MIGHT HAVE DONE IT.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE ULTIMATE IN PITCHING.

I do not pose as one who knows
The final word in perfect pitching;
As one would say the "fadeaway"
Which Matty shoots is most bewitching;
Or Vean Gregg's drop, or Joe Wood's hop
Or Walsh's magic necromancy;
Though class is there I'd hate to smear
Which one of these styles struck my fancy.

It may be that my dope is flat
Or badly pied or sadly twisted—
Or say again my fountain pen
Is full of soup or badly listed;
But of them all the loudest call
To pitching fame for this curmudgeon,
Is having more upon the ball
Then Mack's team has upon the bludgeon.

The English stroke suffered the same fate on water that it met on land. It lost in Polo when wielded by Americans. Apparently then the English system is out of gear, for it also lost in fighting when wielded by Mr. Wells.

THE OLD PUNCH.

Whatever the game, the punch is never out of place. Why are the Athletics out in front? Answer, ability to whale the padding out of the ball. What brought the Giants from the rut to a run o sixteen victories out of twenty starts? Answer, an average of eleven hits and five runs to the game, exclusively promulgating by the wallop.

It was the smashing game of McLoughlin and Williams which upset the softer playing Australians. It was the smashing playing of the Big Four which drove back the Lion for the sixth straight time. The old kick is never out of place.

The mule may not be a bird of paradise but his hoof still holds him the cheerful respect of all about him. Light and airy grace and facility of movement are well enough. But the old Wop is the stuff which produces the kale at the finish.

In all three engagements the English stroke, as we view it, had all the graceful sweep and buoyancy of a bird a-wing. It had the rythm and the deftness of touch—the science of easy facility. All it lacked was the punch—the kick or the wallop. When it came to the test the driving power was missing and the rest of it therefore fell to pieces before the less graceful, perhaps, but harder sweep of the American smash.

SPOTTING THE ATHLETICS.

The Red Sox, like the Pirates, required a long spell in which to get started, but are beginning again to look like the old machine. Unfortunately for their own good the uplift is likely to be too late. Last August when the Athletics were ten games back Mr. McAleer announced that no team in the world could spot his club ten games and beat them out with forty to play.

Mr. Mack might also announce that no team can spot his club eleven games and lead them over. He might but he won't. When his people are twenty-seven games to the good with thirty-eight to play, Connie is willing to concede that he "has a good chance for the flag with any sort of luck." Which lets him out as a prophet.

Joe Wood is on his way back, but Joseph has quite a distance to travel before attaining his 1912 mark of thirty-three wins against five defeats. Quite a distance and a fairly healthy bundle left.

Just as the Washington Boosters club was formed the Yanks stepped in and wrenched off a double header. If they can maintain a compact organization after this, Griff can face the future without a quiver.

"Did Ed Walsh," queries a reader, "never strike out Collins, Baker and McInnis with the bases full?"

In the first place we never heard of it, if it happened. In the second place it can't be done.

Cubs and Giants have shown a disposition to curb the Phillies of late, but there are five other clubs in the circuit who so far have been unable to kick in. Dooin can afford reverses from two clubs as long as the others yield the proper increment in moment of distress.

English Star Wins at Golf

McDermott First American Player to Get Place in Ranking

HOY LAKE, England, June 25.—J. H. Taylor, four times holder of the British open golf championship, won it again here at a score of 304 for the four rounds. His score in the first round was 73, in the second 75, in the third 77, and in the fourth 79 strokes.

Last year's champion, Edward Ray, was second, with 312 strokes his score by rounds being 73, 74, 81 and 84. Harry Vardon, open champion five times, tied with Michael Moran, the Irish champion, taking third and fourth places with 313 each.

John J. McDermott, open golf champion of the United States, tied for fifth with T. C. Renouf, their totals being 315 each.

Tom L. McNamara, of Massachusetts, was placed twenty-fourth with a score of 325.

AMERICANS GO STRONG

WIMBLEDON, June 25.—In the English lawn tennis championships here today Craig Biddle, of Philadelphia, won three straight sets from G. H. Mayes, a member of the Canadian team which meets Belgium in the next round of the Davis cup tournament. Wallace F. Johnson, of Philadelphia, easily beat H. B. Webb, of Cambridge university. E. Norris Williams, of the American Davis team, disposed of R. M. K. Turnbull in easy style and Maurice McLoughlin beat A. H. Glendenning in three straights.

Sterling form shown by McLoughlin, Johnson, Williams and Biddle has caused nervousness among the home talent.

Stars in Battle

KANSAS CITY, June 24.—Battling for the championship of the central west open tennis tournament, forty sunburned young women were ready for play this morning when the games were started in the second day of the contest at the Ivanhoe club courts.

NEW LIGHTWEIGHT TERROR

EUD ANDERSON.

NEAR NO-HIT AT LAGRANGE

LAGRANGE, Ga., June 25.—Ralph Head pitching for LaGrange but for one bad inning would have had a no hit shut out game against Talladega. LaGrange won by a final score of 5 to 4. Talladega making four runs in one inning. Woodruff pitched for Talladega and was freely batted, giving up eleven hits. Head for LaGrange gave up four hits. Rammage and Chambers for Talladega made home runs with a man on base each time, both home runs occurring in the seventh inning. Donaldson for LaGrange made a home run in the eighth which proved to be the winning run of the game.

Bagwell, the new umpire of the Georgia-Alabama league, showed up well in his initial performance, there being very few kicks against his work. The score by innings was as follows:

Score:	R.
LaGrange .. ..300 200 00x—5
Talladega ....000 000 400—4

COBB VS. JACKSON

With Cobb and Jackson both out of the game, there will be a temporary recess in the race for batting honors.

Both of these players have a percentage which hovers around .400, which is quite enough to rest upon—for a while at least.

The question is: Will Cobb's leg heal before Ban Johnson's grouch at Jackson does, and which one will get away with the best start after his enforced idleness.

Filipino Team Plays Chicago

CHICAGO, June 25.—A squad of Filipino baseball players are due in Chicago today from Manila and will play their first game in America here Saturday with a semi-professional team. The sixteen athletes in the party were selected from the Filipino major league and all are natives.

TWENTY-ROUND BOUT STOPPED

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 25.—"There will be no fight across the river."

In these words Governor Hall sealed the fate of the twenty-round fight scheduled between Jack Britton and Charles White at the West Side Athletic club in McDonoghville, Jefferson parish, July 4.

"That affair has been advertised over the country as a twenty-round prize fight," the governor continued. "It is nothing more than a twenty-round knockdown and drag-out prize fight and directly in violation of law. It will not take place."

Definite announcement was made today by promoters in charge that the bout would be changed to a ten-round go and be staged at an arena in New Orleans. The change resulted from the announcement of Governor Hall that no twenty-round fight would be allowed in Louisiana. Opposition of New Orleans city authorities to a twenty-round bout was responsible for the original plan to hold the event at McDonoghville.

Try for Record

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 25.—That Uhlan, C. K. G. Billing's champion trotter, has a good chance of succeeding when he tries for a world's record to wagon at the opening of the grand circuit races here on July 7, is evidenced by the form he is showing in his workouts. Today Uhlan circled the oval at North Randall in 2:04 1-4. The world's record of two minutes is held by himself.

Trotting to a sulky, the great gelding did the mile in 2:03 1-2.

Peas One of Georgia's Most Profitable Crops

THERE are but few farmers who realize or appreciate the value of peas or soy beans and what they are worth in building up the lands. There is probably no crop that can be planted so easily and grown as the pea crop, and when properly cared for and the right variety planted there is no crop more profitable. Usually peas sell for $2 to $4 per bushel, and any ordinary land will produce eight to ten bushels per acre and good land from fifteen to thirty bushels per acre. You can readily see that a crop so profitable as this will pay a farmer far better than a cotton crop or most any other crop that he can plant. And, in addition to this the land will usually make one-third to one-half more the following year in any crop that it is planted to. Peas are wonderful nitrogen gatherers and they will store in the soil $10 to $20 worth of nitrogen per acre while they are growing. Especially are they valuable to poor land if only the peas are picked and the vines allowed to decay on the land and be left there for fertilizer. They are usually worth $10 to $15 per acre as a fertilizer to any piece of land.

Clovers and alfalfa always make a splendid crop following peas and one rarely ever fails to get a good stand and make a success of the growing of either of these crops if peas are planted ahead of them, and especially where the peas have been inoculated. When the alfalfa or clover is inoculated afterwards, double inoculation makes it absolutely certain. The magnificent peach crop that the state harvested last year and sold for such a long price was grown on land that was very poor when they bought it, but it had been built up by planting inoculated peas and oats every year on this land until they got it in the right stage for fruit trees, and when it was set to trees it probably has made one of the best orchards in the state.

Peas keep the ground shaded during the hot summer months and preserve the moisture, and furthermore they draw the nitrogen from the air and feed an abundance of this into the soil, so that the next crop is always to follow a pea crop, and they do not suffer the following spring from drought, as they do on land that was not planted to peas. The roots of the peas, as a rule, go deep into the ground and subsoil the land even better than a plow can do so, and if they are allowed to decay on the soiland the nogules on them become ripe and available it leaves the soil with an abundance of vegetable matter and humor in the soil following this wonderful crop. Velvet beans and soy beans do likewise, and as a land builder peas are worth far more to the south than clover is to the east or west for the simple reason that they can be so much more cheaply planted and cultivated, and be grown with so much more ease and will add fully as much to the value of the soil. The people over the southern states are beginning to find this out and are restoring the fertility of their land by the use of peas, but only a small part of this is being practiced. Every acre of corn that a man plants on his farm should be layed by broadcast in peas. They not only help to keep the corn cool and keep it in fine condition for the next crop, but they draw more or less nitrogen and store it in the soil to help feed or supply the corn at a time when it needs it most, and in addition to this a large amount of splendid food for either cattle or hogs that afterwards run on the cornfield.

This past year hundreds of bushels of white peas have been shipped to Georgia from California. One broker alone told me that he had sold over two thousand sacks of these peas, and most of the time they have been bringing from $2.50 to $4 per bushel. They can be grown just as good in Georgia as in California, and with such a great demand for them we are certainly overlooking a profitable crop by not paying more attention to them than we are. Peas can be planted even up to the last of July and everyone who can possibly do so should plant every vacant spot on their land to peas this year as it will not only help out in the production of feed but will add several times the cost of the trouble of the increased fertility of the land for another crop. Peas are the salvation of this country as a land builder and as a food crop and too much attention cannot be paid to the growing of them.

Yours very truly,

Geo. P. Moore

Aunt Patsy Poultry Feed Co., Memphis, Tenn.

Attention Mr. J. P. Gentry.

Dear Sir:—Your letter of the 30th received. You undoubtedly remember how skeptical the writer was as to the claims you made for Aunt Patsy, and also the objections made to the high cost of the same; but the results from the feed have removed all doubts.

I did not believe Aunt Patsy would improve the laying qualities of my Buff Rocks, but it has done so, and I have a healthier yard of poultry than ever before.

Ever since the writer has been raising poultry he has kept a close record of the cost of the same, and the past few months' record shows Aunt Patsy is the cheapest feed if fed as you instruct.

I am very glad to report these results, though my monthly orders are the best sign of my satisfaction.

Wishing you continued success, I am,
Very truly,
H. S. ADAMS.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than at any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities that you can not expect your flock to prove profitable. Feed the little chicks will not make the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little, for 35c you can get a can of either Leeb, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Decatur Street Parcel Brings $180 a Foot—Daniel and Juniper Street Sales—United Lead Company to Build $100,000 Plant on Southern Railway—Remarkable Enhancement Shown in Ponce de Leon Avenue Parcel Just Sold

More small sales were announced on Wednesday, with a prospect of additional announcements of this kind from now on.

C. H. Chapman has sold to Mrs. Margaret R. Tyler Nos. 362-4 Decatur street, improved property, for $9,000, or $180 a front foot. The sale was handled by the M. C. Kiser agency.

This property has a frontage of fifty feet and a depth of 120 feet. It begins 275 feet west of Hilliard street, on the north side of the street.

The Burdett Realty company has sold for J. B. Thompson to an out-of-town client Nos. 20-2-4 Daniel street, five houses on a lot 100x125, for $6,250, and or a client to W. C. Voyles lot 15 of the Flanders estate, fronting on Piedmont avenue, near the Southern railway, for $2,400.

G. M. McKinnon has sold for Nicholas Ittner to W. S. Williams a residence property at No. 333 Juniper street for $6,000. There is a cottage on a lot 50x150.

MANUFACTURING PLANT.

The United Lead company, a New York corporation, has let a contract to H. J. Carr & Co. for the erection of a $100,000 plant on the Southern railway at East and Bishop streets, near the plant of the Atlanta Steel company. Work will be started at once.

The building will be of steel construction and 200 feet long. The company will have a pay roll of $60,000 a year.

HOME ENHANCEMENT, THIS.

In Tuesday's Journal appeared an account of the sale by Ware & Harper of the southwest corner of Ponce de Leon and Highland avenues, the third sale this season. W. J. Davis, the developer and banker, offers some startling figures on the enhancement of that same lot as well as other parcels on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Mr. Davis bought this corner and the balance of the frontage, except one or two lots, on Ponce de Leon avenue extending back to Linwood avenue, with frontage on Blue Ridge avenue, in 1897, for $3,250. Since then $60,000 has been made on it, and the frontage on Blue Ridge avenue is velvet.

After bought this property Mr. Davis offered it for $3,500, but could find no purchaser. Finally, in 1902, he did manage to sell the southwest corner of Ponce de Leon avenue and Highland avenue, a lot 110x250, part of which sold this week for $16,500 for $1,100.

He bought an adjoining lot, 100x465, in 1902, for $200, and later sold it for $5,750. The $200 purchase included three negro houses.

Desirable Peachtree Lots.

There is no use in going into detail in regard to Peachtree street property. Every person in Atlanta knows Peachtree street, knows its desirability and also knows its PRICE, which as a rule is just a little beyond some of us.

We have had listed with us some unusually pretty building lots, some this side of Buckhead, and some just beyond. These lots have a frontage of 100 feet on Peachtree with a depth of about 425 feet, being beautifully shaded.

The price on these particular lots is from $10.00 to $15.00 under the market, making the PRICE within the reach of anyone who contemplates a Peachtree Home.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Confederate Senators Govern Choice of Seats.

Four Confederate veterans occupy prominent place in the state senate. Following the senate's custom the veteran senators—C. E. McGregor, of the Nineteenth; Lee Pope, of the Forty-fourth; W. E. H. Searcy, Sr., of the Twenty-sixth and J. L. Sweat, of the Fifth—were allowed the first choice of seats. All four took slale desks close to the presidents platform.

Two of the veterans are old heads at legislative procedure. Senator McGregor served in the senate in 1894-1895 and Senator Searcy was a member of the house for several sessions. Senators Pope and Sweat are enjoying a first experience as part and parcel of the general assembly.

Senator W. M. Olliff, of the Fourth, district, was not provided with the veterans because of his hearing.

Akin Will Send His Energies to Get Swamp Drainage Appropriation.

Representative L. R. Akin, of Glynn, is president of the Georgia Drainage congress and works hard in and out of season for projects looking to the reclamation of vast areas of south Georgia swamp lands. Several years ago, while a member of the senate, Mr. Akin pushed through a bill looking to the draining of the low and water-covered lands of the state.

Mr. Akin now wants the legislature to make an appropriation sufficient to maintain a government engineer while they are making the preliminary surveys for the drainage of the swamps. He declares Georgia has 4,500 acres of fine farming land which can be made available through the drainage of the swamps; that millionns of dollars will be added to the taxable values of the state, and that south Georgia would be rid of malaria.

Branch Experiment Station For South Georgia Advocated.

Early in the legislative session Representative Dan T. Ellis, of Tift county, will introduce a bill calling for a branch farm experiment station to be located in Georgia, but not less than fifty acres of land to be donated by the board of trustees of the Second District Agricultural school.

It is rumored that the new institution be known as the South Georgia Experiment station and that it have a working connection with the State College of Agriculture, at Athens, and the Georgia Experiment Station, near Griffin.

Representative Ellis' bill will provide for an appropriation of $10,000 for buildings and an annual maintenance appropriation of $5,000.

D. A. R. Will Give Party for Legislators.

The ladies of Atlanta chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will, on Wednesday afternoon, between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock, entertain the members of the Georgia legislature with a lawn party on the spacious and beautiful grounds of Governor and Mrs. John M. Slaton's elegant country place.

Governor Slaton Will Read His Inaugural Address to Legislature.

When he is inaugurated Saturday at noon Governor John M. Slaton will read his message to the members of both houses of the legislature in their joint session in the house of representatives. He will not send a written message to be read by a clerk, but will address the legislature in person. Chief Justice Fish, of the state supreme court, will administer the oath to the new governor and Governor Brown formally will hand over to him the great seal of state. Following the inauguration Governor Slaton will hold a reception in the executive office for the members of the legislature, after which he and Mrs. Slaton will drive to the executive mansion to take dinner with Governor and Mrs. Brown. At this dinner the retiring governor will deliver the mansion to the incoming governor.

Hudson Was Loyal Supporter of Representative Sheppard.

In this column Monday appeared a news item concerning the presence in Atlanta of Thomas G. Hudson, former commissioner of agriculture. It stated that Mr. Hudson was working in the interests of Representative W. H. Sheppard for governor, and Judge John Allen for president of the senate. This was in part an error. Mr. Hudson has given his support and influence to his fellow townsman, Representative J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter, whom he loyally supported until Mr. Sheppard withdrew from the speakership race. Mr. Hudson did all he could to assist his friend, Judge Allen.

Program of Reform To Georgia's Penal System.

Members of the legislature who are interested in the various proposed changes and improvements in Georgia's penal system and criminal laws, have agreed tentatively on the program of what specific things will be asked of the special commission. It is expected that all measures relative to criminal court and penal reform will be referred directly to this commission.

Among the measure which it is expected will be introduced in the legislature and referred to the commission are the following; each to be considered on its individual merits:

A bill legalizing the suspension of sentence and providing a probation system.

A bill for indeterminate sentences.

A bill providing that state convicts shall receive a small wage from the state, to be paid to the families of the convicts which now are left absolutely destitute in many cases.

A measure providing for practical changes and improvements in the penal laws of the state.

A measure providing for the separating of youthful offenders from hardened criminals. In many cases now all are fastened together on the same chain.

A bill to increase the efficiency of convict labor on public highway building by putting an experienced engineer directly in charge of the work.

A measure to make the living conditions in convict camps generally more tolerable and to abolish them as rapidly as this can be practically possible.

A number of these measures have already received the strong endorsement of farmers and men in town and county. It has been practically agreed on that the most sensible and at the same time the most expeditious way to handle the whole criminal law and penal reform question at this session of the legislature, is to create a special commission to whom all measures relating to the subject may be referred. It is planned to introduce a resolution early in the session creating for this commission.

Richmond Representatives Are United On at Least Two Bills

Richmond county's delegation of county representatives in the house are in hearty accord on at least two propositions—they will pull shoulder to shoulder for an extra appropriation of $50,000 for the medical college at Augusta, which is a branch of the state university system, and individually and collectively they will give their support to a bill providing for a repeal of the military law enacted at the last session.

The ..representatives of Richmond county are Sam F. Garlington, Sam L. Olive and Charles A. Wright. All are well known Augusta lawyers. Mr. Garlington is the only memoer of the trio who was in the last legislature.

LAWMAKERS TAKE STEPS TO REMOVE FARMING TAX

Work to put into effect the constitutional amendment passed in 1912 and ratified at the last general election, exempting farm products from taxation, was begun in the state senate on Wednesday, when a bill was introduced by Senators Tarver, Hixon and Pope to put the law into operation.

The amendment exempts farm products and baled cotton still in the hands of the producer from taxation of all kinds. It was introduced in the house early in the 1912 session by Representative Johnson, of Bartow county.

In seeking the additional appropriation for the Augusta Medical college these representatives will show that the city of Augusta now appropriates $200,000 a year for the maintenance of the hospital with which are an adjunct of the college and which afford opportunity for practical teaching. The $50,000 is said to be badly needed to equip the college properly, provide an up-to-date laboratory and pay proper salaries to the members of the faculty.

The principal objection urged by the Richmond county representatives against the military act is that in instances where troops are called out, the civil laws and civil authorities must give way to martial law and military authority. The application of this law during the Augusta street car strike last fall did not meet the approval of Augustans.

McElreath Suggests Remedy For State's Financial Ills.

Walter McElreath, a well known Atlanta attorney, former member of the legislature from Fulton and chairman of the appropriations committee during the session of 1911-12, thinks that the state can be put upon a sound financial basis without adopting a policy of niggardly economy.

Mr. McElreath thinks that the necessary legislation and constitutional changes to meet the needs of the situation are embraced in the following suggestions:

1. A provision, by constitutional amendment, for an additional tax levy fro one or two years, supplementing the common school fund sufficiently to pay the salaries of the teachers as they are earned, said fund to be used for no other purpose.

2. The passage, by constitutional amendment for a maximum tax levy of a certain number of mills for the support of the common schools, with the provision that no other funds, except those set aside by the constitution, shall be appropriated for the purpose.

3. A provision similar to the preceding for the payment of pensions.

4. The enactment of a law providing a reasonable graduated inheritance tax.

5. The adoption of a thorough system for the assessment and equalization of taxes.

WILSON RELEASES M'NAB WITH STINGING REBUKE

Heney Will Probably Be Employed in Prosecution of White Slave Cases

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 25.—President Wilson last night telegraphed United States District Attorney McNab, of San Francisco, acceptance of the latter's resignation, the form of which the president characterized as "an inexcusable intimation of injustice and wrongdoing" on the part of Attorney General McReynolds.

President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds had an early conference today early to select a special prosecutor for the Caminetti-Diggs white slave cases, and the Western Fuel company indictments in the federal courts in San Francisco. It was said that an announcement would be made before the end of the day.

DEPARTMENT RELIEVED.

With the wheels of the department of justice grinding again on the celebrated cases, administration officials made no effort to conceal their relief. Official Washington reflected that feeling. Probably no issue with which President Wilson has had to deal since his inauguration has attracted such widespread attention.

The attitude of White House officials today in declining to comment on the latest declarations of the federal grand jury in San Francisco and the attacks of former United States Attorney McNab against Attorney General McReynolds for his postponement of the prosecutions, was that the action of the president and the attorney general of ordering the cases to trial speaks for itself. It was the official view that, however, mistaken Mr. McReynolds' cursory view of the situation upon which he ordered postponement, his action was free from any "unworthy motive," and it was pointed out that the ccrrespondence made public at the White House last night shows that the attorney general himself had reversed his position and was approved by the president.

President Wilson's attitude now was said to be that the selection of capable counsel to carry the cases to trial was a sufficient demonstration of the sincere wish of the administration to have a vigorous prosecution.

WILL EMPLOY HENEY.

It is President Wilson's intention to secure Francis J. Heney to take the cases. He is regarded as being specially desirable because he has no political interest with the administration.

With the selection of a prosecutor and his preliminary instructions, the White House will consider the cases a closed incident.

Mrs. John Thompson Dead

Mrs. John Thompson, formerly of Atlanta, died Tuesday morning in Clarwater, Fla. The body will reach Atlanta Thursday morning and will be removed to H. M. Patterson's chapel, where funeral services will occur Thursday afternoon. She is survived by three daughters and two sons.

SPECIAL MESSAGE ON W. & A. RAILWAY LEASE

Gov. Brown Will Send Message to General Assembly Saturday on State Road

A special message will be sent to the legislature Saturday morning by Governor Brown dealing with the proposed lease of the Western and Atlantic railroad.

Governor Brown did not include his recommendations on the question of proper disposition of the state road in his message of Wednesday for the reason that he wished to give especial emphasis to his views and to deal with the subject at some length. He felt that a special message would serve his purpose better than to confuse the W. and A. matter with the other commendations contained in his message of Wednesday.

ELECTION OF DOREMUS A VICTORY FOR WILSON

Clark Machine's Lack of Strength Shown Up in Issue With President

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—The election last night of Representative Frank E. Doremus, of Michigan, as chairman of the congressional campaign committee was a distinct political victory for President Wilson and his adherents in congress over Speaker Champ Clark and his disgruntled following.

The state of Georgia contributed two votes toward the victory of the president. The votes of Senator Smith and Representative Gordon Lee were cast for Doremus as against Representative Cline, of Indiana, who had the support of the Clark contingent. Doremus was chosen by a vote of 30 to 24.

The contest for the chairmanship of the congressional campaign committee was the liveliest ever staged for a similar office, and the lines were clearly drawn between the Wilson and Clark forces in congress. The election of the administration candidate by a margin of six votes indicates the extent of the inroads Woodrow Wilson has made in the Clark machine within the comparatively short time he has been in Washington. It shows clearly that the president is the master of the situation in congress.

Some weeks ago, when an attempt was made to reorganize the congressional committee, President Wilson succeeded in having the matter postponed. At that time Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, was slated for the chairmanship, to succeed Representative Lloyd, of Missouri.

When Johnson got out of the way Doremus was suggested as the most available man for the chairmanship. The Clark people groomed Representative Cline, of Indiana. One or two "dark horses" were held in reserve, in the hope, it was stated, of deadlocking the election and throwing the chairmanship to Lloyd again, but the "dark horses" remained in the stable, and the showdown came in a test between Doremus and Cline, with the results aforementioned.

KANSAS CITY, June 24.—Railroads in Missouri affected by the recent decision of the United States supreme court upholding the Missouri two cent passenger and maximum freight rate laws will, without waiting for the mandate of the supreme court, put the new rates in force "at the earliest practical date," according to an announcement by attorneys representing the railroads after a meeting here today.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 25.—Serving twenty-one years and getting ready to start in the fifth term as tax collector of Tuscaloosa county is the service record of S. D. Commission Allows Convict to Visit His Dying Sister

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MOULTRIE, June 25.—H. J. Simpson, a white convict working on the roads of Colquitt county, is off on a furlough of a few days to visit a sister at Cochran, Ga.

The sister has been ill for some time, and recently it became apparent that her recovery was improbable. It was her desire that she might see her brother again before death, and permission was obtained through the prison commission for him to go to her bedside.

The expense of the trip is borne by the family. The young man made the journey in the custody of a guard.

Mr. Wilson Won't Rest While Congress Works

WASHINGTON, June 25.—President Wilson intends to take no vacation while congress is in session and is determined to share any discomforts the hot season may bring. While he will leave Friday to take his family to Cornish, N. H., he will return the following Monday, unless congress recesses over July 4.

The ice refrigerating plant underneath Mr. Wilson's office is no longer in operation and the temperature of the president's work room is no different than in any other part of Washington. Mr. Wilson says he is prepared to stand the heat and looks forward to a long session with currency legislation as the ultimate object.

ALABAMA MAN SLAIN AND ROBBED IN GEORGIA

Warren O'Donnell, of Montgomery, Found With Crushed Skull Near Lonvaille

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 25.—Warren O'Donnell, of Montgomery, was murdered and robbed by highwaymen near Louvaille, Ga., late last week, according to telegraphic information received by his father, Thomas O'Donnell.

O'Donnell had gone to Georgia to collect money due him and to bring certain goods to Montgomery after completing work at Louvaille. His body was found three miles from the town. Part of the skull had been torn away and indications were that O'Donnell had resisted his assailants and was killed in the fight.

HELD ON CHEARGE OF CONCEALING ASSETS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 25.—P. A. Mock, a merchant of Sylvania, Ga., has been held to answer to the grand jury of the United States court on the charge of concealing assets after going into bankruptcy. Mr. Mock has given bond to answer the charge. He went through a very searching examination yesterday afternoon before Mr. Morecock, a United States commissioner, who came here to examine him. It was shown that some of Mr. Mock's assets had been concealed and it was claimed that he had concealed them. The commissioner was so impressed with the evidence that he held Mr. Mock for the grand jury. The failure was for quite a large sum for a small town merchant and there was much interest in it at the time.

FRENCH CHIEF RECEIVED BY LONDON LORD MAYOR

Progress Through Streets of London Was a Popular Triumph for Pres. Poincare

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 25.—President Raymond Poincare, of France was guest at luncheon today at the lord mayor and corporation of the city of London, and the "square mile" composing the city proper was in gala array for the occasion. The ancient guild hall was a blaze of color.

The French president's progress through the streets lined with troops, from York house to the city, was a popular triumph. Thousands of sightseers at every point cheered the visitor.

During the luncheon the hall was crowded with members of the royal family, cabinet ministers, naval and military officers and high state civic dignitaries.

President Poincare was entertained by the king at a state banquet last night with as great a display of pomp and magnificence as was ever shown in honor of a royal guest at Buckingham palace. Early in the morning President Poincare had been greeted at Portsmouth by the Prince of Wales and later at Victoria station by the British sovereign.

The president of France sat between King George and Queen Mary at the central table, at which were seated also other members of the royal family and the ambassadors. The other guests, numbering about a hundred, occupied thirteen tables.

The king, in proposing President Poincare's health, referred to the cordial relations between France and England as the great factor in the preservation of European peace.

A felicitous response in the same strain was made by the president.

While Indictment is Being Drawn, He Leaps From Window to Death

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 24.—John Brantlinger, charged with larceny, leaped from the office of the prosecutor on the third floor of the county court house today, and killed himself, while the prosecutor was preparing an indictment against him.

Brantlinger hid in a saloon last night, robbed it after it had been closed, and was caught while spending the money freely.

Disconsolate Hubby Got Job in Powder Factory: Then Cot in Hospital

PATERSON, N. J., June 25.—In a suit to divorce his wife on the ground of desertion, Peter K. Hicks has gone on record in chancery here as a most doleful husband.

He testified yesterday that the alleged desertion of his wife made him so disconsolate that he got a job in a powder factory in the hope that the plant would blow up.

His prayer was answered a few months later, when he was sent to the hospital with five others injured in an explosion. By the time he recovered he ceased to grieve over his domestic troubles, and decided that life was worth living after all.

E. Clayton Released

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 25.—Edwy Clayton, the chemist sentenced to twenty-one months' imprisonment on June 17 for conspiracy in connection with the militant suffragette leaders, was released from jail today in a very weak condition as the result of a "hunger strike."

It appears from statements made by released prisoners that many convicts who are not suffragists have followed the example of the suffragettes. Three men in one of the prisons hav for some weeks declined to eat and are being forcibly fed.

ADMINISTRATIVE CLAUSE OF TARIFF UP IN SENATE

Democrats in Caucus See Two Far-Reaching Amendments to Original Bill

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Two far reaching amendments to the administrative provisions of the tariff bill aroused opposition in the Democratic senate caucus today.

One was that prohibiting importation of any goods, except immediate products of agriculture, forests and fisheries, wholly or in part manufactured by children under fourteen years old.

That provision was declared by many senators to be the most drastic protective measure any manufacturer could ask for—greater as a protection against foreign competition than high tariff rates.

The amendment to grant to the United States court of appeals concurrent jurisdiction in customs cases involving more than $100 with the customs court, also aroused attention. Some Democrats thought the proposal an entering wedge toward eliminating the custom court.

Senator Ransdell resumed debate against sugar when the caucus opened, while Senator James was ready to support the schedule. Discussion of both the wool and sugar schedules was to end at 4 p. m., when a vote was to be taken. With these questions settled, administration leaders expect the bill to be reported to the senate early next week.

Radical changes in the income tax plan of the Underwood tariff bill and alteration of the administrative features of the measure to overcome most of the objections raised by foreign governments were agreed upon in a tentative way late yesterday by the Democratic members of the senate finance committee.

The income tax, under the new plan, would apply to individual incomes over $3,000, but would make important exemptions for individuals, municipalities, civic bodies and mutual insurance companies.

Under the proposed new form of the income tax, an additional exemption of $1,000 would be allowed to married men or married women with dependent wives or husbands, not taxable under this law, and $500 would be added for each dependent child living with and dependent upon the taxable parent. In case both parties being taxable, however, no exemption for child would apply.

Chambers of commerce, civic bodies cities, counties and states are added to the class of organizations whose income will not be taxable.

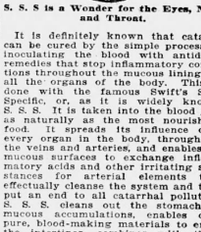
For Bright Eyes and Clear Nose

Remarkable Catarrh Cure That Gets Right into the Affected Parts and Stops Gatherings.



S. S. S is a Wonder for the Eyes, Nose and Throat.

It is definitely known that catarrh can be cured by the simple process of inoculating the blood with antidotal remedies that stop inflammatory conditions throughout the mucous linings of all the organs of the body. This is done with the famous Swift's Sure Specific, or as it is widely known, S. S. S. It is taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It at once begins its journey over every organ in the body, through all the veins and arteries, and enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectually cleanse the system and thus put an end to all catarrhal pollution. S. S. S. cleans out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure, blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a decided clearing of the air passages, a steadily improved nasal condition, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely catarrh often infests the entire system. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 per bottle. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils, and all other diseased conditions of the blood. For special advice on any blood disease write in confidence to The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not delay to get a bottle of S. S. S. of your druggist.
